CORNELL TO GREENLAND.

A Geological Expedition to Accompany Lieutenant Peary.

When E. G. Wynkoff announced the withdrawal of his offer of $3,000 for a rowing team at Cornell university he said that the sum would be given to other university interests, and that $3,000 was already pledged. It is now possible to announce that this sum is given to the geological department for the purpose of a scientific expedition to Greenland during the coming summer. The expedition, which will be made up of Cornell men, is to accompany Lieutenant Peary. It leaves early in July and remains away all summer, probably going as far north as Cape York, visiting various points on the coast of Newfoundland, Greenland and Baffin's Land and Labrador.

The Cornell party will spend six weeks in camp near Cape York studying the immense glaciers of that part of Greenland. Not only will important studies be made, but collections of great value will no doubt be brought back to the university.

The party will be made up in a few days. It goes under the direction of Professor Sair, but although its main object is geological research, it is expected that other natural history subjects will receive attention.
