Ropes and Belt Pulleys.

Experiments made with ropes and belts by M. Faugier and published in the proceedings of the Societe des Ingenieurs Civils show that with a smooth rimmed pulley running on carefully prepared bearings he determined the weight required to maintain a constant speed of rotation when attached alternately to loaded belts and loaded ropes passing around the rim. The added effect of the grooves of a rope pulley was ascertained by measuring the moment of resistance due to the sticking of the rope in the groove. Pulleys of three different diameters were tried. From the results he derives a formula by which the loss of power due to the stiffness of ropes and belts may be calculated, the conclusion being that ropes gearing against from 1 1/4 to 2 times the total power that is lost in belt gearing.

The Age of Trout Trout.

How long will trout trout live is a question one often hears discussed. A Dexter gentleman, now middle aged, says that when he was quite a small boy he caught three trout trout and put them in his father's well. Two of them were probably sacrificed before a very long time to the cannibalistic propensities of their mate, but the latter continued to live and thrive in that well until last summer, when he died, probably of old age. The gentleman is unable to fix the exact length of time, but he thinks the trout must have been "well on" to 20 years old. -Lawiston Journal.

Wound at Presidential Corners.

Some one tried to puzzle the Chicago postoffice people. He directed a letter to "John James, Presidential Corners, Chicago."

The letter was hung up in the city division for half an hour. A carrier who lives on the North Side picked it up and said: "Try that at the crossing of Lincoln, Garfield and Cleveland avenues." The letter was sent there and the address found.

"We are plagued with a number of these puzzles, perpetrated by local wags," said Secretary Cahill, "but we generally solve them." -Chicago News.
