

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Could Hardly Believe It.

LA SALLE, Ill., August, 1898.

My wife was so afflicted by nervousness for two years that she had to lay in bed nearly all the time. She had a good appetite and slept well. She was so weak that she could not walk, and she took care of her child. People could hardly believe that three bottles of Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic did it.

Y. A. DUBOIS.

Mr. V. Lewis, of 75 Miro St., New Orleans, writes that Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic is the best sleep-producer of all that he tried during his life.

Godsend.

VERMILION, O., August, 1898.

I was treated during seven years by good physicians for cramps, but of no avail, since March I took Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic and had no more attacks. I believe that such a remedy is worth its cost.

Mrs. George A. Wright and son, Charles B., are visiting friends in Auburn.

The people of Clyde are having considerable excitement over the fact that now and then different farmers are being held up by highway robbers. On Monday night last at Patrick Betts and Allan Sly were returning home a single horse and buggy they were attacked by a band of highway robbers who sprang into the road and brought the horse to a stop. One held the horse by the bridle while the others dragged Betts and Sly from the wagon, who were dazed by the blows which they received from their assailants. They then jumped into the wagon and whipping the horse, drove north. The case is being investigated, but as yet no clue has been obtained to the stolen property.

After the ceremony the relatives of the happy couple partook of a wedding dinner at their new home on Jay street.

St. Francis Dramatic society are preparing for a fair and festival to be held on Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 25th. Special efforts are being made this year to render the entertainment more attractive than ever before. The local talent will be assisted by well known artists from Rochester and Syracuse. Madame Marie Sullivan Barry of Syracuse, the leading contralto singer of Central New York, will render some choice vocal selections. Miss Katharine Haines, the talented accompanist of Rochester, and Miss Lillian Barnes, whose mandolin selections were so favorably received last year, will also assist in the entertainment. The part of the programme to be furnished by local talent will be very acceptable. There will be vocal solos by Miss Alice Brophy and Miss Nellie Connor; a catching refrain from the Sings opera, and two chorus songs will be presented by the children. A laughable farce will also be presented, which we are assured will be very much enjoyed. After the entertainment there will be a ball.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Statement of the Department of Agriculture for November.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The returns to the department of agriculture for the month of November make the average rates of yield of corn 37.3 bushels, which is above the yield indicated by the figures in October. Last year the preliminary estimate of yield was 26.2 bushels. The rates of yield in the large and principal corn states are as follows:

New York, 31.7; Pennsylvania, 37.1; Ohio, 39.9; Michigan, 37.0; Indiana, 32.4; Illinois, 40.4; Wisconsin, 33.0; Minnesota, 30.6; Iowa, 37.7; Missouri, 30.8; Kansas, 31.1; Nebraska, 37.3.

The average yield of buckwheat is 137 bushels per acre against 301 bushels per acre and 161 for the year 1898. The average yield per acre of potatoes is 80.8 bushels, which though not phenomenal, is nevertheless above the average for the past 10 years.

The average yield of hay as indicated by the preliminary returns is 1.38 tons against 1.06 last year. The average yield of tobacco is 679 pounds per acre against 748 pounds last year and 733 pounds in the year 1894.

The European agent notes the lack of trustworthy estimates of the Russian wheat shortage. The advance in price, which is expected to be fairly maintained, will result in increased acreage in Great Britain.

Wet weather in October throughout Central Europe was unfavorable for the potato crop. A good corn yield has been realized on the lower Danube.

"Stripes" Has No Friends in the Jungle.

Birds and monkeys will often warn the jungler of the approach of a tiger; the latter especially take every opportunity to express by loud howlings the intensity of their feelings at the hated presence of either of the dread beings of their jungles. I have heard, too, that peculiar bark of the sambar stag sound again and again in the night air from out the dark jungles on the banks of the Nerubudda as he sends out a warning to his kind that murderous "stripes" is stalking near.—"Panther Shooting in Central India," by Captain C. J. Mallis, in Scribner's.

Warriors Grow Flippant.

The two old soldiers, who had fought on opposite sides at the battle of Mission Ridge, had met by chance and were strolling over the battleground and exchanging experiences.

"This reminds me," said the Yank, casually picking up a nut that lay at the root of a tree and boring a hole into it with his knife, "that I was down here once before cracking out colonels."

"That's all right," responded the Johnny Reb, stooping to pick up a fragment of rusty iron and shaking his head grimly, "but you played a shell game on them."

Whereupon one of the grizzled warriors produced a canteen from his hip pocket, and both took a round shot at the grape.—Chicago Tribune.

CURRENT MISCELLANY.

Dr. Wyman, at a recent meeting of the Birmingham (England) Society of Natural History, stated that he had examined chrysalides of the common mud wasp and found that they were not frozen during the very coldest weather.

On the morning of Feb. 17, 1896, when the temperature of the atmosphere was 28 degrees below the freezing mark, he found that such chrysalides were unfrozen, and they were soft and pliable.

Furthermore, he found that when they were removed from their pupa cases they made very obvious muscular motions. The pupa presented its usual transparency and flexibility. When these "grubs" were crushed, the fluids of their bodies instantly became opaque and congealed just as water would have done in such an atmosphere.

The question naturally presents itself: From whence and how do such almost inanimate specimens of life get the supply of heat which enables them to resist such a degree of cold without injury or without becoming rigid? The only non-conductors surrounding them are the coating of mud (about one-fourth of an inch in thickness) and a thin, tightly woven covering of silky texture. What it is that enables such apparently lifeless organisms to withstand cold weather without freezing is a mystery which the entomologists have not explained.—St. Louis Republic.

Walking Stick Flutes.

Walking cane flutes are made by fitting into one end of a flute handle and into the other a length with a ferrule attached to form the lower end of the cane. There are also made violins in the form of walking canes. The cane is a shell. The violin bow is carried inside the cane and may be got at by unscrewing the head of the cane. Screwed on again, the head forms a rest. A part of one side of the cane may be removed, revealing the strings. The bridge, lying flat when the cane is closed, is set up when the violin is to be brought into use. The pegs upon which the strings are wound may be turned in tuning with a key that is carried in the cane. The tone of the walking cane violin is like that of an ordinary violin.

These walking cane instruments are musical novelties, sold to people who want something out of the ordinary and curious. They are also used for practice.

An old lady in Brussels, who recently celebrated her one hundredth birthday, relates that when Napoleon passed through her native village of Iunay, in 1810, a peasant having fallen on his knees to ask a favor, the emperor said, "Get up and never kneel except to God."

The Japanese, in order to celebrate their recent victories, are going to erect a gigantic statue of Buddha. The height will be 135 feet. The metal will be supplied from the ordnance captured in the late war. The monument will cost about 1,000,000 yen and is to be erected at Kioto.
