CURRENT MISCELLANY.

Walter Savage Landor's adventure at Oxford consisted in firing a gun at the widow of an inefficient undergraduate, and, refusing to confess that he had done so, he has rusticated and quarrelled with his father, who made him a small allowance.

The branch was then treated to some very fine vocal selections by Mr. Con. O'Brien. President of the finance committee, Bro. John Lenahan was the next speaker.

Brother Lenahan, in responding, spoke of the great care members should take in seeing that assessments were promptly paid within the time given.

Brother H. T. McGoughen was called upon, and in response said that it was with pleasure that he could state that after a careful investigation of insurance, he could say that no company or assessment organization was on a better footing, or worked on so conservative a basis as the C. M. B. A., and he could with pride look up to the associations, and recommend it as being the cheapest and best insurance for our Catholic people.

After some finely rendered vocal solos by Brother George White, which were highly enjoyed, a motion that a vote of thanks be tendered to the committee, George M. Legler, A. J. Young, George F. Poinan, Stephen Boyle, D. M. Sullivan, F. G. Carberry, W. T. Connor, the banquet adjourned.

The funeral of Cor. Curtin, of 152 Cady street, who was killed at East Rochester on January 29th, was held February 1st, at Immaculate Conception Church, at 9 a. m.

Mr. Curtin was a charter member of branch 12, C. M. B. A., and at the time of his death a valued member of branch 93. The bearers at the funeral were the following members of branch 93: M. Tobin, B. V. Logan, D. Harris, E. T. Burke, M. Lynch, and D. H. Sullivan.

A regular meeting of Branch 93 of the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: Whereas, We are again called upon to mourn the loss of a dear member of our branch, this time our beloved friend and esteemed member, Brother Curtin, and

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in His divine power and wisdom, to remove from our midst Brother Cornelius Curtin, we bow in humble submission to His holy will. And while it pleases God to allow us to remain in this world of sorrow and pain, we will remember our associate who mingled with us at our meetings. And at prayers for our departed members we will pray that his soul may rest in peace.

Resolved, That our sincere sympathy be extended to the wife and family of our late associate in their loss of a good husband and kind father, and that we respectfully commend them in their grief and sorrow to God, who knoweth all things and who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That in token of our sorrow at the death of our esteemed associate, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, for the period of thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and published in the CATHOLIC JOURNAL.

AMUSEMENTS.

A remarkably fine scenic production has been given by Thomas H. Davis and William T. Keogh to the latest new play, "Fallen Among Thieves," which comes to Cook's the first half of next week.

Ascene, an old home-staid Vermont and picture-quest places in New York city that have not been touched before by the dramatist from real life. One especially interesting scene being a magnificent view of High Bridge by moonlight. A female diver makes a terrific head-dive, plunging fifty feet from the top of the stage into a river of real water, and madden ally noks her neck in doing so.

Probably the truest picture of Southern life ever presented on the stage is Harry Merrill's "South Before the War," which will occupy the stage of the Cook Opera House the latter part of next week. It is thoroughly realistic, and should be enjoyed by all who delight in the old southern plantation dramas. The play is presented with the strong cast of capable players, and during its action a host of specialties are introduced.

Manager Cook announces as his next attraction the starting sensational melodrama "Kidnaped," a play that has achieved great success in New York City and around the country. The play is of decided merit, replete with startling climaxes, pathos and humor. While the story of the play may be an old one, it is told in a new and attractive way. It deals with the love of two faithful hearts whose constancy to one another in spite of the numerous pitfalls and snares set in order to separate them, by a villain of bad machinations, excites the pity and sympathy of all.

It seems to be the avowed determination of the patrons of Wonderland, as shown by the continued patronage to make the Cinematograph a permanent feature of Manager Moore's Theatre, and while it will be impossible to keep the Cinematograph forever, the recent breaking up of an immense light theatre gives all of next week, commencing Monday, Feb. 15th.

The olio will consist of five acts, introducing the cosmopolitan Trio in a refined and original up-to-date comedy. Creation, interspersed with character imitations, bright repartee and musical gems, Deets and Don character songs and eccentric dances. Coby and Wray, Antiquological novelty sketch, M. H. Alberta, Queen of the Bouncing Light wire and the Romo Bros. acrobats and head balancers. This all star vaudeville performance in connection with the splendid views to be shown by the Cinematograph, will no doubt pack the cozy little theatre at every performance.

100 Howard, 100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken inwardly, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

A family, consisting of man and wife and four or five small children, were riding along in a wagon loaded with household goods, when an old fellow ran to the door of his cabin and shouted at them:

"Hello, Sam! What be you folks a-gittin' to?"

"We're a-gittin' out of the kentry," replied the man on the wagon as he halted his horse.

"What are you a-gittin' to?" "Gittin' 'cause the vigilance committee told us to git."

"What's your two boys, that they ain't a-gittin' with you?" "They got pisened afore they could git."

"Do you mean pisened by a snake bite?" "No; lead. They was a-gittin' too many good horses and got shot."

"Waal, 's long, Sam," called the old fellow in the doorway, "Sorry to see you a-gittin', but reckon you gottes git."

"S'long," answered the other, and gathering up the lines he shouted to his horse:

"Git right up thar, darn your ole hide, 'cause we gottes be a-gittin' a git on us and git into the next county as fast as we kin git!"

And they got.—New York Journal.

Knights of Columbus.

Several members of the Rochester council attended a preliminary meeting in Auburn last Sunday for the purpose of organizing a council in that city. It is expected that the new council will be ready for installation by March 7th.

Last week Wednesday a varied entertainment was given at the rooms of the local council, and Rev. Father Hickey of the State Industrial school delivered his famous stereopticon lecture entitled "Ancient and Modern Rome."

Grand Knight James L. Whalen was elected state treasurer at the recent convention held in New York city.

The title "excellent grace" was given to Henry VI, "most high and mighty prince" to Edward IV and "highness" to Henry VII. The latter was also applied to Henry VIII, until, toward the close of his reign, the more lofty expression of "majesty" came into use, being the expression with which Francis I addressed him at their interview in 1520.

At the public library at Macon there is a barometer made simply of a thin strip of cedar and a thin strip of white pine placed together and stuck particularly in a base rest of wood. When it is going to rain, the strips bend down, and when it is to be dry they stand rigidly at right angles. It is said to indicate coming storms unfaillingly.

Strangely enough, in the city of Havana every day the little, vile-smelling cigars, which only a cat is that they are made of pure and unadulterated tobacco. The few exceptions are among the women and boys, most of whom, especially the old women who loiter in the public squares, puff incessantly at cigars which sell at five or six for a halfpenny.

My first acquaintance with the barometer was made one sultry afternoon off the Mexican coast, near Guaymas. I went out with new tarpon tackle and an indent paper to see to what live stock I could make fast. The first mule I lost before there came two free yanks and a whizz, and I venture to have made it to the bottom of Honolulu. I looked inquiringly at the prospector, who would have taken but a languid interest in any phenomenon short of a bolt of lightning striking down his spine, and asked him to name me that which had yanked, whizzed and vanished. He shrugged his shoulders, rolled a cigarette and said that he "didn't know" but that it was a barometer, but "didn't know" I had on another line and cast again. This time there was but one yank and a whizz. I tried to check the process by braking with a dumb stall, with the sole result that, in addition to losing my line, I lost my rod and reeled a rather blistering in the fall of my mule, which I got unannually deep in the reef and tangled my heels. Inevitably painful though it may be, I have gained nothing from the process, and he "didn't know" as he had said.—Outing.

The Big Hat in Church. This is what happened to the man behind the hat. The preacher appears to be in a rather peculiar state of mind. He is in the habit of saying, "And with the hat on my head, I look at the spot where you are, and the modulation of sentences is against it, how is attention to be shown by the mind? The mind grows hot, the heat and sweetness of the society tend to distraction, but the hat, the whole visible universe, and involuntarily one's thoughts center upon it. It is a wonderful construction, there is a howling tremble in a long time with every movement of the head, and one begins to wonder at the extent of it. There is a hat in the house, exposed, apparently, to the view of the people, and might be regarded as a thing that would have a way to, that is turned. And there are stalwarts of ribbon, upright and immovable, which still further obscure the horizon. Occasionally one gets a momentary glimpse of the head of the preacher as it is stretched out in gestulation, but it seems a mere detached fragment uselessly beating the air. The preacher himself has disappeared as if he had never been. The only thing visible is another hat of the same kind farther on.—Observer.
