Thomas McCaffery, a young man of this place, was nominated at the Democratic caucus held last Saturday at North Greece for collector of taxes for this town. Mr. McCaffery was born in Charlotte about 21 years ago, and moved with his parents to Mt. Read in 1889. He attended Charlotte Union school and last winter completed his studies at the Rochester Business University. He is agent for the Hartford Life Insurance company in this town and is well and favorably known. Mr. McCaffery was not present when nominated, and his selection was a surprise to him. His name was suggested by a friend and his election made unanimous. Through an unfortunate accident that happened to him when he sustained a fracture of the right knee, the use of which he never fully recovered, and is consequently lame; in this affliction he will have the sympathy of all who know him, and will have their support on election day. His opponent on the republican ticket is M. R. Wilder of Charlotte, who owned the same office last spring but was defeated by William T. Wheelan of this place, and who through the columns of the Democrat and Chronicle accused Mr. Wheelan of raising a religious issue to bring about his defeat, because he (Wilder) was foreman of the jury that acquitted Edgar Chatfield, a confessed A. P. A., charged with murdering Dominick Kearns (a Catholic, in a barroom fight in the spring of 1895). The article further accused Mr. Wheelan of soliciting the aid of the faculty of St. Bernard's seminary, and declared that sixty priests went to the polls and voted, when in reality only three cast their ballots. The friends of Mr. Wheelan have not forgotten these false accusations, and will do all in their power to secure the election of McCaffery.
