FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

A Cure in Germany!
 For 10 long years I suffered from falling sickness, tried many physicians and medicines during that time, but the illness increased and came on me every few hours, until I took Father Koening's Nerve Tonic only a few days; then the sickness disappeared and this is now almost a year since then I am quite well and can attend to my business again.

We clip the following from the Charleston, S. C. News and Courier, which will be of interest to our Danville readers: The Rev. Father Budds celebrated High Mass at the Pio Cathedral yesterday. He was assisted in the mass by the Rev. James T. Dougherty, as deacon, and Father Duffy as sub-deacon. Father Budds is now engaged in his holy work in Greenville, and his visits to Charleston are few and far between. Nevertheless when he does visit, his voice is heard from the altar chanting the mass, there are always hundreds of Catholics in Charleston who experience gladness at the sound of Father Budds' as a young priest, but in his work he is daily accumulating a store of knowledge and a reputation for devoutness, that is making his name become more familiar in every part of the state. His friends are legion and especially among the poor, he is greatly beloved and venerated for his noble qualities. Father Dougherty is from Danville, and has many friends in the city, he is a gentleman of the clergy with charming personality—he preached a sermon yesterday on the gospel for Septuagesima Sunday, of exceptional interest.

 Under the auspices of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick the popular young divine, Rev. Dr. Nolan, lectured last week Friday night at Library Hall upon "The Catacombs of Rome." It was the first public address that he had delivered in his native city. It was fine in every way. The subject was naturally very interesting, for the world has nothing like the buried cities of the Roman dead of other years. It is one of the great city's peculiar and original characteristics. Dr. Nolan knew his subject well. His audience was profoundly interested and, at its close he was warmly congratulated by his many old friends as well as by new ones. We hope to have him soon again upon another subject.

 A Great Physician's Triumph Over Disease Gains For Him Great Renown.

Practical Results of the Honorable Career of Rochester's Most Distinguished Specialist

The reputation of a medical man among his patients is founded on the cures he has wrought, and on the promises of relief from diseases which he has fulfilled. Upon the broad foundation there is probably no another doctor in this State, and but few in the entire land, whose reputation can compare with that of this city's foremost specialist, Dr. J. W. Grady. He began his professional career many years ago, and ever at the commencement he was better qualified to cure diseases than many physicians with years of experience were, so thoroughly had he studied and mastered the science of medicine, and so generously had nature endowed him with those peculiar gifts and talents that are the indispensable attribute of all men who would do and achieve fame in the medical world.

Endowed as he is with great energy of character, he began early in his career to investigate fields of medical study, into which research had never before been made with any degree of thoroughness. His experiments and investigations were of a most exhaustive nature, and as a result he has been able to treat with remarkable success diseases to which he has given special attention. Dr. Grady is here to stay. He is permanently located for life. For the past two years he has been daily consulted at his same office, No. 16 State street. The doctor also practiced his profession previous to this on Alexander street in this city, where he had at that time his office and residence. During that time he has treated thousands of patients not only of this city, but from all over the land, and in no instance has he ever failed to speedily relieve and permanently cure any curable disease. His success is attested by his grateful patients, whose unsolicited testimonials tell in eloquent language of cures little less than miraculous that have been wrought by this shining light in the medical world. To him honor is due for his marvelous skill, which has enabled him to triumph over disease and which has brought to him a renown that but few achieve in life, and yet it is fame well earned and well deserved.
