DUBLIN.

Sealed agreements have been exchanged between the Dublin United Tramways Company and the Rathmines Commissioners, in reference to the bill which the Company are now promoting in Parliament, by which all matters in controversy are settled. The Commissioners will have power, after forty days, to purchase all the tramways in the township, their then value, with 30 per cent. added. The Company will have the consent of the Commissioners to use electric power on all the lines sought to be made by the bill. When the electric power is in full operation in the township there will be a complete revision of fares in favor of the public.

Lady Cadogan has made a new departure from the practice of the wives of former Irish Viceroys, which was only to appear in public in semi-regal attire. Lady Cadogan, with her attendants with her state equipage, with all its pomp and circumstance of officers, and walks through the streets of Dublin, attended only by one of the ladies of the entourage, and apparently quite unrecognised. Lady Cadogan, is an early riser, a famous horsewoman, of active habits and great energy, and thinks nothing of walking from the Vice-Regal Lodge in the Phoenix Park to the Castle, a distance of upwards of two miles.

The conference of the committees of the Dublin Corporation with the representatives of the Mercantile Association and Messrs. Guinness & Co., on the subject of the Port and Docks Bill, has proved abortive, so far as securing a general agreement among the "opponents" of the bill is concerned. The Mercantile Association and Messrs. Guinness are opposed to any concession on the question of port dues. The Corporation favor a slight concession, on condition of a reform of the Board, which the Tory element do not favor.

On the conclusion of the business at the meeting of the Kingstown Commissioners last Monday, the Chairman, Mr. A. S. Pindler, presented Mr. Edward Kelly, assistant Town Clerk, with a purse of sovereigns, subscribed by the Commissioners and officers of the township, on the occasion of his marriage, as a mark of esteem from the members of the board and the township officers.

The Irish Tory M. P.'s have adopted a resolution to oppose the Educational Endowment Bill introduced by Mr. T. M. Healy, which only asked that Catholic Schools should share in such endowments equally with Protestant institutions, which now apply the funds to the education of the favored children of wealthy parents.

Mr. Michael Austin, M. P., having found that, by an act of George III, a register ought to be kept of the members of the Masonic Society in Ireland, will accordingly ask the Chief Secretary whether the list for the different counties is sent annually to the Clerk of the Peace, and if so, whether it is open for inspection.

There was a slight decrease in the death rate in Dublin for the week ending February 27. The deaths, which are forty-six over the average for the corresponding week of the last ten years, represent an annual rate of mortality of 37.6 in every 1,000 of the population.

Mr. T. M. Harrington, M. P., acknowledged the receipt of £20 from Miss Grace the Archbishop of Dublin for the relief of the Parnell family, whom Mr. Harrington, in a published letter, declared to be in actual want.

It is announced that Lord Iveagh (Guinness, the brewer), has given £12,500 to the Dublin Diamond Jubilee Commemoration Fund, for providing trained nurses for the Irish poor, and the same amount to the Prince of Wales' Hospital Fund for London.

On the evening of March 14, a number of friends of Mr. J. F. O'Hea, the distinguished Irish artist, entertained him at supper, in the Hotel Metropole. Sir Charles Cameron presided.

WICKLOW.

Bray is determined to take the place which its natural advantages entitle it among the foremost and the most fashionable of the watering places of the Three Kingdoms. The schemes for the proposed pier and electric tramway are under consideration and arrangements to make Bray the terminus of a line of steamers to Dublin and to the Isle of Man are being discussed.

The Blessington and Poulaphuca Steam Tramway Company are pushing forward their scheme of railway, from the former place to Rathdrum, with unabated vigor. Applications will be made to the Grand Jurors of Wicklow and Kildare for power to give them a guarantee for the payment of dividends of £5,000.

The Lord Chancellor has appointed Mr. Edward Watson, of Duncairn Terrace, Bray, to the Commission of the Peace for the County of Wicklow.

KILDARE.

On the 21st inst. in the parish of St. Mary's, the marriage of Miss Catherine M. Edwards, of the Army Service Corps, Dublin, was celebrated.

WEXFORD.
The impressive ceremony of a religious reception took place in the beautiful church of the Sisters of Mercy, Wexford, one day early in March. The Sister who had the honor of pronouncing the vows was Miss Murphy, of Milltown, in religion Sister M. Mechilidis Joseph. The Most Rev. Bishop of Ferns, assisted by Very Rev. N. T. Sheridan, president of St. Peter's college, celebrated the Mass of Profession and performed the ceremony.

We regret to learn that Rev. John Doyle, P. P. of Newbawn, lies seriously ill from the effects of an apoplectic seizure. He was attended by Dr. Cardiff, who, said Dr. Sheridan in consultation with Dr. Doyle's condition had become so serious that he was prepared for death. His brother, Rev. Luke Doyle, P. P. Taggart, has been at his bedside since his illness; and Sisters from one of the New Ross communities have been taking care of him.

It now appears that the murderer of John Kelly, of Kilkenny, added robbery to his other crime, as a box in Kelly's bedroom which contained his little savings, was broken open and the contents carried off. The only other inmate of the house was the murdered man's mother, a bedridden old woman of 86 years, who could give no account of the tragedy.

Another of the Luggacurran "planters," named Stevenson, has sold out his farm, which has been purchased on behalf of the old tenant, Denis Shalloon, for £150. It is stated that other "planters" are also anxious to dispose of their farms.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.
The sale of the Earl of Portarlington's estate in the baronies of Stradbally and Portarlington, Queen's County and Kilkenny, County Tipperary, has been effected, on terms that are understood to be satisfactory to the contracting parties. The only other estate which now only await the formal sanction of the Landed Estates Court. The transactions is the largest of its kind that has taken place within recent years, having regard to the extent and value of the towns, town parks, and agricultural land that has changed ownership; in all 7,862 acres of land and 37 perches are disposed of, this acreage being almost one-half of the entire of Lord Portarlington's Irish estates. The terms in the agreement with the tenants were either 19 years' purchase with a half year's rent paid down, or 19 years' purchase, with nothing to pay at the start. The Land Commission will advance the money at 4 1/2 per cent. on the amount agreed upon as the purchase money.

KILKENNY.
The death is announced at Coolgrange, Kilkenny, of Bridget Hofferan, aunt of Bridget and Martin Morrissey, after a long and tedious illness. Her interment took place on the following Sunday at the family burying place, Thornback.

On March 2, at Mohobery, Ballingarry, Mrs. Johanna Fennelly, relict of the late Mr. Patrick Fennelly, died, aged 78 years.

KING'S COUNTY.
Intelligence was recently received, in Brr, of the murder, in Birmuda, of Mrs. Margaret Mary McCarthy, wife of Color Sergeant McCarthy, of the First Battalion, Leinster Regiment. The circumstances of the tragedy are, so far as they are at present revealed, peculiarly sad. Mrs. McCarthy was a native of Brr, where her parents are most respectable people, her father, Mr. Henry Price, being the garrison boot and shoe provider. She was well educated in the convent schools, and, about five years ago, when scarcely out of her teens, married Color Sergeant McCarthy who is now accused of her murder. She was a strikingly handsome young woman, with a commanding figure, bore the highest character, and was a favorite in the circles in which she moved. Somewhere years ago the pair moved from Brr to join the regiment at Aldershot, and more recently to Bermuda. Mrs. McCarthy's brother, who is in the same regiment, was the first to communicate the news of the tragedy to his parents.

At the King's County Assizes, in Tullamore, on March 9, before Justice Andrews and a common jury, the trial took place of Jane Frances Kerrigan, of Dromond, County Leitrim, and Bridget Murray, of Dundernell, County Roscommon, who were indicted, at the prosecution of the Postmaster-General, for conspiracy to defraud the Postoffice of diverse sums of money, amounting to £4,000, in the months of January and February, 1896, and on other occasions specified. Both girls pleaded not guilty. The court was densely crowded during the hearing of the case, which resulted in the acquittal of both the prisoners.

Several tenants on the Connolly estate (which is in Chancery), in Cluna, Tullamore, have decided to apply for purchase of their holdings, and have instructed Messrs. Hoey & Denning, Tullamore, to act for them. Fifteen tenants on the Turraun division of the estate of Sir E. F. Armstrong, and forty tenants on the Coolnahinch, Galien, Tulek, and Macken portions of the estate, are also applying for the purchase of their holdings, under the 40th section of the Land Act.

A daring burglary was committed in Tullamore, on the night of Tuesday last, when the offices of Messrs. Hoey & Denning, solicitors, were entered, and a sum of money amounting to £255, the property of Mr. Anthony W. Dowling, was abstracted. A small sum of money belonging to the firm was also taken away.

WESTMEATH.

In Mullingar, the Spring Assizes for Westmeath, were opened last week Monday. Justice Murphy, sitting in the Criminal Court and Justice Holmes in the Record Court. Only one criminal case went before a jury. In this, a man named Wilson was charged with larceny of money. The case was tried at a previous assize, when the jury disagreed, and the prisoner was put back to the next assizes.

There was scarcely any business in the Record Court, and the whole assizes wound up in about two hours.

LONGFORD.

The Spring Assizes for Longford county were opened on March 9th. Justice Holmes sat in the Criminal Court, and Justice Murphy in the Record Court. Justice Holmes, in his address to the grand jury, said he was glad to be able to say that there was only one bill to go before them.

In the Record Court there were 26 appeals disposed of.

Joseph Fallon, a respectable looking man about 60 years of age, was convicted of having destroyed telegrams at Newtownforbes, on the 1st January last. The prisoner was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

MEATH.

A bricklayer named Arthur Hughes, who spoke with an English accent, was found guilty on a charge of bigamy, that, on the 2nd of August, 1875, he married a girl named Mary Anne Jones, in Wellington Church, Stoke-on-Trent, England, and that on the 12th of November last, he married one Margaret Neill in the Catholic Church, at Kingscourt, in the County of Cavan. He was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labor.

The Spring Assizes for the County Meath were opened in Trim, on March 1st, by Justice Barry, who was accompanied by Justice O'Connell. They were received at the railway station by Mr. G. V. Briscoe, County High Sheriff, and Mr. L. W. C. Sub Sheriff. Justice Barry presided in the Crown Court, and Justice Gibson dealt with the civil business.

Joseph Williams, of Grange, was charged with the manslaughter on the 24th of February, of a young lad named Patrick Brady, whom he accidentally shot while firing at a blackbird. The jury disagreed, and were discharged, and the accused was admitted to bail in his own recognizances, to attend at the next assizes.

LOUTH.

The case of the Crown against Marrow and Manning were heard in the Queen's Bench, Dublin, on Thursday of last week, when the prisoners were let out on their own recognizances, and the prosecution of the case was discontinued. On their return to Ardee, a tremendous demonstration took place. The local fire and drum band met the accused, and a torch procession, in which at least a thousand persons joined, passed through the streets of the town.

On the night of a recent date in Drogheda, a respectable old man, named John Johnson, employed as a mill-man at Mr. Terman's extensive corn mill, was knocked down by a runaway horse, as he was returning home, and received such serious injuries that he died a few days later.

Mr. Michael J. Klerans, of Drogheda, has been sworn in a Solicitor of the High Court of Justice in Ireland. Mr. Klerans, who served his apprenticeship party with Mr. J. H. McCann and party with Mr. H. J. Verdon, of Drogheda, will practice in partnership with Mr. Verdon.

Nicholas Magrane, Esq. of Burrow House, Dunlough, has been appointed a Magistrate for the County Louth.

MUNSTER.

CORK.
We regret to have to announce the death, of Mr. Robert Walsh, of Cloyne, at the early age of 45 years, leaving a wife and a large young family to mourn his loss. Mr. Walsh was a staunch Nationalist, and was only in his teens he took part in the 67th movement, and again, in the days of the Land League, he was one of the first to start a branch in his native town. Kind, gentle and considerate to the poor, for whom he worked fearlessly, honestly, and above board, for the last fourteen years, being a member of the Middleton Board of Guardians, as well as Secretary of the Cloyne Dispensary Committee, his death is universally regretted. His funeral, was largely attended by all classes and creeds, some of whom came long distances to pay a last tribute to a good man's memory. May he rest in peace.

A shocking fatality occurred at Knockmore, near Carrigaline, one day last week, by which a respectable young man named Benjamin Shawk, Wilson, aged 26, lost his life. The deceased was the son of an extensive farmer, was found dead in an outhouse, with a double-barrelled gun, from which two cartridges had been discharged, lying close by. The entire left portion of the face and the vessels of the neck were blown to pieces. The nature of the wound and the position in which the gun was found showed that, as deceased was descending from the loft where the guns were kept, he must have slipped and fallen, and the gun was discharged through concussion, with the result stated.

A fearful accident occurred on board the English yardship Howe, of the fleet at Queenstown, on Tuesday of last week by the explosion of a gun generated in one of the coal bunkers, which the stokers were "trimming" at the time. Two of the men, Daniel Yates, of Deconport, the leading stoker, and an ordinary stoker named Patrick Cotter, were severely injured. Cotter, who was a native of a small village near Ballinacurra, Middleton, died and his body was interred in the old church graveyard, Queenstown, with naval honors.

KERRY.

The dead body of a man, who was identified as Tim O'Connor, a cottier, was found in a bog, near the village of Cremorne, about five miles from Killorglin, one week ago last Wednesday. When discovered, the unfortunate man's body was minus coat and boots, and lay near the bank of a stream, no more than a quarter of a mile from his residence. He had been attending the market in Killorglin, on his return from which he had gone to a wedding party in his neighborhood, where he spent the night convivially, and was returning home at a late hour. It is supposed that he directed his steps toward the stream, which is ordinarily fordable, but having been swollen by the tempestuous weather, he had divested himself of part of his clothing, and succumbed to the effects of drowning and exposure, in attempting to cross.

At the Convent of Mercy, Ballinacorney, Sister Mary De Sales (Miss Galvin), died after a lingering illness. Deceased entered the Convent of Mercy, Tralee, in 1867, and her thirty years of convent life were characterized by zealous devotion to her sacred duties, and her life will be sorely felt in the sisterhood. LIMERICK.

The Very Rev. Michael Moriarty, Dean of Rochdale, England, was accidentally killed at Nice, on February 28. The reverend gentleman was a native of Grange, Bally, and was aged about 67 years. He was brother to Dr. Moriarty, Cork, and uncle to Mr. M. A. Moriarty, solicitor, Malin, and Mr. J. F. Moriarty, B. L. Dublin. The deceased went recently to Nice for the benefit of his health, and on the above date, when crossing a street, he was knocked down by a tram-car. He was conveyed to his hotel, where he died two hours afterwards. His remains were taken from there to the parish church, Rochdale, and thence were removed to the family burial place, Grange.

On the evening of a recent date, a savage assault was committed on Alderman Hall, of Limerick. He had been unwell for some weeks, and one Joseph O'Farrell, aged about 27, called and said he desired to see him. On Alderman Hall appearing O'Farrell suddenly attacked him, knocked him down, and expressed his resolve of having revenge. An Alderman Hall's treatment of his O'Farrell's father, when governor of the Limerick City Prison some years back at which time Mr. Hall was local inspector of prisons. It was with the greatest difficulty Mr. Hall's son and others eventually overpowered O'Farrell, who is believed to be insane.

The evicted tenants on the Knight of Glin's estate, availing themselves of the late Land Act, applied to the Land Commission to be reinstated; but the Commission, in cases refused to join in their application, O'Farrell's father has given his land back to one of them, Patrick Scanlan, of the townland of Kinnaird. The rent Scanlan was paying when evicted was £22, and he is getting the farm now for £16, but is precluded from entering the Land Court. Scanlan had been out for about twelve years.
