Three Trunks

Our "Acme" trunk will cost you from $5 to $7, according to size. It is the best trunk we can afford to make for the money—and we can afford to put pretty good value into it, for we manufacture in very large quantities. Come and see it if you're looking for a low-priced trunk.

Our "Special Trunk" will interest the people who are prepared to pay from $8 to $10 for a trunk. If we were simply retailers instead of makers and retailers, this trunk would be priced a third higher.

Our Canvas Flat-top Trunk at $2.50 never fails to surprise those who see it. It is strong and serviceable—more so than you'd think possible for the price. The more carefully you investigate the trunk business, the more clearly you will see that it pays to buy of the maker.

IN MEMORY OF MISS LULU A. KERNAN

I.
Again the Lord of Love and Light
Has called a dear one home;
She has departed from our sight,
Through the better land to roam.

II.
They who knew her loved her dearly,
For her life was one bright dream;
Holy angels called her early
To that life beyond the stream.

III.
In His arms she loved so well
She has been received at last;
There she now has gone to dwell,
And her suffering is past.

IV.
In that beautiful heavenly place
Where the Holy Angels tread,
Clothed with pure celestial grace,
She lives, whom we call dead.

AMUSEMENTS

COOK'S

Probably no play has been received during the last two seasons with such universal commendation as the Tennessee comedy, "A Romance of Coon Hollow." The play reveals magnificent scenery and effects, novel and unique electrical features, and carries a troupe of singing and dancing darlings. Two quartettes furnish its musical adjuncts, and a well selected dramatic company interprets its roles. All the scenery used is carried by the show, which is one of the largest on the road. "A Romance of Coon Hollow" is announced for the half of next week at Cook's.

ACADEMY

Manager Cook will introduce to the Academy patrons next week a star new to Rochester, the dainty little soubrette, May Smith Robbins, who has gained an enviable reputation during the past five years in the musical comedy, "Little Triske." It is one of those plays which have become so popular during the last decade under the name of musical comedies. There is a plot but not a complicated one, and it is simply the vehicle for the introduction of clever specialties on the part of nearly every member of the cast. The part written for Miss Robbins is of the protean order and one eminently fitted for that star who is a talented little lady and earns the frequent applause accorded her.

WONDERLAND THEATRE

Another splendid show has been booked for Wonderland all of next week, commencing Monday, April 26, headed by Lydia Rita, travesty queen and the most brilliant character vocalist on the American stage. Miss Rita comes highly recommended and has the unqualified endorsement of press and public. Her comedy and character work is alike refined and intelligent, and stamps her as a brilliant and competent artist. The other performers are of undoubted ability, and are as follows: Farrell and Farrell, champion cake walkers of the world; Will J. Denny, James H. Burton and his greatest dog circus on earth; Melville and Conway, an original musical farce, "A Regular Circus," and the California comedy couple, Charles B. Nelson and Mamie Midge, in their up-to-date creation entitled "Glass Put In."

THE POPE'S EXAMPLE

Archbishop Ireland Says It Must Be Followed by All Catholics.

In speaking recently of what should be the position of Catholics toward the age, Archbishop Ireland referred his hearers to the attitude of Pope Leo and urged all eloquently to emulate this high example.

"Leo," said he, "is the providential pontiff given to the church in this new era of humanity to show that the church is of all ages, as is her founder, Christ. Holding fast to the divine organization of the church and to principles of faith and morals, Leo recognizes the social and political changes which are coming upon humanity and adapts the human forms of the church to the new surroundings. He recognizes the wondrous discoveries and inventions of the age, and he blesses and encourages them, seeing in them the development of God's own creation. He blesses and encourages progress along all its legitimate lines. He extols movements tending to the higher elevation and the greater happiness of humanity.

"The encyclicals of the pope, especially on labor and that on the republic of France, prove him to be indeed the pontiff of the age. Catholics should follow the direction of their great leader and aid him in fulfilling the divine mission assigned to him, to dominate in the name of Christ and of Christ's faith this modern world and conquer it to religion.

"There are Catholics in every country who more or less consciously and effectively keep themselves aloof from Leo's leadership. They imagine they understand better than Leo does the situation of the church in this age. Wedded to contingent and perishable forms which they mistake for the absolute and the permanent, they would have the church and the world stand still. Thus in France today, despite Leo's repeated invitations to see in the republican form of government, which the people of the country have adopted, the representation of law and order and the legitimate government of the nation, certain Catholics cling to dead empires and monarchies and refuse to give peace to country and church. Well, in his late address, has Leo called such Catholics refractories or rebels. Be there in the future no refractories in America. There are, we must confess, divisions among Catholics in America—not indeed in matters of faith and morals, but in tendencies and movements and adaptations of action to modern circumstances and surroundings. There should be for us but one tendency and one movement, those indicated by the pope.

"Opposition to his direction, however much it clothes itself among us, as among French Catholics, with the specious titles of conservatism and traditionalism and religious fear of the new, is nothing but rebellion. Those who resist the direction given by the pope are refractories and rebels.

"It is asked sometimes, Are not Catholics divided on the lines of race? Not at all. I speak for myself, and in what I say I know I speak for all true Catholics and loyal followers of the pope. There is for me no race, no color and no language. I rise above all such accidental and recognize as my brethren all who work for God and truth. When French Catholics are with the pope, I am with them; when they are against the pope I am against them. My position is the same with German Catholics or Catholics of other races. If I differ from some of them, it is because of their ideas, not because of their race. It is well that this be understood. Efforts have been made to identify certain refractory tendencies with whole races. This is wrong. It is unjust to those races, the great numbers of which are most loyal to the pope, most ardent to follow his directions and to work with him. Some self constituted leaders are too willing to pose as representatives of races which they both misunderstand and misrepresent."
