IN MEMORY—MISS LULU A. KEENAN

"Oh, whither has her pure soul gone?"
"Oh, whither has our teacher gone?"
Beyond the realms of starry night,
To be told of God she taught aright,
To learn herself His love and might—
Her earthly labor done.

"But she was young to go away—
A helpful hand so soon away—
The ends of God are wondrous wise,
And all she taught will turn their eyes
To see her there above the skies,
And labor till it's done."

AMUSEMENTS.

WONDERLAND THEATRE.

At the close of the coming week Manager Moore will close his theatre for the season, and as a fitting finale to a most successful season he will present one of the best if not the best bill of attractions of the season, including Mrs. Alice J. Shaw and her beautiful twin daughters in their artistic whistling specialty. Mrs. Shaw has won a world wide reputation as a whistler, and her twin daughters are nearly as clever as their accomplished mother. Frank Latona, the musical tramp, and his funny donkey; Miss Annie Whitney, vocalist and monologist; Diana, the bewitching dancer; Emory and Nodine, comic sketch artists, and Sam and Klittle Morton, artistic dancers and comedians. It is a well known fact by the amusement loving public that during the past season Manager Moore has provided the best attractions to be had regardless of cost, and it will be the constant aim of the management to so conduct Wonderland next season that the large patronage of the past will be continued.

COOK'S

After being closed for three nights Cook Opera House will open Monday with Winslow and Wilson's sensational melodrama, "The Great Northwest." The following is a clipping from the New York World: "The show this week at this theatre is the great melodramatic production, 'The Great Northwest,' with its wealth of scenic splendor and electric and mechanical effects and superb cast, direct from the American Theatre, New York. As its title indicates, the play deals with life in the 'Great Northwest.' The heroine's 'swing for life' on the arm of the old windmill is a scene so startlingly daring and realistic that it would carry any play, but in this instance, it is but the climax of a single act. The blazing prairie and rescue on horseback is another thrilling episode. There is a vein of comedy running through every act. The company includes many sterling actors and Brooklyn favorites, and all the original New York cast."
