DUBLIN.

From the 1st of May the London and North Western Company's express service, to and from Ireland, or Holyhead and Dublin North Wall route, will be greatly improved. Passengers by the Day express train, which leaves Euston station, London, at 9.30 a. m., and Birmingham at 11.35 a. m., will reach Dublin an hour earlier than heretofore. In the reverse direction the day express steamer will leave Dublin at a quarter of an hour earlier than at present, and passengers will reach Euston an hour and a half earlier, and Birmingham fifty minutes earlier.

The management of the Great Southern and Western Railway have decided on these changes to take effect on and after the 1st of May. Third-class passengers will be carried by all trains except the down American mails, on Sundays and Thursdays, between Dublin and Queenstown. That means that there will be no third-class passenger rates on the "special postal" trains, between Dublin and Queenstown.

The London Daily Chronicle announces that Dr. Tanner, M. P., was received into the Roman Catholic Church, by one of the Servite Fathers, on Easter Sunday.

A meeting was held in the Mansion House, Dublin, recently, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, to consider the best means of making adequate provision for the Parnell family and to form a committee for that purpose. A sub-committee was appointed to draw up an address to the Irish people.

Near Booterstown, on the evening of a week ago Tuesday, a collision occurred on the electric tram line, resulting in the killing of a horse and injuring a brougham in which two nuns were traveling from Dublin to Blackrock. The nuns had a miraculous escape. A man named Lawrence Toole was bringing a load of timber from Bray to Dublin, and, while passing Willow terrace an electric tram car ran into his vehicle, with such force that the horse and dray swerved across the road, just as a brougham came along in the opposite direction. The shaft of the dray entered the side of the brougham horse, killing it on the spot. Two Sisters of Mercy, traveling from the Training college, Baginbun street, to Crayford street, where they were in the brougham, sustained a severe shock, and had to walk a long distance before they could procure a cab to convey them the remainder of the journey.

With sincere regret we record the death of Mr. W. Bradley, senior partner of the firm of Bradley & Sons, and one of the ablest, most successful and most respected solicitors of Dublin. Mr. Bradley died after a very brief illness, to the deep regret of not only his relatives, but of a wide circle of appreciative and affectionate friends.

On April 20th the members of the staff of the Great Northern railway Amiens street, Dublin, entertained to dinner, in the North Star Hotel, Mr. W. J. McAllister, on the occasion of his approaching departure for South Africa, where he has secured an important position on the Cape Government railways. A most enjoyable evening was spent, under the presidency of Mr. Cahill, who referred in felicitous terms to the appreciation in which Mr. McAllister was held by the entire staff. Mr. McAllister commenced his railway connection on the Belfast and County Down line, where he gained a thorough insight into all the various departments of railway business.

In Dublin, a corporation night-watchman named Garrett Dardis, aged 74 years, who was accidentally burned in Burgh Quay, died in Mercer hospital.

WICKLOW.

Mr. W. H. Jones, coroner for Wicklow, held an inquest at Glenashork, about a mile from Carnew, into the circumstances of the death of a man named Porter, of the farming class, who was only discharged from the Richmond Lunatic asylum only a few days ago. Evidence was given as to the finding of the deceased, in a barn or out house, suspended with a rope around his neck. A verdict that deceased had committed suicide while insane was returned. It may be mentioned that the father of the deceased had cut his throat about twenty-four years ago.

Mr. Edward Breslin, ex-chairman of Bray township commissioners, has resigned from that body, owing, as he says, to ill health, which precluded his attending to the official duties of the position. Mr. Breslin has been connected with the Township board for over forty years, and was caterer for the Dublin exhibition of 1853, started by William Dargan, the Irish railway king.

It is announced that Mr. Arthur Poljamba, Lord Hawksbury's son, is engaged to marry Miss Annette Monck, only daughter of Viscount Monck, of Charleville, County Wicklow. The bridegroom is heir to one of the most valuable properties in England. Lord Hawksbury was also a staunch supporter of Mr. Gladstone, and voted in the House of Commons (as Mr. Gladstone) for the first Home Rule bill.

Poljamba) for the first Home Rule bill KILDARE.

Mr. Edward Joseph Loran Keogh of Castleree, County Kildare, elder son of Surgeon-Major R. Keogh, High Sheriff of the county, has made application to be admitted to the Irish bar. As he is endorsed by Chief Justice "St. Peter" O'Brien, his admission is a foregone conclusion.

WEXFORD.

Mr. Laurence O'Connor, master of the Ennisceorthy Workhouse, died suddenly, on April 24th, after a few days illness, of heart failure. At the last meeting of the Board of Guardians he had attended as usual, and it was then apparent that there was something wrong with him, as he transacted his business in a mechanical half-conscious manner, which showed that he was not in his ordinary health. Two days later he was stricken with paralysis and died in a few hours. He was attended by Dr. Purdon and by the Rev. J. Dunne, C. C., chaplain to the workhouse, who administered the last rites of the church. His son was appointed master pro tem, in his place.

The death is announced of Miss Mary Josephine Doyle, which took place last week at the residence of her parents, Cathedral street, Ennisceorthy. The deceased was only 17 years of age, and her demise was due to consumption, which she contracted some time ago as the result of a protracted cold. Intelligence reached Wexford last week Tuesday that Very Rev. Thomas Canon Cahill, P. P., Ballymore, had passed away that morning. The news came quite unexpectedly, as few were aware that the very reverend gentleman had been seriously ill. The sad event caused deep sorrow in Ballymore and the adjoining parishes, as well as in Wexford, where Canon Cahill was so well known and respected. He was in his usual health up to Palm Sunday when he celebrated mass as usual, but afterwards became ill and was attended by Dr. Creane. He became weaker and was prostrated by weak action of the heart, from which he died on the date mentioned. Canon Cahill was born in Wexford fifty-nine years ago, and was the son of the late Mr. Martin Cahill.

Last week intelligence reached Ennisceorthy of a suicide, which took place on the previous day, outside Newborough, where a farmer named Rothwell was found hanging from a rope attached to a cross-beam in a hay barn. For some time past the unfortunate man had been subject to fits of insanity. He was at one time an inmate of Ennisceorthy District Lunatic Asylum, from which he was discharged as cured about twelve months ago.

On the evening of April 28th, Michael Kelly, a well known resident of Ennisceorthy, and a collector and pedlar of bones, bottles and such things, went into Mr. David Kinnealy's public house in Slaney street, and called for a glass of porter, and as Mr. Kinnealy was handing it to him, he fell to the floor and died in a few minutes. Dr. Kelly, who was called in, stated that he treated the deceased for heart disease, and that was the cause of his death.

In Graigueamhagh, on Easter Sunday morning, a very sad, sudden death took place. Mrs. Murphy, wife of Mr. Christopher Murphy, hotel keeper, enjoying apparently the best of health, went to early Mass that morning, came home, and busied herself about the house on her return, went upstairs, and when sought for by the servant a few minutes afterward, was found lying dead on the floor of one of the rooms. She had been suffering from heart disease for some time. She had two daughters, one of whom is the lately widowed Mrs. Dr. Keating, of Clonroche.

KILKENNY.

Arrangements have been made for the laying, on the first Sunday in May, of the foundation stone of the new church of Kilkenny. The structure, which will be full Gothic, 168 feet long by 72 wide, will consist of nave and aisles, apse and sacristies, and there will be a magnificent spire over the entrance. Several of the Irish Bishops signified their intention of being present, and the sermon was to be preached by the eloquent Bishop of Clonfert.

At Grace's Oldcastle last Quarter Sessions, a jury gave a verdict of £35 damages against Mr. W. H. Langborne, District Inspector of Constabulary, for assault and battery, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution. Thomas Williams, of Castlecomer, was the plaintiff in whose favor the verdict was rendered.

The death is announced, at Crumonde road, Kilkenny, of Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, wife of Mr. James Lalor, deeply and deservedly regretted.

CARLOW.

At the last meeting of the Carlow Town Commissioners, Mr. P. D. Shackleton, locum tenens for the Chairman presiding, Miss Kate Gorman was unanimously elected to complete the collection of Borough Rates, or consolidated assessment, levied within the Borough, for all municipal purposes, which had been commenced by her father, and had been left unfinished by his recent death. There were over twenty candidates for the vacancy, originally, but all were withdrawn in favor of the lady candidate.

KING'S COUNTY.

The people of Banagher expect to derive considerable advantage from the development of the Shannon navigation for tourists; and to render their town as attractive as possible to the pleasure seekers the improvement committee are making strenuous efforts to have the old paved footpaths replaced by concrete sidewalks. It is also in contemplation to convert the old and now disused military barracks into a modern hotel, and additional means of transit by rail and boat are to be introduced.

LONGFORD.

On the night of April 28th, three tinkers passed through Longford in custody, on a charge of attempted robbery of a mail car at Abbeyshrule. The particulars to hand are as follows:

but the facts appear to be that the mail car, running between Ballinacorney and Mullingar, left the former town as usual, on the previous night, and got as far as Abbeyshrule, when it was attacked. One of the men sprang to the horse's head, while the other two turned their attention to the driver, whom they pulled off the seat and beat. Fearing that they heard someone approaching, the men decamped and the driver drove off. Arriving at Mullingar, he gave information to the police, who subsequently arrested the men now in custody.

WESTMEATH.

The forthcoming sale is announced by Mr. P. McCormack, auctioneer, Mullingar, at Cludenam, near Moat, of a ninety-two acre farm of land, and also of the tenant's interest in two farms of land containing twenty-six acres and seventeen acres situate within half a mile of Kibbegan town, and the tenant's interest in a twenty acre farm with residence, at Walshes town, near Mullingar.

MEATH.

We regret to announce the death of the Rev. Christopher Mullen, P. P. Moynalty. Father Mullen, during his pastorate, extending over fifteen years, gained the affection and esteem of his flock, all of whom expressed sympathy at his demise. In Navan, the Gaelic friends of Mr. J. O'Brien recently entertained him to a farewell banquet previous to his departure from the town, and also presented him with a beautiful pipe as a slight token of their sincere regard for him. The chair was occupied by Mr. John P. Timmon, president of the Mahony Club, and there was a large attendance of members present.

LOUTH.

On April 28th, two young ladies, Miss Conlan and Miss McDonald, had the happiness of being professed in St. Mary's Convent, Dundalk. His Eminence Cardinal Logue presided at the impressive ceremonies.

MUNSTER.

CORK.

An accident, involving serious damage to Patrick's Bridge, occurred on Monday of last week, when the collier, Annie Jones, from Lisanelly, in charge of Capt. Griffiths, while proceeding up the river, with the intention of berthing at Patrick's Quay, ran into the buttresses of the bridge, carrying away about 30 feet of the stone work, the wreck being forced on to the footway. A large gas lamp, which was set in one of the stones, suffered a complete smash. It will be remembered that an occurrence of a similar nature took place some years ago, when the collier George Sutton caused serious damage to the bridge.

On April 28th the Most Rev. Dr. Browne, Bishop of Cloyne, bestowed the white veil on Miss Sugrue (a member of a well known Cork family), in the pretty chapel attached to Queenstown Convent of our Lady of Mercy. The Bishop was assisted by Canon Ryan, P. P. of Aghada; Canon Arthur Ryan, of the College, Thurles; Father O'Sullivan, Augustinian, Church, Cork; and Father Madden, Father Madden and Father O'Connor, Queenstown.

At the last meeting of the Cork Town Council, the question of the Court of Conscience again came up for discussion. The Mayor announced that Alderman Hargan had resigned the office of President of the Court, and he asked the sanction of the Council to the appointment of Dr. W. J. Dunlea, solicitor, as his successor. Mr. Hall proposed a resolution declining to sanction the appointment, on the ground that it would be a slur on the professional reputation of the present Registrar, Mr. Donegan, who was entitled to the office. This resolution was defeated by 28 votes to 20 votes, and a resolution proposed by Mr. Slattery, sanctioning the appointment of Mr. Dunlea, was carried by a similar vote.

At a meeting of the Cork Butcher Market Trustees Mr. C. J. Dunne was unanimously re-elected chairman of the board.

A Skibbereen correspondent, writing on April 24th, says: "Within the present generation no such unfavorable weather has been experienced as that through which we have been passing for the past two months, or ten weeks; and it is now that the farmers are beginning to feel the result keenly, when the fodder is fast running out, while in the vast majority of cases it has been completely exhausted, even with the most far-seeing and practical farmers. Cattle are, therefore, at present in a sad way for want of dry mouthful, as rain, rain is the order of the day, until we are actually deluged. Farmers along the seaboard of West Cork have always looked upon St. Patrick's Day as the wind-up, for putting in their potato and grain crops; but to-day a month later, 33 per cent of the crop remains unown, and potato seed that has been cut for weeks is still lying in a regular quagmire. Never, as a consequence, were farmers around here in so hopeless, despondent, or dispirited a mood, with the gloomiest prospects before them."

We deeply regret to announce the death, after a protracted illness, of Miss Lily Lynch (in religion Sister Xavier) second daughter of Mr. Jeremiah Lynch, of Tubrid, Minane gridge, which took place at the convent of mercy, Skibbereen. The deceased was only twenty-three years of age, and had only been in the convent for six months.

The Central News Skibbereen correspondent telegraphs the report of the loss of five of the crew of a Boulogne French lugger, name unknown, off Milzen Head in the recent gales. The solemn ceremony of the reception of a Reliquie took place at the Presentation Convent, Bandon, on April 28th. The young lady received was Miss McSweeney, daughter of Mr. Miles McSweeney, Whitechurch, Cork. In the absence of the Bishop of the diocese, Most Rev. Dr. O'Callaghan, the ceremony was performed by Very Rev. Canon Shinkwin, P. P., F. V. Bandon.

On the evening of a recent date, a laborer named John Murphy died suddenly about midway between Clonakilly and his residence, at the Common Mountain, about four miles from the town. Deceased had not been in good health for some time past. On the 24th, he was in town with his mother-in-law, and on returning in the evening, in a donkey-cart, he had a hemorrhage, and bled profusely, and only lived for about an hour. It is supposed he must have burst a blood vessel. He left a widow and three children.

An old man named Denis Brien was recently killed at Ballybrassil, near Queenstown, by an accidental fall.

KERRY.

One week ago last Sunday evening thick volumes of smoke were observed ascending from a mountain near Kenmare, known as Gortadunadh, owned by the Marquis of Lansdowne. A number of men employed by the Marquis and others were soon on the scene. At this time the mountain was well ablaze, but in less than half an hour the fire was extinguished. All hands rendered valuable service, as otherwise great damage would have been done.

A man named John Healy, a carpenter, aged about 45 years, was admitted to the Tralee Union hospital, on April 28th, suffering from a wound in his stomach, which he inflicted with a pocket knife. The injury inflicted was slight, as the knife did not penetrate so much as to do any internal injury. The people of Abbeysteady are making an effort to get the village connected with telegraph with Tralee.

LIMERICK.

A sad drowning fatality occurred in the Shannon, near Limerick, on the night of a recent date. Patrick Carroll, master of the smack Hopewell, which trades between Limerick and Kilrush, was proceeding in his vessel from Limerick and the weather being somewhat choppy, he accepted the offer of being towed part of the journey by the steamer Leven. A little distance below Tervoe, his mainsail became fouled, and in his endeavors to free it he was knocked into the river and drowned before assistance could be rendered. The deceased was a native of Kilrush where his wife and two children reside. The body has not been recovered up to last advice.

CLARE.

In Kilrush last week, a most successful Nationalist demonstration was held, for the purpose of considering matters of urgent public importance and denouncing land-grabbing in the district. The day was fine, and the attendance of people from all the surrounding parishes was very great, being the largest meeting held in Clare for several years. Mr. M. J. Flavin, M. P. for North Kerry, came over from Ballyvaughan, with a large contingent, and was escorted into the town, from Cappa Pier, by a large procession, headed by the St. Patrick's National band of the town. A large contingent also arrived by the West Clare Railway train, from Milton, Killee, Ballytymon, Mollagh, and other centers, headed by the Milton band. The town was appropriately decorated for the occasion. On the motion of Mr. Luke O'Brien, chairman of the Kilrush Town Commissioners, seconded by Mr. M. J. Flavin, P. L. O., Mr. Michael Mesraal, chairman of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, was moved to the chair. Resolutions in accordance with the call of the meeting were unanimously adopted.

A Tulla correspondent sends notice of the sad death of Mr. Francis Macnamara, victualler, Tulla, a well known resident of that town. He had gone from home to buy some cattle near Broadford, and was on his return home when the horse he was riding, a spirited young animal, seems to have bolted and run away. The unfortunate rider was thrown, and apparently fell on his head. When found, some time subsequently, he was unconscious, and died in a few hours. Mr. Macnamara was a young man, and leaves a widow and three young children. His funeral was one of the largest ever seen in the district.

Constable J. R. Smith committed suicide one week ago Monday at Tiernea, near Corofin, where he had been stationed, on protection duty, guarding the caretaker of an evicted farm on the Dwyer property. He had exhibited signs of lightness for some time past, and on the evening stated, he shot himself with his rifle, while alone in the "protection" hut. He was only 34 years of age, and had sixteen years' service. He was a Protestant, and belonged to the County Dublin.

TIPPERARY.

On April 22nd in the chapel of Kilmara, Sir Mark Henry Tuile, Bart., of Kilmara House, was publicly received into the Roman Catholic church by the Rev. John Scanlan, P. P., Cloughjordan. The Tuiles came to Ireland, with the Earl of Pembroke in 1172, and the baronetcy dates back to the year 1522.

WATERFORD.

At meetings of the Waterford Harbor Board and Waterford Chamber of Commerce, on April 27th, resolutions were adopted protesting against the attempted seizure by the Board of Works of the Waterford, Dungarvan, and Lismore Railway.

An inquest was held last week, in Waterford, by Coroner Power, on a man who was killed on the Kilkenny Railway line, and the evidence showed that deceased, who was a laborer, and unmarried, while passing a level crossing near Waterford, with a donkey cart and barrel of water, was overtaken by the morning mail. The engine struck the cart, portions of which struck the deceased, inflicting wounds on the head, from which death resulted. A verdict was returned, exonerating the guard of the Waterford and Central Ireland Railway Company from any blame.

TYRONE.

In Omagh, one week ago Monday, Sir Francis Brady, Bart., Q. C., County Court Judge, entered the Crown Court for the purpose of "taking up the Crown business." As there was no prisoners to be tried, there was no "Crown business" to be "taken up." So Sir Francis was, instead, presented with a pair of white gloves—which he did not appear to relish very much, remarking that he had already got another pair at Dungannon—and that, if this kind of thing went on a bill ought to be brought into Parliament to dispense with the attendance of petty jurors. Judges are curious phobias, occasionally—especially those manufactured out of "baristers" by the "Castle" government in Ireland.

ANTRIM.

A splendid memorial has been erected in Milltown Catholic Cemetery, to the memory of the late Mr. Henry McGowan, Jr., second son of Mr. Henry McGowan, of Durham street, Belfast. The memorial is a Celtic cross, cut out of a solid block of Irish limestone, and is supported by a richly molded and paneled suble of the same material. The face, sides and back of the memorial cross are divided into panels and carved into beautiful designs of Celtic ornaments.

On the evening of April 27th, the Greenacres National Band paraded the village of Greenacres, via the Whitehall road, and back by Grey's Loaming, through the village towards Whitehouse. The bandmen, it is alleged, desired to go into Whitehouse, owing to the fact that the police authorities had given the Tory Unionist Band permission to proceed through the village of Greenacres, on Easter Monday. This concession was not granted by the Nationalists, and the result was that a baton charge ensued, owing to an opposing crowd having gathered from Whitehouse. The police, not being recognized by either party, got pretty well rough-handed.

ARMAGH.

At the last municipal election in Armagh, the polling, though steady was small, owing to a neglected register, the list of voters being exhausted about 3 o'clock. The counting of the votes commenced at 8.30 p. m. in the several wards. In St. Bridget's Ward the poll was declared, from one of the market house windows, by Mr. Philip Lavery, returning officer, at 9.45 o'clock to a vast crowd of excited listeners. The result, which was received with round after round of cheering, was that Messrs. Warmoll, McConnell, McCreech, McLaughlin, Gillen and Donnelly, the six candidates chosen at the Catholic convention had been returned at the head of the poll by good majorities.

In St. Patrick's Ward, Mr. Robert Gillespie, J. P., was the returning officer. Mr. Thomas Brooks officiated as presiding officer, and Mr. Thomas Reid acted as poll clerk. The poll, as announced by Mr. Gillespie, gave the election to Messrs. Turner, Edwards, Wilson, Mann, Best and McBride, the nominees of the Tory-Unionist party. The four Catholic candidates, Messrs. McMahon, McKenna, Sherry and Murray, although defeated, made a gallant fight and did also the two Independent Conservatives, McClelland and Heron.

On the whole the Catholics of Armagh have every reason to congratulate themselves on the result, which has revealed the fact that in a very short time they will be able to secure a majority on the Town Corporation, and thus enjoy the fruit of their long looked for and well deserved emancipation. In this election, the Redmondites—who did not muster numerously in Armagh—voted with the Tories—for whatever reason they themselves can, alone explain. But they do not explain being, perhaps, "wise in their generation."

On April 27th the little chapel attached to the Convent of Mercy, Canal street, Newry, was the scene of the reception of three young ladies—Miss O'Hare, Bessbrook, Miss Jones, Enniskillen, and Miss Morgan, Newry, who renounced the world and devoted themselves to the service of God. Most Rev. Dr. McGovern, Bishop of Drogheda, presided, the Rev. J. Carroll, acting as master of ceremonies.

At an early hour on the morning of a recent date, Calmazzan, near Newry, about two miles from Newry, was destroyed by fire. About 5 o'clock the building was discovered in flames, and in a short time the roof fell in. Two valuable horses in the stables were smothered. The building, which was four stories high, was burned down, and the valuable machinery, some of which had been only recently put in, was destroyed. The loss is estimated at over £2,000. The mill was one of the oldest in Ireland.

Dr. Bourke, coroner for East Cavan, recently held an inquest at Killecrossduff, about five miles from Ballyborough, touching the death of a small farmer named Ward, who had committed suicide on the previous day by hanging himself in his own house. From the evidence given it appeared that the unfortunate man was about 60 years of age, and that, after returning home from the town, of Shercock, where he had been on business, he had sent out his wife to a neighbor's house for some milk, but when she returned she found the dead body hanging from a rafter in the house. The deceased was not considered of unound mind, and no motive can be assigned for the desperate deed. The jury found that Ward committed suicide while laboring under temporary insanity.

In Monaghan, on April 26th, Dr. Stewart, coroner held an inquest into the circumstances of the death of an old man named Robert McInlay who was killed in the parish of Tyland, about two miles from the town, by the falling of an old house. The deceased was in the vicinity of the old building, which was close to his residence, when, without any warning, the structure collapsed and the falling beams struck Molloy on the head, fracturing the skull. The accident was witnessed by a person, who instantly gave an alarm, but McInlay was dead upon the arrival of medical aid. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

A correspondent who has visited most of the districts of Mayo, writes from Castlebar, under date of April 23: "Never in the history of this country was the harvest outlook more depressing to farmers generally, owing to the severity of the weather. Snow and rain have been almost continuous here, for the past month, the latter prevailing almost without intermission since January. Spring operations have been seriously retarded—no crops of any description having been sown up to this, the middle of May; consequently the farmers will be poverty-stricken, as there appears to be no likelihood of a harvest this year. The appearance of the surrounding country is deplorable—the land being flooded in every part."

At the meeting of the clergy of the diocese of Killala, Most Rev. Dr. Conmy presiding, subscriptions and donations to the amount of £2,325 were promised towards a new Diocesan Seminary which the bishop proposes to erect in Ardnaree.

A young man named McKansey, residing at Unagh, near Covesdown, died last week of injuries received through the explosion of a blast, which he had put in some rock on his father's farm, but which had failed to go off. He was trying to drill out the charge, in doing so using the iron pin of a harrow and a hammer, when the charge exploded, and the iron pin was blown through his hand, which was almost blown off, and lockjaw set in, which resulted in his death.

Rev. Michael McGurk, C. C., Ballygawley, has been appointed by Cardinal Logue, parish priest of Ballygawley in room of Father Daly, deceased.

In Derry a man named William Buchanan residing in Gordon terrace, was recently arrested on a charge of shooting at and wounding Henry McBride, of Long Tower. It is stated that Buchanan discharged three shots, one of which took effect. The injured man was taken to the residence of Dr. Byrne, Pump street, and an examination disclosed that he had a marvelous escape from death. A bullet had penetrated through his clothing and glanced off the left side over the region of the heart, inflicting but slight injury. Buchanan was committed without bail.
