AROUND THE GLOBE.

WHAT THE CHURCH IS DOING IN THE
AND OTHER CONTINENTS.

Many Items of General Interest That Will be Appreciated by Our Readers.

The next consistory, it is stated, will take place about the middle of March. The nomination of new Cardinals is, it appears, to be put off till a subsequent consistory.

From Paris is announced the death, at the age of 64, of the Rev. M. Bieil, for twenty-three years head of St. Sulpice Seminary.

The 29th of September, 1900, will be the golden jubilee of the establishment of the Catholic hierarchy in England, and it is hoped that a grand Thanksgiving service may be celebrated in the new Westminster Cathedral on that date. £37,000 has been spent already on the work.

Bishop Ludden, of Syracuse, has made a princely gift to the new church in Castlebar, County Mayo, Ireland. He has presented a grand high altar. It is hoped that the first Mass on this altar will be celebrated by the donor during the dedication ceremonies in autumn.

The next consecration to take place in the United States will be on St. Mathias' day, Feb. 24, when Bishop-nominate Fitzmaurice will be mitred to be the coadjutor of the aged Bishop Mullen of Erie. Dr. Fitzmaurice leaves the presidency of St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, for this Erie coadjutorship, and he is to be succeeded at the seminary by Rev. Dr. Garvey, one of the most prominent priests of Philadelphia.

Archbishop Ireland appears to have won and lost in his Minnesota land suit, a decision in which was rendered the other day at Washington. In one case, or rather set of cases, he can get nothing from settlers on the lands and will have to put up with them. In the other lands his title is good, provided he pays $2.50 an acre for the land, which he can then sell to the settlers on them. There would seem to be something of a "tolerant debt" about the first decision, but it is Archbishop Ireland who will have to put up with the situation, though he has the right to appeal from the land officer's decision.

At this time of the year when pastors make their annual reports and often publish the amount of the parochial receipts and expenditures during the previous twelve months, it may be questioned if any parish can show bigger receipts than those accredited to the Polish parish of St. Stanislaus, Chicago, where the receipts are said to be more than $125,000 a year. This parish is a very big one; its population is estimated at 15,000 souls; but even granting these figures to be correct, $125,000 per year would mean more than $8 from each individual in the parish.

Widespread sympathy is felt in Montreal for the Rev. Cure Magloire Auclair in the sudden and severe loss he and his faithful flock have sustained in the burning of St. John Baptiste's church, chapel and presbytery. The destruction of these buildings involves a loss of from $150,000 to $200,000, and Father Auclair would not have parted with them for twice that amount. The chapel was the private property of good Father Auclair himself, and he valued it at $40,000 or thereabouts. The insurance amounts to about $100,000. The work of rebuilding will be started at once. Archbishop Bruchesi has subscribed $200.

The proceedings preparatory to the presentation of the petition for the beatification of the venerable Padre Lazadi, S. J., native of Astasin, Spain, are completed, and early in the year will be presented to the Holy See. The Bishop of Vittoria and the Very Rev. father provincial of the order have left nothing undone to hasten matters. The remains of this holy martyr, who was assassinated on the 17th of May, 1835, by the Indians of South America, were miraculously discovered by the Very Rev. Kenelm Vaughan during his missionary travels in Paraguay, and it is to his initiative are due the efforts that are now being made for the beatification of the holy martyr.

THE TWO COUSINS.

BY MARY ROWENA COTTER.

Alexia's refusal to attend her church had met with a like refusal on Virginia's part, but on this afternoon when she heard of the grand closing exercises of the May devotions, she had sent a thrill of joy to the heart of her cousin by saying that she wished to attend. They had stopped at the Cathedral on their way home from a long walk to see the decorations at Mary's shrine, and Virginia, who was passionately fond of flowers, had talked of it all the rest of the way home, commenting on how beautiful the shrine must look in the evening, when the candles were lighted. In the evening the girls were putting on their hats when the door bell rang, then a rap came at their door and a servant announced Mr. Hurley.

"I am sorry I cannot go with you," said Virginia when she saw the look of disappointment on her cousin's face, "but you will excuse me this time, won't you, dear?" "Certainly," said Alexia, forcing a smile, and as Virginia laid her hat on the table and after a hurried glance in her mirror, started to go down stairs, she added: "Good night Virginia. I hope you will have a pleasant evening and I will try and see you at the studio tomorrow."

"Aren't you coming back to-night?" asked Virginia.

"No," said her cousin, "I think it will be best to go home as I have some work to finish in the morning."

"Good night then, dear cousin," and returning she threw her arms around her cousin's neck, kissed her affectionately, and with a face beaming with smiles hurried down stairs.

Alexia looked sadly after her, feeling more keenly than ever the great change that was coming over her cousin for something told her that the happy days they had spent together were drawing to a close, and she almost wished that Mr. Hurley had never met her. Left as she had been with no other woman on whom to bestow her affection and confidence, she could hardly be blamed for this pang; but Virginia never dreamed how her cousin felt. Had she known it she would only have laughed at her for she had often told her that she liked Mr. Hurley as a friend and an escort to social gatherings, but she had no thought of marriage.

There were tears in Alexia's eyes as she silently glided down the back stairs and out through the back door to escape Mr. Hurley, but when she was out in the air she wiped them away and glided heedlessly on toward the Cathedral. The tears flowed afresh when she heard the sweet voices of the Children of Mary answer the Litany of Loretto, sung by the priest and saw the beautiful procession as it wound its way through the long aisles of the grand old church, and paused before our Lady's shrine which was ablaze with lights. Under any other circumstance Alexia would have felt while looking upon the lovely vision, that she had almost a foretaste of Heaven, but to-night there was sadness mingled with her joy for she knew that Virginia whose artistic tastes made her such a passionate lover of beauty, would have enjoyed it so much; but during this hour Virginia was so deeply interested in a game of chess, and Mr. Hurley's bright conversation that she entirely forgot her cousin.

It was over now and continuing in the beautiful words of Adelaide Proctor we might say: "In the dark church she knelt alone."

Her tears were falling fast, for aught she knew or cared what was passing around her, Alexia was indeed alone. With the exception of a number of penitents who knelt around the confessionals waiting to purify their hearts for the reception of Holy Communion on the morrow which was to be the first Friday as well as the first day of the Sacred Heart's own month, all had left the church. She had received her monthly communion last Sunday and had had no intention of going again to-morrow; but still she lingered as if loath to leave the church. As soon as the crowd, which for a few minutes thronged the railing in front of Mary's shrine had dispersed, she went and knelt there for half an hour as if she fain would pour all the loneliness she felt into the heart of her heavenly mother, but her tears continued to flow and she found it hard to say even a Hail Mary with any devotion.

At length, suddenly recollecting herself, and remembering the peace of mind that the sacraments bring, she took her place among the penitents near one of the confessionals and made her preparation while she awaited her turn. Soon her tears were dried and when she came out of the sacred tribunal her mind was much calmer, but there still lingered a feeling of sadness in her heart. She returned to the Blessed Virgin's shrine but the last light and bouquet had been taken away and placed on the altar of the Sacred Heart. For as that dear Virgin Mother had lived in the world before the coming of her Divine Son, as if to prepare our hearts for Him; so on the morrow she would gladly yield up the veneration she had received during the past thirty-one days to the worship of His Sacred Heart.

It was now nearly ten o'clock but unwilling to leave the church, and still sad at heart, she turned her steps toward the shrine of the Sacred Heart and kneeling before it tried to pray, but could not. For a long time she gazed intensely, first at the sweet, sad face, then at the bleeding thorn-encircled heart which had been so vividly represented by the sculptor until she felt that she almost heard that gentle whisper "My child, give me thy heart." Again and again those favorite lines which she had so often read and greatly admired repeated themselves. Hardly realizing what they meant, and little dreaming of the life in store for her she said "Lord help me to obey." Her heart was touched now and she could pray. So absorbed was she that she heeded not the passing moments until the sexton laid his hand gently on her arm and told her she was the only person who remained in the church and he wished to close for the night.

With one more lingering glance at the divine Heart and another toward the tabernacle where reposed her hidden Lord whom she was to receive on the morrow she left the place her own heart filled with a peace such as she had not known for a long time.

"The blessing fell upon her soul
The angel by her side
Knew that the hour of peace had come;
Her soul was purified;
The shadow fell from roof and arch,
Dim was the incense air,
But Peace went with her as she left
The sacred Presence there."

CHAPTER III.

Little less than a year and a half has passed and the engagement of Robert Hurley and Virginia Summer has recently been announced. Alexia was alone in the room at her uncle's which she called her own, when her cousin entered, her face beaming with smiles and blushes as she handed her the morning paper which conveyed the news to the social world. The happy smile on Alexia's face told that the old feeling of jealousy (she now called it) toward the one who had claimed her cousin's affections was gone and was both proud and happy to hear the approaching marriage spoken of. Apparently she enjoyed nothing more than the confidential little talk they often had of the bright June days when she would have the privilege of plucking Virginia's bridal roses and arranging the wreath of orange blossoms for her fair hair. The secret was that the month of June promised a happy event in her own life which she dared not even hint to her cousin from whom she had never kept the smallest secret, for she knew to well that to reveal her plan would only call forth the strongest opposition on the part of her relatives. Suddenly the light faded from Alexia's face, her hand trembled and she would have dropped the paper had she not maintained a wonderful control over herself. Half way down the column her eyes had fallen upon the announcement that Andrew Hurley, Robert's only brother, was expected home that week. She glanced at her cousin to see if her agitation had been noticed, but happily, Virginia was too busily engaged in arranging a bouquet of geraniums to see her.

"Aren't those pretty, Alexia," she said bringing the vase over to her cousin. "They are part of the flowers Robert sent me from which to select my bouquet for this evening."

"Very pretty," said Alexia taking the vase, and bending low over the flower to hide her agitation, "and what a variety of beautiful shades."

As she replaced the vase on the table Virginia selected a pretty double pink flower and said, "Won't you please let me put this in your hair. You look so gloomy in that plain black dress that you ought to wear a little color."

"Why, Virginia," said Alexia, "everybody says black is becoming to me and I don't dislike it myself, even though it be a semblance of mourning." Her voice trembled slightly as she said this, but her light-hearted cousin noticed it not for she was too busily engaged in arranging the flowers in her cousin's hair. When she spoke it was to express her admiration of those heavy, shining braids, the possession of which she had always so greatly envied their owner since two years before when sickness had robbed her of much of her own beautiful hair which had been her chief pride.

"You admire my hair so much I wish you had it, for it is really a burden to me," said Alexia, "It is so heavy that it often makes my head ache and more than once I have been tempted to cut it off."

"You wicked girl," said Virginia, "you must never think of such a thing again," and resting her hand caressingly upon her cousin's head, she added, "I almost forgot to tell you that Robert's brother, Andrew, is expected home from Europe this week."

"So I saw by the paper," was Alexia's careless reply, "I suppose his family will be very happy to see him."

"Yes," said Virginia, for it has been nearly a year since he went abroad and they have been so lonely without him. But he expects to remain at home now until after our wedding and perhaps longer, and I am so glad."

"Her face was beaming with smiles, as she said this, and her cousin wondered why she was so pleased, little dreaming what was in her mind until she added:

"How coolly you seem to take the good news. Really, Alexia, I believe you knew all the time that he was expected this month, but would not tell me; I have believed for some time that you were keeping some secret from me, but I have it now."

Alexia's face crimsoned, then turned deathly pale, as a suspicion that he cousin knew the truth dawned upon her. With an effort to control herself she said, "Believe me, dear cousin, I knew nothing of Mr. Hurley being expected until I saw it in the paper."

RULES FOR LENT.

The Following Circular for the Holy Season of Lent will be Read in all Churches in the Diocese To-morrow.

The Holy season of Lent begins on the 28th day of February. All the week days of Lent are days of fasting on one meal, with a moderate collation in the evening.

All the days of Lent are days of Abstinence from flesh meat.

By dispensation, however, the use of flesh meat is allowed without restriction on Sundays, and once a day on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, except on the Saturday of Ember-week, and the Saturday of Holy week.

The use of eggs, butter and cheese, at the collation, provided the quantity prescribed by the fast be complied with, is by general custom tolerated in this country.

Lard and drippings may be used in preparing fish, vegetables, etc.

The following persons are exempt from the obligation of fasting: Young persons under twenty-one years of age, the aged, the sick, nursing women, those who are obliged to do hard labor, and all who through weakness cannot fast without prejudice to their health.

Persons dispensed from the obligation of fasting on account of tender or advanced age, or hard labor, are not bound by the restriction of using meat only at one meal on days on which its use is granted by dispensation.

In Churches where there is a resident Pastor, there will be a sermon and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament on every Wednesday evening, and the devotion of the Stations of the Cross on Fridays.

Pastors in charge of two or more churches, will give one sermon during the week, in at least two churches.

Prayer and the spirit of penance should accompany penitential works. Endeavor, therefore, to excite your parishioners to observe this holy season according to the intention of the Church and place every facility in their way for receiving the Sacraments of Penance and the Eucharist.

Very sincerely in Christ,

BERNARD,

Bishop of Rochester.

MOST REV. CORRIGAN

TO CELEBRATE HIS SILVER JUBILEE

The Notable Event to Begin May 4, and Continue Five Days.

The clergy and laity of the New York archdiocese will on Wednesday, May 4, celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the elevation of His Grace, the Most Rev. Michael Augustine Corrigan to the Episcopate. The jubilee will extend over the following Sunday, and will close with a pontifical high mass in St. Patrick's cathedral. Preparations are already under way to make this celebration one of the notable events of a generation.

Committees of priests and laymen will be appointed to work out the details. Naturally, Bishop Farley will be the head of the clerical committee, and it is probable that Col. John McAnissey of the Seventh National Bank will be chairman of the lay committee. The prime movers in the celebration are Judge Joseph E. Daly, Stephen Farley, John D. Grimmins and the Rev. M. A. Taylor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. An executive committee will be gotten together to begin the work.

Notable features of the celebration will be a high mass in St. Patrick's cathedral, presentation of addresses and sermons and a banquet. The most distinguished men in the country will be invited to honor one of the most scholarly of American ecclesiastics.

New York's archdiocese includes, besides that city, the counties of Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan, Orange, Rockland and Richmond and the Bahamas Islands, and from these parts of the archdiocese there will be a large influx of clergy and laity to the city during the period of the celebration. The Catholic population of the archdiocese is between 800,000 and 900,000, and as Archbishop Corrigan is personally known to other thousands throughout the country, it will be readily seen that this event will be of exceptional interest and almost national importance.

The esteem in which New York's Metropolitan is held was shown in 1888, when he celebrated his silver jubilee as a priest. On that occasion bishops and priests came from all over the country to greet Mr. Corrigan. The gentlemen who will have this episcopal jubilee in charge will make it a far more memorable event than the silver jubilee of his priesthood. They consider that the great work he has been doing for years deserves extraordinary recognition. The hospitals and seminaries he has founded will always be a monument to his memory, and they want the jubilee of 1898 also to go down in history.

When in 1878 Bishop Bayley of New Jersey was promoted to the See of Baltimore, Dr. Corrigan, who was then a priest in Newark, was elected a Bishop of Newark. That was on February 14, and on May 4, the feast of St. Joseph, he was consecrated in his own cathedral by the late Cardinal McCloskey, then Archbishop of New York, seventeen bishops being present. Bishop Corrigan was the youngest member of the American hierarchy. He exhibited, however, the maturity and experience of age. By hard and successful work he arrived at such prominence that when the advanced age of Cardinal McCloskey made the appointment of a coadjutor necessary Bishop Corrigan was selected for that onerous office. On October 1, 1890, he was promoted to the See of Peoria and made coadjutor of New York with the right of succession.

The Fourth Provincial Council and Fourth Synod of New York were mainly directed by Bishop Corrigan. He prepared a useful manual for such assemblies. He was summoned to Rome as one of the archbishops when the Holy See wished to send a legation to the work of the Plenary

THE BURNING OF ROME

An Important Discovery Made by

Special Correspondent of the Catholic Journal

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19, 1898. One of the most important discoveries of the week has been made by the Catholic Journal's special correspondent, who has been for some time working of exploring the ruins of ancient Rome, believing that the grounds to give light to history.

The location of the ruins, which was supposed to be the Crucifixion, has been for some time, discovered by the Catholic Journal's special correspondent, who has been for some time working of exploring the ruins of ancient Rome, believing that the grounds to give light to history.
