OUT OF THE FIRE.

A Horse That Knew a Thing or Twe in Case of Emergency.

The Governor had a fine black driving horse called Dexter. Although strong and spirited. Dexter was docile and obedient, and was petted and made much of by his master. As the Governor kept no other horse, Dexter had the stable all to himself, with a clean stall and a full manger.

The stable was near the house, and. in addition to Dexter's stall and harness room, contained a large carriage room, an oat bin, and a hay mow over the stail.

One night, when the family and the servants were away from the home and the Governor was in the house alone. he was awakened by an ominous crackling and a bright glare on his chamber window, and before he could collect his sleepy wits he was startled by a cry unlike any sound he had ever heard. As he sprang out of bed the cry came again, and, hastening to the window, he learned the cause. The stable was all ablaze and out of the smoke and flames Dexter was calling his master to his rescue

Pausing only to don coat and slippers, the Governor rushed out. The outside door of the stable leading into the stall was already blocked by the flames, and the only entrance to be had was through the carriage room the harness room, and a narrow entry leading past the oat bin. These rooms were on fire overhead, and burning wisps of hay and shingles were raining down in showers

Blinded by smoke, the Governor stumbled along the roundabout way, and, reaching the stall sooner than he expected, fell headlong down the steps against the excited animal, who was vainly tugging at his halter Thinking some new danger threatened him.

"Whos, Dexter" shouted the Gover "Don't you know me, sir? Steady now, old fellow, and we'll get out of this." Recognizing his master's voice. Dexter turned his head toward the prostrate man and uttered a coaxing whin more kicks, the Governor crept up and cut the halter, and calling Dexter to follow him, limped blindly through the smoke-filled entry and the two blazing rooms beyond And close af ter him went Dexter, his nose pressed against his master's shoulder, man and horse reaching the safe outer air to-

"It was Dexter's obedience that saved him," said the Governor "I could least obstinacy or any less readiness to follow at a word through all that roundabout, unaccustomed way, I must have left him to perish in the flames But he followed like a well-trained soldler, and we escaped from our burn. ing, flery furnace almost as safely as Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego did from theirs.

Novel Wedding Ring.

A novel wedding ring has just come ut. It is a revival of an ancient idea, and bids fair to be popular among this season's brides. The ring looks like an ordinery, rather narrow, plain gold gold ring spring apart into two linked irclets. The date of the marriage and the initials of the bridegroom and ride are engraved on the upper surface of one ring and a motto "'Si vis amaria ama"- on the lower surface of the other. When the links are fitted ogether the inscriptions are concealed and there is no hint of the ring's seret. The bridegroom wears a similar ing The jeweler who is making them gays many couples have bought them. and that many more have ordered
