NOTED SURRENDERS

SPAIN'S BLOCK HOUSES.

THEY HAVE BEEN A FEATURE OF ALL GREAT WARS.

The Two Famous Ones That Occurred During the Revolution-Even the Great Washington Was Forced to Surrendor Ouce-Some Other Instances.

The surrender of the Spanish army under General Toral at Santiago was one of the biggest events of the kind. as regards numbers, that have ever occurred on this continent. Small detachments of troops cooped up in a fortified place are often compelled to surrender during a war, but when whole armies give up the end is generally in sight.

There are many famous surrenders in our national history. There were two notable ones during the revolution, one in the middle of the war and one at the end. At Saratoga, on October 17, 1777. Bourgoyne surrendered to Gates 6.000 men 5.000 muskets and a Lirge quantity of ammunition and cannon. He began his invasion of the colonics from Canada in June, intending to go down the Hudson and separate New England from New York.

On October 19, 1781, Cornwallis surrendered 7.000 men to Washington which ended the war. The show and 1,500 seamers were turned over to the Freuch.

There was a surrender in this war which is fit to be ranked with the Alamo and ort Pillow Fort Griswold. defending New London, Conn. was surrendeted to Arnold, the traitor, by Colonel Ledvard The commandant and his saty men were put to the sword after they had given op thear arms. This was in Systemiter, 1781. The rabit on the New England coast had been meteriaken by the British with the loss of diverting Washing ton satter here from Cornwallis.

Even the great Washington was forced to sure ider once, though not in this war. It was in the French and India, war, and Washington was commandant at Fort Necessity. His forces had sheet the first blood of the war. having defeated Jumonville at Great Mendow's forty five miles from Fort Duquesne Two months later Washington himself was defeated by De Villers at Fort Necessity, which he had built at Great Meadows. At the end of ten hours' hard fighting Washing ton yielded upon condition that his troops should get the honors of war. Our war of 1812 was marked by two notable surrenders one of which was not at all to our credit. This latter one was Hull's surrender of Detroit and with it all of Michigan territory Hull's soldiers were hot with indig nation, as they were auxious to aguiand did not get the chance. Hull was exchanged later for thingy British sol diers and tried by court martial for treason and cowardice. He was convicted of cowardice and sentenced to be shot, but was pardoned by the President.

Army Officers, What is known as the "block house system," started throughout nearly the whole of Cuba by the Spaniards in the beginning of the trouble with the insurgents, called forth the admiration and unstitued praise of the most experienced officers of our army, particularly those who were strategic enough to note the care with which these hastily constructed forts had been placed. It was a revelation to many of us, says a correspondent to note the military keephess of the Spanish officers who had the work in charge.

Every straight muth we rounded into and every trail our men entered in the province of Santiago de Cuba was found to be commanded at its extreme end by one of these block houses, perched on a height overlooking the whole line of advance. Had the Spanards been nossessed of sufficient courage to have occupied and attempted to hold all their block houses situated between Silvoney and Santiago our advances would have involved a much greater loss of life and time. Fortunately most of them were vacated before we reached them.

Owing to the pacallar style of "fighting" carried on by the Cubans this block house system was found to be the best, and, in fact, die only way of successfully preventing the insurgent advances and checking their depredations. If once a small body of men came down from their caves in fue hills to a road they were the ally at the morey of the Spinlards. Retreat along the path would bring them under the galls of another block house; a dash up the hills on either side of the road work, also have been impotent breause every movement of such a nature would be covered from one of the two forts.

The Spaniarus found that the great est difficully in the maintenance of these block houses was in keeping the men who occupied them supplied with food and ammunition. The ammuultion itself came in small quantities on various ships and was distributed every few weeks in getting material to the scattered block houses the greatest danger was run continually, half a dozen Spanish soldiers probably forming the sole convey for a great quantity of supplies. The ('ubans watched for these periodical visits and often made short work of the carriers. While the block house has been described as a lookout, it is in reality a fort of no mean strength when combated only by rifles. To artillery, of course, such a structure would be a mere mouthful; b. in withstanding rifle shots and in carring out the purpose for which it, was built there can be no question of the great value it These forts generally range from down for the soup ladie," fourteen to eighteen feet square and are built to a height of twenty-six feet of the heaviest yellow pine timber obold boiler-plate metal. The main room the outside stonework. This slit is generally from three to four inches wide, and through it the Spanish soldiers pointed their rifles in every direction The upper room, perched on top of the lower roof in Chinese pagoda fashion, was used more for lookout purposes, but it was also provided with a slit similar to that below which, when occasion demanded, could be also used for firing purposes. In parts of the country which the insurgents were known to occupy in numbers a block house contained from twenty four to thirty men. The four sides of the lower chamber each hold six firing stalls, somewhat similar in build to the stations used at rifle competitious in our own country. But generally sixteen men formed the sole force of each of these forts.

mail Boy Evolves a Plot Worthy of Statesman.

A little boy dropped his drumstick into a well. In vain he entreated his parents, the gardener, the footman, the coachman, the cook, the housemaid to go down into the well to recover his drumstick. In his distress a brilliant expedient occurred to Master Tommy -he secretly carried off all the plate from the sideboard, and threw it into the well.

Great was the consternation when the plate was missed, and an active search for the robbers took place. In the midst of the alarm and the confusion Master Tommy ran with the news that he had found the plate. "Where?" was the cry. "Down the well," replied Tommy. "I saw it quite plain shining at the bottom-spoons, ladles, bread baskets, salvers, and all."

The housemaid hurrled to the well, at the bottom of which, sure enough, the plate was seen. A ladder was procured, a servant descended and the plate was brought up. Just before the last article was fished up Master Tommy whispered to him; "John, please must have proved to the Spaniards. bring up my drumstick when you go

FIGHTING BOB'S TITLE.

An Incident in His Career While at Ar napolis.

"Fighting Bob" Evans earned his title the first year at Annapolis. He has made good his claim to it sincelowa, but "Fighting Bob" was tacked to him as a cadet. At the time he was sent to the naval academy there was a rule of the institution which forbade the decoration of the walls of the cadet's headquarters by hanging pictures thereon or in any way improving upon was wise and twofold. It sought to prevent the boys from becoming soft and inxurious and to head off any expensive rivalry in the way of outfitting. In a word, the end desired was to produce hardy and democratic naval officers. Young Evans' fond mother, like all good women, was a christian, and with her son's academy equipment packed a framed motto-a quotation from the scriptures, so the legend runs.

The first act of Robby D. upon his assignment to quarters was to nail his motto to the wall. He was told to remove it, but declined. The contumacions vounster was reported from one officer to another, but resisted argument and command allke. The narrow martinets of the academy resolved to expel him, and orders were at once issued to that effect. The story of the war spread and at last an officer in Lincoln's cabinet intimated very strongly to the faculty that they would do well to overlook the offence. Preachers were beginning to predicate sermons upon the noble cadet who perferred expulsion to taking down the scriptural text, and, as the nolitician said, the chances were that if the young man were dropped the authorities of the academy would not last long afterwards, as public sympathy was with the boy. It was in this war that Evans became known as the almost incredible sum of $4,000,000 "Fighting Bob."

Considerate Mules.

Some six or eight army mules, lor, with 10.000); Jeff Thompson, with getting somehow detached from the wagon wheels to which they were tied at night, were seized by a panic, and came charging down almost the entire line of the Fifty-second Massachusetts Volunteers. Every man lay covered with a "shelter tent." a piece of white cotton cloth about five feet square. As the mules rushed over each one of us woke suddenly with a cry and sprang up, raising his shelter tent in years before he became skipper of the one hand or upon his front, so that he seemed like a sheeted and gibbering ghost. This successive rising of over 400 apparitions added wildness to the panic of the mules, and they fairly flew down the line. Now, the remarkable thing is that while many a man has his side rubbed hard or his scaln the furnishing of the cells. The object | abraded by the hoof or leg of a mule, not a man was really stepped on or badly hurt. It was for months a subject of comment with us that the number in their intensified panic should nevertheless have been able to see where to step, should have cared where they stepped, and in their speed should have been able to step on the ground.

It is estimated that since the days of the Trojan war no fewer than 1,200. 000.000 men have been sacrificed on the altar of the god of war. If it were possible to gather together these millions of war's victims into one ghostly army, they would form a column, 2 abreast, long enough to clasp the earth at the equator, with a residue of 10 similar columns stretching from London, across Europe to Naples.

If this file were to pass a saluting point at the rate of one every second, night as well as .ay, the last "shade" would only become visible in the autumn of 1936.

presence of a considerable number of spectators, an affair of honor was settled between a pelican and a duck.

The birds had had words together, so to speak, and the pelloan determined that the next best thing to making the duck eat his words was to eat the duck. So, after a little thrust and parry on the water, he made for the smaller bird. and snapped it into his pouch.

Then a battle royal began inside the pouch of the pelican. The duck struggled, kicked, quacked and occasionally managed to get a leg or a wing outside. while his captor threw his beak high in the air, then dipped it into the water, and kept it there, as if trying to suffocate or drown its enemy.

At last the duck got his head and one wing out, and then with a magnificent effort, managed to get entirely free. Once again on the water the duck declined further combat and fled, while the pelican remained, looking as if honor were thoroughly satisfied.

Cheap Aquarium Stork: Some of the rarer Japanese goldfish cost many dollars each, but some small goldfish can be bought for five cents each. This is the lowest price for a goldfish, but there are other small fishes for aquarium uses that can be bought cheaper still. Little catfish, an inch or two in length, can be bought three for five cents. Tiny rockfish, which are hardy and long-lived in captivity, can be bought for the same price, and so can little silverfish. Three little lizards can be bought for five cents.

This small and cheap aquarium stock is bought both for home aquariums and to give life and variety to larger aquarjums.
