What is Transpiring in the Different Fraternities.

Branch 139 C. M. B. A.

The good work of this Branch continues and its meetings are largely attended during the month and every member is well supplied with applications so that each one is doing his share towards the increase of its members. It is quite evident from the work now in progress that Branch 139 will reach the mark of two hundred members before the year closes. At the meeting of Tuesday evening, June 27, the following named Brothers were installed: Peter Fitzpatrick, Wm. J. Brockage, Joseph Sweigert and Patrick J. Lynch. Three applications were read and with two to hear from will make five in all to be initiated. Let the good work go on, and if there are any who are thinking of joining the C. M. B. A. and who have not yet been called on by their friends let them make application at once to join this growing and hustling Branch 139.

Hibernian Rifles.

With the instructions and inspiring presence of Captain Quillivan the company did some very good work in its military manoeuvres at its drill on Tuesday evening, notwithstanding the fact that from the rush of business in many of the establishments where the members are employed which prevents many of those who would like to take advantage of the drills from being present. There was a good attendance of those members who are distinguished for stern integrity, high sense of duty, hatred of tardiness and devotion to their organization, yet hater of any act that will tie together the serpent of tyranny to enslave the goddess of American liberty after a hundred and twelve years of independence as is seen by the disgraceful act of entwining the brazen flag of the Saxon with the clean and so far unsullied stars and stripes. The entertainment committee reported all arrangements complete and everything ready for the installation reception on Monday July 3. Those comrades in charge possess the most exuberant fullness and best characteristics of the practical entertainers and it is evident that the result of their labors will be an unparalleled success.

The second sergeant is the latest to receive a surprise in the presence of a new addition to his family, a little baby daughter. He was the recipient of many congratulations on his arrival at headquarters as the comrades wondered what detained him from the previous drill, but soon learned of the cause and warmly congratulated Comrade Maloney and expressed their pleasure of hearing that the mother and baby was doing well.

Among the visitors at the meeting was Lieutenant W. Fred Deacon and Mr. P. Donaghue. Comrade Fitzgerald was reported as sick, but it is hoped he will be soon well again.
