COOK OPERA HOUSE.

It's seldom that an artist of the talent and reputation of Miss Minnie Palmer is to be seen at other than theatres where the admission is a dollar to a dollar and a half; but this does not prevent Manager Moore from presenting her as the chief attraction of an excellent bill at the Cook Opera house the coming week. Miss Palmer with the assistance of that clever actor Francis Jerrard, and Joseph Curtis, presents her new one-act comedy which won her fame the past season in Europe, "Rose Pompon." In Blockson and Burns another big feature is assured, for they have been one of the big laughing successes of the season in New York, their comedy acrobatic work being far and away the best in the profession. Two weeks ago Fred Niblo was billed at this house, but as Manager Moore's new theatre in Detroit was to open that week, he decided at the last minute to transfer Niblo to Detroit, so as to be sure of all good acts the opening week there, and save him for Rochester until now, so it's safe to say the managers think pretty well of Niblo's work; now our readers will have a chance to judge of his merits. Linton and McIntyre, a pair of singing and dancing players; Arnim and Wagner, who present a comedy skit called "Opera in a Kitchen," the three Onris, a trio of clever entertainers, and Nellie Lawrence, the charming vocalist, who sings a good lot of character songs, complete a splendid offering. Performances are given every afternoon and evening complete.
