The interior decorations of St. Peter's church have been completed. On entering the church one is struck by the restful subdued effects of the decorations, combined with the feeling of devotion that is experienced on entering the house of God, makes it beautiful and soul inspiring. Following the Gothic style with a touch of the Master the decorator has caused St. Peter's to stand to-day among the finest decorated edifices of the country. The construction of the church itself was all that the artist could desire for an appropriate background to bring out the creations so well wrought. The twelve panels, six on each side, have been designed to represent the twelve apostles. They are copies of the great genius, Leonardo da Vinci, whose works are classed with those of Raphael and Michael Angelo, and who painted the famous picture "The Last Supper" on the wall of the Dominican convent of Santa Maria della Gracie and which can be seen faithfully portrayed on one side of the sanctuary of St. Peter's. The other side carries an equally well executed painting, "The Feast of the Passover." The figures stand out in bold relief and they follow closely the copies of the master of the past, who possessed certain qualities of the highest kind, and whose drawings evince great delicacy, not of antique but formed on a degree of power combined with softness in productions that invest in them a peculiar charm. Here and there, as one faces the altar can be seen smaller figures emblematical of the church. In the side chapels are four paintings, two on each side, one of Christ in the Temple, "Death of Joseph," "Annunciation" and "Visitation." The dome is decorated with six designs representing the six mysteries of which the creed speaks: "The Birth of Christ," "The Crucifixion of Christ," "The Resurrection of Christ," "The Coming of the Holy Ghost" and "The Blessed Trinity." Here also can be seen the Apostles' creed in silver letters which has never before been attempted in church decorations in this country. The writer has made a vain effort at describing the decorations as they appear to the untutored eye and endeavored to set forth the work of the artist.

THE BETTER LIFE.

Somebody has tabulated for an English paper what it calls the "fourteen mistakes of life," and if you feel like taking a little food for serious thought, you could not do better than to give them attention. If you do not feel inclined that way now, put them away until you do. Here they are:

1. It is a mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly.
  2. To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.
  3. To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.
  4. To look for judgment and experience in youth.
  5. To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
  6. To look for perfection in our own actions.
  7. To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.
  8. Not to yield to immediate matters.
  9. Not to alleviate, as far as lies in our power, all that needs alleviation.
  10. Not to make allowance for the infirmities of others.
  11. To consider everything impossible that we cannot do.
  12. To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.
  13. To expect to be able to understand everything.
  14. To live for time, only, when any moment may launch us into eternity.
- Now, that is about as near preaching a sermon as we have ever come, but is there anything in it that you do not approve? It seems to us that it pretty nearly covers that comprehensive thing called duty.
- Every day is a little life and our whole life is but a day repeated. Those therefore, that dare lose a day are dangerously prodigal; those that dare misspend it are desperate.—Bishop Hall.

WHAT MEN FRIENDS THINK.

That a woman's foot, like her temper, is often most attractive when not displayed.

That a woman has no fears for the coldest winter when she has cleaned the house, got her teeth fixed and bought a new gown.

That one of the most embarrassing moments in a woman's life is that during which it behooves her to introduce some one whose name she has forgotten.

That when an engagement is broken a woman is much more ready to return a man's presents than his past—in the form of the love letters he has written her.

That many a girl who doesn't know a thing about foot ball goes season after season to the games just because she knows some of the players or because she considers it the proper thing to do.

That there are two particular forms of mania that attack women after they are 25. One is for attending social affairs, the other is experimenting with a washing-dish. One is quite as hard on the husband as the other.

CAMERA POINTS.

Foggy negatives: White light entering camera or dark room; too much light during development; introduction of hypo into developing solution; too warm developer, or excess of alkali.

Too strong with clear shadows: Under exposure.

Weak negatives with plenty of detail in the shadows: Over exposure, or too weak developer.

Too much intensity: Developer too strong, or too warm.

Fine transparent lines: Using too stiff a brush in dusting off plate.

Round transparent spots: Air bubbles in the developer.

Transparent spots of irregular shape: Dust. Keep the inside of camera and plate holder free from dust by occasionally using a damp cloth to dust with, and brush plates before exposure with a soft camel-hair brush.

Mottled appearance of negative and fading of image: Insufficient washing.

CAMERA NOTES.

Glycerine is the standard agent to prevent prints from curling. Add a little to both toning and fixing baths, or immerse the finished prints in a solution composed of water one part, glycerine three parts, alcohol four parts.

The magnesium strips which are often referred to in photographic magazines are strips of thin fabric impregnated with magnesia powder. They offer a convenient method of making quick night exposures.

The Smithsonian Institute at Washington will shortly possess the most rapid camera in the world. It is designed to take a successful negative of one six-hundredth of a second, and it is hoped that this may be increased so that a negative may be obtained in one thousandth part of a second.

Gelatine plates will keep indefinitely if not exposed to dampness. Even extreme heat will not affect them. If to be kept for any length of time, however, they should be wrapped in light-tight paper. A year should not cause the slightest deterioration in a good plate. Films are nowhere near so long-lived. Each roll is dated usually not more than six months ahead, and after that date the manufacturer does not guarantee it.

Uneliminated hypo in prints will do a great many disagreeable things, the most important of which is to entirely spoil the picture. There is one very good way of testing whether your final washing of the prints has been long enough, and that is adding to the wash water a small quantity of alcoholic solution of iodine. If there is hypo still in the prints the back of each one will turn light blue. Continue washing until this blue disappears. If no color appears the washing has been sufficient.

President Kruger, like other men, has his weakness. It is for green carpet slippers, which he dons the minute he crosses his own threshold. In regard to laundry expenses he is said to be extremely economical.

Justice Shiras of the Supreme Court wrote a letter of advice to a young lawyer the other day, in the course of which he said: "Above all, deserve, secure and keep the confidence of your clients. You will find this your best capital."

Ex-Gov. Warmouth, the first northern governor of Louisiana, has lived down the bitter unpopularity which at one time nearly cost him his life and is now one of the leading sugar planters of the State and a most successful lawyer.

Ex-Gov. Hogg, of Texas, is a wonderful story teller, but either from carelessness or design makes many grammatical errors in his conversation. He wears a twenty-two-inch collar, sports a wide open shirt front, a frock coat and looks western in the true sense of the word.

HINTS TO MERCHANTS.

The most expensive thing in the world is running in a rut.

If you stay at home you dry up; if you go to market you freshen up.

To dry up is to lose your customers.

If you go to market and your competitors do not your townspeople know it.

Fresh ideas are worth lots of money in business.

By going to market you get tips on styles.

Don't save pennies and waste dollars. Don't save on your railroad ticket and lose on the selling quality of your stock.

In business, running in a rut is trying to sell old things to persons who want new things—offering last year's goods instead of this year's.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Virtue is like a rich stone, best plain set.—Bacon.

Like all other men, the Prince of Wales is made of dust; but it looks as if his name would be mud before the reign shall come to him.

Vanity keeps persons in favor with themselves who are out of favor with all others.—Shakespeare.

Disgusted contributor—"Can I send you anything that won't be rejected?" Editor—"Certainly. Send a year's subscription."

He surely is most in want of another's patience who has none of his own.—Lavater.

Post—"Have you read my 'Death Agony?'" Editor—"No, but I'd like to see it."

Pride is increased by ignorance; those assume the most who know the least.—Gey.

"The girl who can't sing, but will sing," remarked a crusty New Yorker "should be sent to Sing Sing."

THANKSGIVING DAY

Prosperity, Peace and Happiness smile over our fair land, and hence the proclamation of the Governor that November 30th shall be set apart for its observance meets with a ready response in the hearts of the good people of Western New York. "A little wine now and then is a good thing for the best of men." There can be no purer, no better, than is to be found at the old-time reliable house of
