WONDERFUL AFFAIR.

EVIL SPIRITS WIPED OUT BY THE
USE OF HOLY WATER.

Mysterious Manifestations Removed
Through Catholic Ministrations Which Resulted in the Conversion of a Family of Six Persons.

Mrs. Cornelius Eckert and her five children are members of the Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Family, in Canastota, a Long Island village, and that through circumstances at once astounding and mysterious, if the stories that are of common report in the neighborhood of her home are true.

It is no less than the successful killing of evil spirits by holy water after members of the Salvation Army, a spiritualist and a trance medium had tried and failed. Manifestations of these spirits were such, it is said, as to have nearly driven the Eckert family insane with fear with their rappings on the doors, pounding on the floors and sounds of smashing glass. Cornelius Eckert, his wife, Alice, and their children have lived in the two-story frame house at Avenue L and Ninety-fourth street, Canastota, for some time, but their lives have been anything but pleasant since they moved into the building on account of the mysterious rappings and other uncanny happenings.

At first the members of the family did not notice the persistency of the mysterious agency which was at work. The manifestations were confined to the night time and for the most part took place after they had retired. Then the ghostly bedeviling would begin, and even the beds would shake and shudder until the five little ones would run screaming into their parents' room, only to find Mr. and Mrs. Eckert as greatly frightened as they.

Night after night the whole family would troop through the dismal house, only to find the windows secure, the doors locked and the furniture as it was when they retired to bed, but not to sleep. The condition of the Eckerts soon became the talk of the neighborhood, for the little ones would never remain at home when the father and mother were out, and each neighbor who sheltered them while Mrs. Eckert went shopping heard the stories of the haunted house and the ghostly sounds.

At last the mystery of it all became too great for Mrs. Eckert to bear. She determined that something must be done if they were to continue to live there or she would go mad with fear. Some one advised that the members of the Salvation Army be told of the mystery and asked to break the spell that covered them as with a pall.

Members of the Army called and tried to soothe Mrs. Eckert with their songs and prayers. The noise, however, did not stop, but even became more insistent and fierce. Mrs. Eckert then called in a spiritualist, but the latter failed lamentably, as did a trance medium. It was the visit of this medium that almost capped the climax.

She was a woman, and immediately upon entering the haunted house she went into a trance. Upon awakening she said she had seen a woman dressed in white, and from her description Mrs. Eckert concluded it was her mother, who had died when she was a child. To Mrs. Eckert this appearance of her mother was as fearful as the mysterious rappings.

Mrs. Eckert went immediately with this story to her neighbor, Mrs. Smith, who, being a good Catholic, recommended that Mrs. Eckert apply to her spiritual adviser for relief. Mrs. Eckert was a Protestant, but in company with Mrs. Smith went to see the Rev. Thomas F. Horan, of the Church of the Holy Family.

Mrs. Smith explained to him, it is said, the deep trouble the Eckert family was in, and he gave her some holy water, telling them to go to the afflicted house and sprinkle it about the rooms. This was on Thursday night last, and neither Mrs. Eckert nor Mrs. Smith will ever forget the occasion. Entering the house in fear and trembling, they paused and then, mustering up courage, dashed the holy water about the darkened room. A wonderful thing happened, according to the story told by Mrs. Eckert. Wherever the water touched, flames, rose colored and brilliant, burst from the walls and floors, so that, standing as they had been in the dark, they saw the color of the wall paper. For the first time in months the family rested that night without disturbance. The evil spirits had been driven away.

The success of the trial of the holy water was told to Father Horan on Friday night by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Eckert, and preparations were at once begun for the complete exorcising of the spell. With Father Horan and the two women to the house went Father Patrick J. Cherry, assistant pastor of the Church of the Presentation.

A visit was made to each room in the Eckert home, where, according to the Catholic ritual, the room was blessed. Again the family slept in peace.

It was half-past 10 o'clock on Friday night when the two priests finished their labors, and since then no untoward noise has disturbed the Eckert household. Mrs. Eckert and her five children were at once baptized by Father Horan and received into the Catholic Church. The children's names are Margaret, Edward, Mabel and Miranda. They range from twelve to two years of age.

Mrs. Eckert when seen last night at her home declared the story of the mysterious spirits were true, and said she and her children had become converted to the Catholic faith. Father Horan was uncommunicative, but admitted he visited the house on Friday night to bless it.

Father Cherry, however, told me in detail the mysterious happenings in the Eckert household, and of the success of himself and his brother priest in exorcising the spell that had been cast about Mr. and Mrs. Eckert and their family.

The Little Sisters of the Poor have throughout the world 275 houses, with 4,590 professed sisters, 219 novices and 40,496 old people in charge. From the origin of the order up to the present time 152,777 have died in its care.

CATHOLIC NOTES.

At Chicago, Ill., on last Sunday evening Hon. Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of that City addressed the Holy Family and St. Monica's Total Abstinence societies in the Sodality hall of the Jesuit Church.

Another new church for New York that of the Holy Name of Jesus, 96th street and Amsterdam avenue, will be dedicated in the near future.

Prince Liechtenstein has taken the habit at the Benedictine Convent of Emaus, Prague.

Rev. C. H. Parks, who recently resigned as chaplain in the navy, has been appointed rector of St. Thomas Aquinas Church West Farms, N. Y.

Three Augustinian Fathers from Villanova, Pa., opened a three weeks' mission in St. Columbkille Church, Pauline street and Grand avenue, Chicago, Ill., Feb. 4th.

A nephew of Cardinal Manning and a nephew of the present Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster are at the front in South Africa.

The Very Rev. Father Esser, O. P., has been appointed secretary of the Sacred Congregation of the Index.

Right Rev. Mgr. John S. Vaughan, of London, will preach the Lenten course of sermons at the beautiful Church of San Silvestro, Rome.

Fifteen missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus will leave Rome for New York at the end of the present month.

One hundred and fifty persons are under instruction by the Paulists in New York City, as the result of a week's mission.

In a decision filed Jan. 30 Judge Troutt appointed Archbishop Riordan as trustee of the $100,000 fund left by the late Mrs. Anne Donahue for the establishment of a library for Catholic young men of San Francisco.

Sir Charles Tupper has reopened the Manitoba school question, and says he is going to press it forward until justice is done to the Catholics.

It is said that Bishop Chatard, who has returned from Rome, asked for a coadjutor when in the Eternal City. No one is known to have been selected.

The Catholics of France subscribe sixty million francs a year to pay the expense of Catholic schools which are unsupported by the State.

When Archbishop Chapelle completes his work in the Philippines, he will visit Europe. It is said that he will return to New Orleans not later than November next.

The work of erecting crucifixes in honor of the Redeemer on Italy's mountain heights is rapidly proceeding, and there is scarcely a hill, promontory or celebrated peak that will not offer its homage to the Saviour.

Miss Mary Ireland, the eldest sister of Archbishop John Ireland, died at St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Paul, Minn., the 7th inst., aged 68 years. The funeral was held at the Cathedral and the Archbishop officiated.

There are eight Catholic Churches in Trenton and each maintains a parochial school for the children of the parish. The latest returns made to Bishop McFaul several months ago showed that these eight schools at that time had a total enrollment of 2,847 children.

A two weeks' renewal of the mission by the Augustinian Fathers will begin at the Annunciation church Philadelphia on the patronal feast, Sunday, March 25.

Father Robert, the noted Passionist missionary, will lecture at the Church of Our Lady of Mercy Philadelphia on St. Patrick's night, Saturday March 17.

Bishop Shanley, of Fargo, made an appeal on behalf of the Indian and colored missions at the Philadelphia Cathedral last week which met with a generous response.

During 1899 eleven Catholic churches were built in Texas. Eight others are contemplated in the near future. This is a phenomenal growth in that great state. Several convents have also been erected.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Boston, Feb. 2, four of the Jesuit Fathers of Boston College took their final vows as members of the Society of Jesus. They are Revs. John A. Moore, Joseph Rockwell, Henry Judge and Bernard Keeney. Rev. Father Rockwell and Moore are Boston men and former students at Boston College.

I have often heard it said, and I believe it to be true, that even the most eloquent man living, and however deeply impressed with the subject, could scarcely find utterance if he were to be standing up alone and speaking only against a dead wall.—Erskine.

The land of matrimony possesses this peculiarity, that strangers to it would like to dwell in it, and the natural inhabitants wish to be exiled.—Montaigne.

How many women are born too finely organized in sense and soul for the highway they must walk with feet unshod.—O. W. Holmes.

Leisure is the time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain; the lazy man never.—Ben Franklin.

In order to conquer, what we need is to dare, still to dare, and always to dare.—Dumas.

FENIANISM.

A Brief History of the Organization and of Some of its Valiant Leaders.

From 1855 until 1861 the organization struggled along manfully, recruiting, subscribing, organizing, drilling, giving entertainments for the funds under various assumed names, assembling in halls by paid tickets to listen to inspiring lectures with the belief that the net proceeds would place a few more rifles where true Irish hands could find them. In September, 1860, a fall field day of Erin's sons and daughters that took place in the groves of the Middlesex Fens of Massachusetts, proved to be a remunerative and enjoyable assemblage, and in the succeeding winter old Union Hall, Boston, where the Pilot office is now located, was the scene of a grand festive gathering, larger than anything hitherto of its kind held by the Irish race in the city.

The stimulating moral effect of an act of Colonel Corcoran in New York, late in 1860, was felt in every Fenian circle in the country. He refused to parade the 69th regiment when the Prince of Wales was to be received and escorted in that metropolis. Nearly every officer and man of the command was a Fenian. The Prince's visit here, as usual, was hailed as the harbinger of great, of wonderful things. "Shoddyism," a term not then known, but quite applicable, was up in the region of hysteria and in perpetual flutter at his coming. Oh, such an auspicious event! Lord Byron's satire on a descent of royalty on another shore applies:

"Lo, he comes! the Messiah of royalty comes!"

Like a goodly Leviathan rolled from the waves. Then receive him as best such an advent becomes. With a legion of cooks and an army of slaves."

But Corcoran would not parade the colors of Washington and Erin before the son of a queen that showed such little humanity or practical charity for the Irish people during the appalling years of '46 and '47. The New York authorities placed Colonel Corcoran in military arrest.

He was invited to Boston, and a grand reception was given him with two of his military staff at Tremont Temple, supplemented by a banquet at the Parker House largely attended. The veteran patriot, Colonel Doherty, was also a guest of the Fenians and citizens on this occasion.

A few weeks after these happenings the Southern Secession was broke out, and the nation found other uses for Corcoran and his command than remaining in arrest. In Special Orders, 1st Division N. Y. S. M., April 20, '61, General Sanford directed that the charges be dismissed and the colonel ordered to resume command. April 24 the 69th was on its way to Washington to fight for the Union, at the call of the Government. One of the first forts erected south of the Potomac, in sight of Georgetown Heights, was Fort Corcoran, built by the gallant New York Irish lad of the famed corps. Its members might be Fenians; but they sought for Ireland an autonomy like unto the United States. They even proved their patriotism superior to the glib darts that flattered round the dazling light of royalty a few months before in the big cities of the States.

The North realized that the "dollar on loan" was a humiliating memory in view of the hostility of England's royal and aristocratic classes, and their eagerness to assist in the disruption of the Union. The appalling war between the South and the North increased in intensity. Thousands of Irishmen entered it, and many of them in the South took sides with their section. But the green flag dominated with the armies of the Government.

The war was developing a legion of trained soldiers eager to serve Ireland. While the Union side had Major-General James Shields, the South had General Patrick Cleburne.

The Washington government soon discovered the British intrigues against it. Secretary Seward had been governor of New York. He knew that there was much in the Fenian spirit to be depended upon, and his confidential men conferred with its leaders. John O'Mahoney felt that he could not leave for the front; but he commanded a legion guard at home in New York, and was commissioned colonel in the service of the country. The fear of what the Irish in the States and Canada would do was a constant threat against perfidious Albion, and kept her in check. The Government at Washington knew it. An overt act on the part of England, and a force to land in Ireland would have organized here.

During 1861 an open, unarmed invasion in Ireland was made, and its successful and powerful reception demonstrated the strength and unity of the Nationalist element. The remains of Terence Bellew McManus, a thorough patriot, were taken there. He was one of the noble band of 1848, who was in that time sentenced to be "hanged, drawn and quartered" near the spot where Robert Emmet perished, but whose sentence was changed to serve a term of years with the British malefactors in the penal colonies of the Antipodes. He made a gallant escape from his British jailers, and remained in San Francisco, where he died. His Fenian co-patriots on the Pacific slope resolved on sending his body home to the land of his love. The arrival of it with its escorts in New York was the occasion of very impressive ceremonies. Archbishop Hughes delivered an address. The departure for Ireland was attended with the Godspeeds of tens of thousands.

The McManus funeral in Ireland, from the landing in Cork to the repositing of the remains in Glasnevin cemetery in Dublin, was a similar procession, and showed martial discipline throughout. Said Charles Kickham: "A sovereign state could have given no grander funeral honors to her greatest citizen than enslaved Ireland gave to the patriot who was torn from his shores in chains." Groups of red-coated soldiery, in full-dress uniform, mostly non-commissioned officers, joined in the procession, and did this in obedience to the command of the Irish Head Centre. It was estimated that about fifty thousand men were marshalled in Dublin for the occasion. Organized contingents came from all parts of Ireland. The procession passed the house where Lord Edward Fitzgerald met his death; it passed by the scene of Brompton's execution and through High street, where Wolfe Tone's remains were deposited before interment in Bodensown churchyard.

The British Government looked across the Atlantic at the tempting struggle between the American States, and then pondered. President Lincoln and his great Secretary, Seward, at Washington, found comfort and more nerve for their arduous task, when the details of the semi-military obsequies were communicated to them.

Throughout the armies of the Union Fenian clubs and associations were found. Naturally they were chiefly composed of Irishmen, or of men of immediate Irish descent. But there were many brave and generous American soldiers who craved membership and who were enrolled as contributors to the funds.

In the Irish brigade there were several circles. One of its commands was the 68th New York with devoted Fenians like Colonel Gleeson, Captain John Warren, Dr. Lawrence Reynolds, Captain Kavanagh, Capt. P. J. Condon. In the 88th regiment were Colonel Patrick Kelley, who fell commanding a brigade in front of Petersburg, 1864; Quartermaster Haverly; General Denis F. Burke, Temple Emmet—grand-nephew of Ireland's martyr—and scores of others, able and eager patriots. The 38th Massachusetts had many; Lieutenant-Colonel Convey, Major Lator, Captain O'Connor were of the patriotic corps. But the old 69th led the way. Even amid its arduous duties at Fort Corcoran the "old cause" was active. Thomas Francis Meagher was then a captain in the 69th. Volunteer aids were Charles G. Halpin, afterwards general, John Savage, of '46, and eminent as a writer, who succeeded O'Mahoney and Gleeson as American Head Centre of the Brotherhood. Of the engineer corps were James B. Kirker, Judge John H. McGurn, L. O'Meara, etc.

Among the captains were James Cavanagh, later a brigadier-general in New York, James Haggerty, all able men. Corcoran and many of his officers when at the fort were frequently the guests of Seward and other cabinet officers, and it was subsequently noticed that whenever President Lincoln visited the Army of the Potomac, he had Meagher at his side in making the grand rounds. He loved the gifted and gallant "Meagher of the sword."

The "Circles of the Army of the Potomac" increased.
