ST. JOSEPH.

The feast of St. Joseph is celebrated on the nineteenth of March, and for this reason the month of March is dedicated to honor, venerate and pray to this great friend of God. The church has in various ways en couraged this devotion Her devout children have taken it up, so that we and the month of March as much dedicated to St. Joseph as the month of May to the Blessed Virgin. Catholics hold St. Joseph in high veneration, and deservedly so. They have great confidence in his power before God; they know that he is a great saint, and a great favorite with the Al mighty. Many examples of virtue has of poverty, his assiduous labors, his a sanitarium always enabled him to resignation to the will of God in the most trying circumstances, are practical virtues, which we may endeavor to acquire for our own spiritual as well human life are such that we often find ourselves having to sustain hard trials in which we need precisely those same virtues which made him a great saint with great joy, and continue to honor this saint, that we may love him, and become particularly devoted to him. Let us pray especially for our eternal salvation, in which he is greatly interested being the patron of a happy death, and then we will be sharers, after this life, in the same glory which pleted in the house of the order in he enjoys in heaven.

Monsignor Martinelli in a paper on "The Celibacy of the Priesthood," in Harper's Bazar, says: "Celibacy has been an immemorial custom of the priests and bishops of the Catholic church, dating back to the time of the Apostles. * * Since the rumor concerning the permission extend ed to the South American priests to break the law of celibacy, it has been frequently said that the Pone had no power to rescind this established order that it would require a council of the church. This is another error growing ont of a misconception of the discipline which prevails. Lee XIII, has the mme power to withdraw this order that Gregory VII. had to issue it. Nothme, however, is more unlikely. The South American priests do not desire and have never petitioned for such a dispensation. * *

A NOBLE EXAMPLE

THE TAXABLE PROPERTY.

Gilmour Council, Catholic Knights of Columbus, of Cleveland, Ohio, has set an example which may, says the Michigan Catholic, well be emulated by other Councils and other societies. Arrangements have been made by the members of that Council to take three orphan boys each year from the St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum of that city and defray the expense of giving them a two years' course in some Catholic college. This is as it should be, and is a noble mission in itself.

What do our societies of men and women amount to, if they do not benefit some one besides those individually interested? If one society is not rich enough to assist some charity, then let two or more band together, leave all petty jealousies aside and go in and work together amicably for the good of those less fortunate. There is something more to be accomplished than increasing the number of branches, giving socials and passing resolutions. A fund could easily be started for the benefit of some charitable institution, and something added to it each year, until enough was raised to contribute a good donation. True, many of the members individually do their share for sweet charity's sake aring the year, but if all would work together how much easier it would be, and what grand results would be attained. There is no charity more deserving than the orphanges, and Gilmour Council, K of C, deserve the thanks of all rightminded Catholics for the noble example they have set.

The proposed woman's college to be established at Brentwood, L. I., and which will be known as St. Joseph's plans are being prepared, and the building will cost at least $300,000.
