A SENSIBLE SCHEME.

EDITOR CATHOLIC JOURNAL:

A clipping, headed, "An Appeal with Spunk in It," and with a lesson between the lines, has come to my notice, and I take the liberty of copying the same and request that you publish it in the name of justice. There are many besides Catholics who would like to see right triumphant in this British question. There is a pitiful sarcasm in the words "Queen's demonstration" and "Queen's Treat." The queen is only the figure head and tool for the English politicians McKinley, or as he is more properly called, McCauley, in the "king" of the American republic since he has power to set aside a law justly passed and acknowledged to be unimpeachable. The following is the clipping:

"Father Mahoney, whose name is not unfamiliar to the readers of the Columbian, sends us this note which should meet with favorable and prompt response:

MENDOTA, Minn., May 16, 1900.

Editor Catholic Columbian:

Dear Sir:—In Dublin a number of ladies headed by Miss Maud Gonne, propose to give a treat to the children who refused to lend themselves to the loyalty splurge in Dublin during the queen's visit. They say: "An immense number of children had the firmness and courage not to attend the queen's treat in Phoenix park. Out of the 35,000 children only 5,000 allowed themselves to be used for a Unionist demonstration. It is no small thing for a child to forego its natural curiosity for a show, to say nothing of ignoring the inducements of sweets and cakes. Some recognition is due these children, and on a date convenient to Wolf Tone's birthday, June 20th, we propose a national treat in which they can all take part. The committee appeals to all in sympathy with the object to assist with donations. May O'Leary, Curtis, Judith Rooney, Hon. Treas., 32 Lower Abbey street, Dublin.

There is at last an appeal from Old Ireland which has some spunk in it! As to how to send donations from this side: Greenbacks would be all right, but postal order safer. Any donations for this object which readers may find it easier to send through me may be in greenbacks, postal orders, stamps, and shall be faithfully forwarded with my own, which shall be at least $5, may be $10.

(Rev.) MARTIN MAHONY,
Mendota, Minn.

What is the reason why THE JOURNAL should not start a subscription and allow some of us patriotic and liberty loving Americans to help in this eminently sensible scheme? The money could be forwarded by draft to Father Mahony, who would include it when sending his own, giving Rochester gives the credit therefor, thereby encouraging a spirit of loyalty and love of country that shall refuse to submit to English persecution. If anyone wants a piece of education to help him or her to see why this is just and right, let them read "The Last Conquest of Ireland," on sale in one of our large dry goods establishments' basement, where the writer saw it the other day associated with paper covered literature of an entirely different order. Every intelligent American, every Irishman who loves Ireland and country under the heel of English money-grabbers where the present imperialistic administration is sending it, should read this book. I believe they have two copies in the store referred to, but a demand would cause them to purchase it and help to educate the people.

A METHODIST.
The editor of THE JOURNAL will willingly accept and forward any subscriptions that may be sent to him. Copies of the book can be seen at this office.

RICHARD McDONALD WANTED.

KEOKUK, Ia., May 17, 1900.
EDITOR CATHOLIC JOURNAL:

Dear Sir:—On Friday, May 11th, an Irishman by the name of Richard McDonald and who had lived here for a number of years, died. He had accumulated a nice property and some cash. Had no relatives here. His wife died about four years ago and there were no children. During his last illness, which was short, he said that he had two brothers and three sisters; that he had not heard from them for a number of years, the last was that some of them were living at Rochester, N. Y., and some at Palmyra. I understood that they were laborers. Very likely some of them are living, and if you will call their attention through your paper, it may do them great good. I was his physician and will answer enquiries.

Yours very truly,

H. A. KINNAMAN.

THE GOSPELS

GOSPEL: St John xv 26 27; xvi. 1-4.—At that time, Jesus said to His disciples: "When the Paraclete cometh, Whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of truth, Who proceedeth from the Father, He shall give testimony of Me. And you shall give testimony, because you were with Me from the beginning. These things have I spoken to you, that you may not be scandalized. They will put you out of the synagogues; yea, the hour cometh that whosoever killeth you will think that he doth a service to God. And these things will they do to you, because they have not known the Father nor Me. But these things I have told you that when the hour of them shall come, you may remember that I told you."

In a certain sense these words were also intended for us. We also bear witness to Jesus, by leading a life according to His holy law; we also, by sincerely professing the faith and by observing the laws of the gospel, may expect, as St. Paul says, to be persecuted; we also who find ourselves objects of persecution must be encouraged by the hope of our eternal reward in heaven.

TWO NEW SAINTS.

John Baptist de La Salle, who was raised to the altars of the Church in Rome last Thursday, was born at Rheims, April 30, 1651. He was ordained in 1678. His first priestly work was to act as chaplain to the Sisters of the Holy Child Jesus, whose work was the education of poor girls. A cousin of De La Salle, a pious lady living in Rouen, opened in her native city, Rheims, a free school for poor boys, and the young priest aided her. Several other schools were opened, and finally De La Salle determined to give his whole time to the work of such schools. It was in this way that the order of the Brothers of the Christian Schools began. The Christian Brothers now have schools all over the world. In the United States there are at present about 1,000 Christian Brothers, and they have more than 40,000 boys as pupils. The total number of Christian Brothers throughout the world is about 12,000.

Rita Da Cascia, who was canonized a Saint of God on the same occasion, is known as the "patroness of impossibilities," on account of the numerous extraordinary miracles wrought in her name. She was born in a village, Grotto Umbria, in Italy, in 1377. When 13 years old she made a vow of chastity, but her parents, wishing to have her marry opposed her, and she finally took a husband. After a married life of eighteen years her husband and two sons died, the husband being slain by an enemy. Rita then determined to become a nun and applied at the convent of the Augustinian nuns in Cascia but as it was contrary to the rules of that community to receive widows they refused her admittance to the order. The story goes that after having been refused by the nuns three times, Rita one night while at prayer was carried through the air and placed inside the cloister of the nuns, despite the barred doors of the convent. After that miracle the nuns it is said gladly received her into their order. She died on May 21, 1443. Rita, by the way has become famous as a model for wives who have quarrelsome husbands. Her husband, several years her senior, was a most ferocious man, the terror of all the country round in the house he was as quarrelsome and contentious as elsewhere. For eighteen years Blessed Rita had to endure living with this ill-tempered man, and by her gentleness and patience considerably softened his harsh character, making him perfectly tractable as well as submissive to God's will. As a seeker of peace she imparted her own disposition to the unruly husband, conjuring away his ferocity by means of kindness.

The Catholic Church as the Protestant people understand her, does not exist nor did she ever exist, in the way they imagine her. They have been told the most outrageous things about her from their very infancy. They were warned not to play with Catholic children, that the latter are below them, that Catholicism is a foreign growth, that the priests want to keep the people in ignorance, that Catholics are not allowed to think for themselves, that the priest makes them believe as he sees fit, that the Church is a vast organization for the enslaving of the human intellect, and hundreds of such outrageous things. It is no wonder that Protestants are suspicious of the Church.—Rev. J. L. Meagher.

Some notable converts have been made recently in Japan among the foreign residents there. Among those may be mentioned Mr. Chamberlain, an American, whose beautiful books about Japan are well known to all lovers of the land of flowers; the Hawaiian minister; Dr. von Koeler, a distinguished Russian savant, of German extraction, who is at present professor of philosophy at the Imperial university, and the Baroness d'Anethan, wife of the Belgian minister, and dean of the diplomatic corps in Japan, and sister of Mr. Rider Haggard. The baroness has written several novels and is now at work on another. The beautiful verses she contributes occasionally to foreign journals show that she has a highly poetical nature.

In his recent sermon in St. John's cathedral, Syracuse, Bishop Ludden said that life was one continuous journey towards death. The young are striving to set aside the old; the child on the street bids defiance to his elder to get out of his way on the sidewalk; and so on through all the walks of life. The bishop amplified this idea still further by saying that even young priests, when they hear that some old pastor is ill, go around anxiously to see if there is any crape on his door. He also said that as it was with the young priests and the sick pastor, so was it with the elderly ambitious ecclesiastics who were looking for the bishop's mitre. "I take occasion," said the bishop, "to serve public notice on them that I belong to that class of individuals who never get well and never die." He said that he came from a long-lived race.

Archbishop Ryan confirmed 620 persons at St. Francis Xavier's, Philadelphia, recently.

Branch 545, L. C. B. A., gave their reception and pedro party Friday evening, May 18 at their rooms. Prizes were won by Miss C. Timerman, first, and Miss Clarke second; Frank Monaghan first, and Mr. Sullivan second. After refreshments the guests departed well pleased with their evening and hope to live to see more of them.
