LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

Who can define love's sweet young

Or all its pleasure tell, As it assumes the sway of heart. And whispers, "All is well?" The soul is lifted far above The lonely paths of life, Until it seems to dwell in realms Remote from care or strife.

It soars to dreamland's blissful realms, And finds Elysium here, While loving souls seem to unite, Each other's joys to share; And bliss so sweet, no words express, Fills the awakened heart. While all the outside cares of life

What more like paradise on earth, Than true hearts joined in love? They, as their happy hearts rejoice, Send grateful thanks above To Him who orders all our joys, Our blessings doth bestow. Love in her joy will not forget

Their souls can never part.

A SET OF TEETH.

It is considerably over a year now sinc, the unfortunate events which I the best years of my life of every: shadow of romance, and giving my vanity a blow, the sting of which it will take a long time to deaden; but they are as fresh in my memory as if they had happened but yesterday.

It was a dark drizzling afternoon about a week before Christmas. The few people who were about hurried along muffled up to the chin: among them all I seemed to be the only one happy and contented, and I had good reason so to be. It was only a few days ago that the prettiest woman on earth, in my opinion, my own sweet Kitty, had promised to be my wife, and I was now going, with joy in my heart, to buy the token of our mutual
