ETHNOLOGICAL BUILDING.

Domed Edifice of Great Beauty for the Pan-American Exhibition

The Ethnology Building will be one of the most central in the extensive group now in process of construction for the great Pan-American exposition at Buffalo next year. The site for this structure is at the east junction of the Court of the Fountains and the grand Esplanade. It will be conspicuous from all parts of the ground and its ornate character will entitle it to the place of honor to which it has been assigned.

The building is circular in plan with four main entrances connected by a continuous colonnade. The colonnade is seven feet above the level of the Esplanade, forming a loggia from which commanding views of the grounds may be obtained. The loggia will be adorned with a broad frieze above the windows and with other mural decorations, statuary and plants. Above the colonnade is a terrace with balustrade and statuary figures representing the ethnological types of the five different races.

Over each of the entrances is a pediment or low gable with the Pan-American seal forming the decorative motive of the tympanum or triangular space of the gable. Back of and above each pediment is a sculptured group of horses. The roof of the building is a large dome like that of the Pantheon at Rome. This is capped by a decorative cresting which hides the skylight opening. Just below the dome in the encircling shaft are eight circular windows which light the upper gallery. There are two octagonal galleries, the first 25 feet above the main floor and the second 21 feet higher. On the main floor there are 20,000 square feet of floor space, or about half an acre. The galleries add 10,000 square feet more. The galleries and roof terrace are accessible by stair cases and elevators on each side of the four entrances. The first gallery commands a fine view of the entire interior and will be used for exhibition purposes. The second gallery opening on the roof will be used for restaurant purposes and for the accommodation of employees of the grounds. The roof terrace affords a broad view of the park, the Esplanade, Court of the Fountains, aquatic basins, sunken gardens, the mirror lakes and lagoons, buildings and other features of the Exposition. The eight decorated pillars of the interior support eight arches forming the octagon, which with the pendants, carry the dome. The galleries encircle the octagon, leaving an open space under the dome 80 feet in diameter and 120 feet high. In the center of the building is a fountain surrounded by seats and chairs. The building is intended to be a place of rendezvous for visitors. The structure is a 140 feet high and was designed by George Cary of Buffalo.

DEATH OF A VALIANT WOMAN.

News has been received from England of the death of Rev. Mother, foundress and first superior general of the Poor Servants of the Mother of God and of the Poor, at St. Mary's Convent, Southampton, England. Those who have read the "Life of Lady Georgiana Fullerton" must remember her intense interests in the establishment of this order in England and her strong friendship and union with the woman who was to be its head, and so long survive her, Fanny Margaret Taylor was the daughter of a Lincolnshire rector who gave her early years to charitable works, and who later went to the Crimea as one of Miss Nightingale's volunteer nurses. There she became a convert to the Catholic Church, and on returning home ministered to the needs of the poor in London (Gradually a small community gathered about her, and in 1879 the Laureate of France was granted to her, followed by the formal approbation of the only Father in 1892. They have a flourishing house and school in Rome, while in France, England, Wal's, Ireland, Scotland, Italy, many good works are carried on through her endeavors, and more than 300 religious are left to carry on what she began. As we remember the account given, years ago of this new community, they were founded upon an institute established in Poland, where the Sisters lived in rooms or houses hired like the poor, among the poor, supported themselves by sewing, gardening, etc., had for their chapel the parish church, and strove to show by their example how one's religion could bring joy and comfort into the humblest lives. It might be styled a social movement by Catholic Sisters.

JUST IN FUN

Bunko-steerer—How are all the folks in Philadelphia? Brooklyn Man (Indignantly)—Why do you think I'm from Philadelphia? Bunko-steerer—Because you are so deeply absorbed in yesterday's paper.—Judge.

"A lady has written a letter to a New York paper saying she believes the devil is a woman." "Why? Because the devil is always after men?" Manager—The play met with something of a frost last night. Playwright—Yes, but fortunately none of the papers roasted it this morning. Manager—Hub! There's cold comfort in that.—Philadelphia Press.

"Is this a case of long standing, madam?" asked the doctor of the patient's wife. "Oh, my goodness, no!" she replied. "He hasn't been on his feet in six weeks."—Chicago News.

Rose—I would never marry a man without principle. Lily—Nor I. And I should want his principle to be big enough to allow us to live well on the interest, too.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Do you know what makes money so scarce?" asked the man who was making an inflammatory speech on social subjects. "Yes, sir," answered a man in the front row. "It's sitting here listening to you, instead of going to work."—Washington Star.

"Ah yes," sighed the girl, "he works in an atmosphere of art."

"I should think from the smell of his clothes," her mother answered, "that he works in an atmosphere of tobacco smoke."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"How did you like my speech," inquired the orator. "It was too short," answered the disagreeable friend. "Ah you wanted more of it?" "Emphatically. The applause for the speaker who followed you woke me in the middle of a beautiful nap."—Washington Star.

"Papa," exclaimed Johnny, struggling with a very copious brand of influenza. "If the nose is an organ, why don't it have stops?"

Julius—Oh, if you'd only love me as warmly as I do you! Nellie—We would both be cremated, I fear.

Tom—Yes, I always laugh at Johnny's funny sayings. I am under certain obligations to him, you know. Jack—Why, what a coincidence. I owe him money, too.

"I say Broom!" "Call me by my whole name, if you please. It has a handle to it, and it was meant to be used for sweeping." "That's so. Well, Broom—handy how are you?"

"No, Bobbie," said his mother; "one piece of pie is quite enough for you." "It's funny," responded Bobbie, with an injured air. "You say you are anxious for me to learn to eat properly, and yet you won't give me a chance to practice!"

Wash a baby up clean and dress him up pretty, and he will resist all advances with a most superlative crossness, but let him eat chocolates, gingerbread, and play about with the coal-scuttle for about half-an-hour, and he will nestle his dear little dirty face close up to your clean shirt bosom and be the loveliest little rascal in all the world.

Fangle—What did you buy for a birthday present for your wife, Cumsy? Cumsy—A box of fine cigars. "She doesn't smoke, does she?" "No, but I do."

CURIOS FACTS

When a traveler in the grand duchy of Baden wants to send a telegram while he is on the train, he writes the message on a pot card, with the request that it be wired puts on a stamp and drops it into the train letter box. At the next station the box is cleared and the message sent out.

Statistics indicate that, while yellow fever varies with the rainfall, it is limited by elevation above sea level. This elevation, however, is widely different in different countries. In the United States it is 800 feet, in Mexico 2,800 feet, in Brazil 2,700 feet, and in Jamaica 4,000 feet. It would appear that it climbs highest in the West Indies.

It has been decided to establish a meteorological observatory at the top of the great cathedral spire in Ulm, Germany. The Ulm cathedral is one of the most extraordinary in existence, on account of the great size and height of its single spire, which reaches an elevation of 523 feet. Although the great church was begun more than 600 years ago, the spire was not completed until 1890.

One of the rarest and most expensive of Chinese gold fishes is the brush-tail, a pair of which sells for $1,000. The brush-tail gold fish is so small that an American silver dollar will cover it, and probably there is no other living thing of its size and weight that is worth so much money. Like all the other Chinese fishes that are so highly prized by collectors, the form of the brush-tail is due to some extent to artificial methods. The Chinese know how to assist nature in shaping and beautifying fishes. How they do it is one of their many secrets which we have not yet discovered.
