The Landdrost made a speech, an eager and earnest speech, full of fight and courage, and the Americans cheered him and the South African Republic. Many more Boers boarded the train here, and while the speechmakes could be lessened. "Apart from the ing was going forward entered the carfarms, and leaning out to hold their hands. The Boer women wore deep black alpaca frocks and black sunbonnets, and under the cover of these were weeping. They made a contrast to the white starched dresses and bright collors of the other women and little girls of Middleburg who were giving flowers and the Transvaal ribbon to the American volunteers. The men from "cross two seas" received this simple welcome modestly and becomingly.

I have traveled with many soldiers on trains and transports and on the march, with our own regulars, with 'Tommies." volunteers and soldiers of foreign lands, but I never saw men behave better than did the Chicago contingent. The temptations which beset them by the wayside were many. They had been six weeks at sea, and that, apart from the fact that they were going "to the front" through a friendly country, with refreshment bars at every station, was sufficient excuse for over-rejoicing. But, on the contrary, the men conducted themselves as well as the best disciplined troops in the world, and were then, as they were later in Pretoria, as wellbehaved and self-respecting as I am sure they will prove to be brave. There was no band to play for them at Middleburg, so just before the train moved on the Landdrost gathered the Boers and the women and girls to-
