The Annadown Athletic sports held on Sunday, Sept. 23, were most successful. The weather conditions were all that could be desired. There were 14 good events on the card, and each was well contested. As evidence of the wide popularity of the fix use large contingents were present from Galway, Athenry, Tuam, Healford, Moycullen, Ross and Oughterard.

In Killinin churchyard, near Creachmhail, recently, a memorial was erected over the remains of Anthony Raftery, a great Irish poet. To the e .forts of Lady Gregory, Edward Martyn, Dr. Hyde, Thomas O. Coinceatnin, is due the merit that the best of all the Connacht bard lies not in an unmarked and forgotten grave. The's : is no Gaelic speaker in the West with any pretension to an interest in 1rish who has not some of Raftery's rhymes by heart, and such of his pieces as have been printed have amply justified the taste of the people of C.nnacht. His "Planudaidh Mhuigh Eo" and "An Posaidh Glegeal," to name but his two best known poems, are marvels of mellifiuous versificat on. The volume of his work, which is in preparation, will be among the most interesting of Irish poetical literature The stone in Killinin bears the word "Rachtiraigh," but it will identify + the resting place of the bard for all - time. A great gathering of country people attended the unveiling, and when the ceremony was over Dr. Hyde me gave a short account of the post's life. contracting his time with the present, and appealing to revert to the old system. W. B. Yeats, Father Considine, Andrias MacFhloinn and Father Mac-Donagh joined in the appeal, and we may, we trust, look to the incident wakening the country from the Suck to Galway Bay, the scene of Raftery's peregrinations, and the place that has the honor of having caught him to its Somon.
