FIVE MINUTE SERMON.

SHORT INSTRUCTIONS ON THE GOSPEL BY A REVEREND FATHER.

Gospel — St. Luke v. 1-11 — The Miraculous Draught of Fishes.

The Catholic Church has been exposed from her very beginning to the persecution of paganism, heresy, and false philosophy. By the preaching of the apostles and their successors she has made immense conquests in all parts of the world. In the midst of continual vicissitudes she has always had the assistance of God, who watched over her safety and led her to victory, although He seemed to sleep and to have abandoned her to the fury of enemies. She possesses the truth, and teaches heavenly doctrines that are directly opposed to the spirit of the world. You will, therefore, recognize in her the bark of Peter, now tossed about by the waves, now loaded with rich treasures, now triumphing over the tempests, because Jesus Christ is with her, and as the oracle of her Master she teaches whomsoever listeth to her from the shore. Let us, therefore launch out into the deep; let us work, and, disengage our hearts from the world, follow our Master on the way to heaven.

Waco, Texas, is soon to have another great educational institution. It will be a Catholic college, for boys and the building alone will ultimately cost $75,000. At a meeting of the Business Men's club held recently, Rev. V. Marljon, representing the Basilian Fathers of Toronto, Can., made a proposition to the club that if they were furnished with a site for the college it would be located in Waco. The proposition was accepted and work on the erection of the buildings will begin in six months.

A daughter was born to the King and Queen of Italy last Saturday and is to be named Yolanda Margherita when baptized. Concerning this baptism a Rome dispatch says "Strong efforts are being made to induce the Pope, even indirectly, to take part in the religious ceremonies attending the christening by delegating a Cardinal to be present. Queen Margherita is especially interested in these negotiations as an auspicious opening of a new and friendlier era in the relations of the Vatican and the Quirinal."

A rumor is current here to the effect that the Dowager Duchess of Newcastle, mother of the present duke, and of Lord Francis Hope, is about to become a Catholic, and since the death of her second husband, Tom Hohler, the professional singer, has devoted herself almost entirely to Catholic mission work in the East End slums of the Metropolis, under the direction of Cardinal Vaughan. In order to give herself up more thoroughly to her work she has even gone to the length of transferring her abode from Mayfair to Whitechapel, and now finding that with the advance of years she is no longer able to continue her labors among the poor, she intends to retire into a convent and to take the vows of a nun. She is a daughter of the late Henry Hope, of Deepdene, and it was from her mother, old Mrs. Hope, that the second son of the duke, namely, Lord Francis, inherited both Deepdene, now occupied by Lily, Duchess of Malborough, and also the celebrated blue diamonds.

Sister Mary Charles, formerly Miss Pauline A. Lemann, of Washington, D. C., recently received the black veil of the Dominican Sisterhood at St. Mary's of the Springs, Shepard, O. The new Dominican Sister entered the convent in September, 1899, and received the white veil May 18, 1900. She belongs to a prominent Capitol Hill family and was a talented musician. Having studied abroad, she soon acquired a reputation as a violinist of great promise and power. Sister Mary Charles will devote her life to the teaching of music in the convents of the Dominican Sisterhood.

The Guild of the Infant Saviour of the City of New York received the approval of the State Board of Charities last week. Its mission is to aid and support destitute women and children. Its members are well-known Catholic society women.

The Missionary also reports that the band of Paulist Fathers that have been giving missions in the West have received into the Church since the beginning of Lent 208 converts. This fact is significant of the progress that is made by the work. There is no more interesting reading than the accounts given by the missionaries of their experiences in the non-Catholic mission field.

Who Have Joined the Catholic Church Since 1896.

The London Table, in a late issue, says: Among the names of Anglican clergymen who have been received into the Church since the publication in September, 1896, of the Bull on Anglican Orders, are as follows:

Clarke, St. John's, East London; A. St. Leger Westall, St. Savior's, Croydon; W. Evans, Cardiff; Hamilton McDonald, a naval chaplain; George Alston, Cowley Brother, Oxford; A. E. Sharpe, Vauxhall; Thomas Barned, St. Peter's, Vauxhall; H. A. Fuller, M. A., of Trinity College, Dublin; W. R. Clarke, Ormskirk; Edmund Jackson, Barnsley; Hubert Hickman, Frome; W. Duthoit, L. D., Gotha; Edward H. Bryan, Hansall; C. R. Chase, Plymouth; John L. Filmer, Cardiff; Edward Arthur Harris, St. Alban's, Holborn; Archibald Charles Heurtley, St. Peter's, London Dock; G. T. Gorman, St. Clement's City Road; M. J. Richards, Malling Abbey, Kent.

This list, it will be noticed, does not include the names of those Episcopal clergymen converted in this and many other countries. The clergymen converted from Episcopalianism in the United States alone would make quite an imposing array.

KING NOT SLANDERED

IRISH PEOPLE SUPPRESSED FOR TELLING THE TRUTH.

More Offensive Remarks Have Been Made by London Papers About the Late Queen — Seizure of O'Brien's Paper Without Warrant of Law.

The police of Cork, Limerick and other Irish towns on May 10 seized all the copies of The Irish People that they could lay hands upon without any other warrant of law than an order from Dublin castle, says the Boston Pilot. The ostensible reason for this arbitrary action lay in The People's mention of a few historical facts. It alluded to King Edward VII as "an old baldheaded rone," which epithet was as true as it was unflattering. It called him a perjurer, as his admirers brag that he proved himself to be in a notorious divorce suit, and it alluded to a few of his other vicious characteristics more forcibly than politely. But it did not slander him. That was the trouble. It told the truth, and the truth was not complimentary. Therefore it was suppressed.

As John Dillon pointed out, London papers had often said far more offensive things about the late queen and were never molested. The cable does not say whether or not he quoted any extracts from those English papers—for example, Punch's delicate witicism when, in telling of a certain Anglo-American love feast a few years ago, it said, "The band then played 'God Save the Queen' and 'John Brown's Body.'" He might also have recalled the same paper's imaginary court journal, in which were such items as "Ten a. m., Mr. Brown partook of a dejeuner of haggis and oatmeal; 11 a. m., Mr. Brown was pleased to listen to a performance on the bagpipes," etc., as if Mr. Brown were officially recognized as one of the royal family.

Other London newspapers have been even more openly insulting to the late queen's late favorite, but no seizures were made by the police, and for some unexplained but doubtless wise reason no legal measures were ever taken against the publishers.

It is different when Irish papers dare print what all England has said a thousand times—namely, that Albert Edward the God's whole life has been a panorama of shameless vice. Time was when English journalists were prosecuted and sent to herd with common felons in jail for saying equally strong and equally true things about the infamous prototype of Edward VII, "the fourth of the fools and oppressors called George." Yet Byron, Thackeray and every honest English writer who touched the foul character of George IV found and described it in fitting language such as an Irish paper is suppressed today for using in the case of his royal successor and imitator.

The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour called The Irish People's article "an obscene libel." If the legal axiom be accepted that "the greater the truth the greater the libel," then it was a libel, but the obscenity lay wholly in the subject, not in the language, used in treating of it. Even the law itself has to call a spade a spade in framing an indictment, and it may not speak of a rone and a perjurer as a "man of gallantry" and a gentleman who misstated facts in defending the reputation of a lady."

But perhaps the caste authorities were offended only with that part of The Irish People's article which condemned English Catholics for being so servilely obsequious to the king who has so solemnly sworn that in his belief they are superstitious idolaters. The caste is very sensitive about the feelings of Catholics and resents anybody's telling them that they ought to object to being stigmatized as idolaters in the king's coronation oath. That must be it. If The Irish People had said that they were idolaters when they paid fulsome homage to a crowned idol in the person of the aforesaid old baldheaded rone, that would have been different, and some ultrayoyalists would have felt complimented rather than offended by the insinuation.

How a Town Got Its Name.

The town of Portarlington is partly in the barony of Portnahinch, Queen's county, and partly in the Kings county. The ancient name of the town was Cooletarra, which was changed by the alien proprietor, Lord Arlington, by simply prefixing the word "port" to his name. It stands on the river Barrow, which is there crossed by two bridges.
