OVID.

Solemn high requiem mass was recently celebrated at the Church of the Holy Cross for the repose of the soul of the late Father English. The rector of our church, Rev. Joseph W. Hendrick, for seven years an altar boy under Father English, was celebrant. Rev. Henry A. Sullivan, rector of Holy Cross Cathedral, Boston, was deacon, and his brother, Rev. Michael Sullivan of Franklin, Mass., acted as sub-deacon; Rev. Thomas Harrington master of ceremonies. Father English was pastor of this church during the war time, and was a familiar figure at all public services in the church for the last forty years. He leaves a wide circle of friends and admirers in this parish who will say many a prayer for him. He was a noble-hearted, kind gentleman.

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Three Perfect Cures.

Convent of Good Shepherd, St. Louis.
We used Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic in two cases of nerve trouble, caused by the gripe, and in both cases it was a perfect cure. We also recommended the Tonic to Mrs. Scherer, 2223 Mannard St., St. Louis, whose daughter became paralyzed in the lower limbs from the waist down. Eight of the best physicians of this city were consulted and much money spent, but all to no good. In 10 days after commencing with Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic the girl could walk and has returned to school. It is a most remarkable cure.
Sisters of the Good Shepherd.
Mrs. J. Doerr of Peru, Ill., says that one spoonful of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic gave her more relief than all the doctors did, which she had tried for her nerves in the last six years.

FREE A Valuable Book on Nervous Diseases and a Sample Bottle to any address. Free literature also get the medicine free.

GENEVA.

The death of Mrs. J. McDonald of Exchange St. occurred Wednesday afternoon of last week after a long illness with consumption. The funeral took place Friday morning from St. Frances De Sales church, burial in St. Ursula. Mrs. McDonald is survived by her husband and little daughter Margarette.
Bishop McQuaid is expected to administer Confirmation here October sixth. A large class of children are being prepared by the sisters and priest to receive that great sacrament.

Thomas Brennan and Patrick Corcoran both graduates of St. Francis De Sales school 1901 left Sunday afternoon for St. Bernard's seminary where they contemplate studying for the priesthood.
At a benefit dance Tuesday evening $200.00 were realized for the barbers of the city. Mr. LeBrun has been dangerously ill for some time.

Mr. Thomas Higgins of Gilbert spent Sunday with his parents in this city.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boehm who have been visiting friends in this city have returned to their home in Syracuse.

LIMA.

St. Rose's church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday morning when Cecilia Lockington and Wm. S. McLaughlin were united in marriage by the Rev. S. FitzSimmons. The bride was attended by her sister Anna Lockington and the best man was Mr. Boden of Avon. After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride where a sumptuous repast was served by our popular caterer Mrs. Ide-on. The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of many costly and useful presents. After a week at the Pan-American Buffalo, the young couple will make their home at Avon where the groom is Postmaster.

A CENTURY'S GLORY.

Wonderful Night Scenes at the Pan-American—An Electric Fairy Land.

Of all the wonderful scenes of scenic pageantry ever offered for public amusement and pleasure, the electrical display every evening at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo exceeds in splendor and beauty anything ever attempted, either in ancient or modern times.

Seen from the towers of Statler's Hotel, which adjoins the grounds the sight is one never to be forgotten, and must be seen to be appreciated, for no language can ever do it justice.
Bye the bye—the Statler's Hotel referred to above has become in itself one of the "sights" of the Exposition, for in its own particular line it stands unrivaled as the largest and most unique hostelry ever planned and built.

Although only three stories high, it contains over 3,100 rooms and can accommodate over 5,000 guests. The dining room will seat 1,200 and so perfect is the system and order with which this gigantic institution runs, that large parties of excursionists often numbering hundreds are quickly taken care of without so much as a ripple of excitement.

Intending visitors to the Pan-American should pay no heed to stories told on the trains and elsewhere by "runners" and others about accommodations being expensive and difficult to get in Buffalo.
At Statler's one can get a good, clean, comfortable room with breakfast and evening dinner for $2.00 and $2.50 a day, and not only enjoy the comfort of being close to the Exposition, but save all the expense and fatigue entailed by going to and from more remote quarters. For those who prefer not to board in a hotel, good rooms can be obtained on the European plan at $1.00 to $1.50 a day, and first-class meals may be had at Statler's down town Restaurant Elliott Square, at very moderate prices.

GENESEO.

About sixty of the Normal students attended the reception given to them at St. Mary's parsonage on the 20th inst., and all had an enjoyable evening.
Miss Mary Van Middlesworth is visiting relatives in Rochester for two weeks.

The Geneseo Valley Hunt and Horse Show and Steeple Chase takes place to-day (Saturday) on the Big Tree Farm at 11 a. m. and a large gathering of people always attend.
Married—At St. Mary's church, on the 19th inst., Archangelo Feolo and Miss Paulina Brown, both of Wadsworth, and Giuseppe Maicic of Retsof and Miss Maria Rosa Feolo, of Retsof, Rev. A. A. Hughes officiating. There was a large attendance of friends of both the contracting parties to witness the ceremony.
Timothy Mahoney has moved into the McDonnell block on Main street.

Mrs. Katherine Buckley has purchased the Cone block, on the corner of Main and Park streets, and will remodel it into a residence. She has also purchased the Conroy home-land on the north. This will make a great improvement to the south end of Main street.
The mission will begin in St. Mary's church three weeks from to-morrow (Sunday), Oct. 20th, and close Oct. 27th.

The following persons attended the Pan-American this week: Misses Mary and Elizabeth Cahill, Misses Elizabeth and Anna Kelly, Mrs. M. Martin and daughter Mary, and son Charles, James Dolan and Edward J. Finnegan.

The Geneseo base ball team went to Livonia to play the last of a series of games on Wednesday, and it was one of the most exciting games ever witnessed in Livonia. Both teams were strengthened by imported players. The score was 9 to 4 in favor of the Geneseos.

Fernin Lightning Photography.

Electric fans, roll top desks, fine engravings and pictures, mirrors, expensive floor coverings etc. are not supplied to the pupils of the Hendrick Commercial Training School, nor is the pupil charged for those luxuries in high tuition rates, as is the case in some other business schools in this city. This school is comfortably and suitably furnished, and what it does offer its pupils is first class instruction by teachers second to none in the city at moderate rates also effective and bonafide assistance to obtain positions when qualified.

Its stenographers, who write the Fernin, the only shorthand taught in Rochester having highest gold medal, Columbian Exposition, are winning golden opinions from their employers, who will be soon heard from. We again ask the patronage of the readers of this paper to help us build up the largest as well as the best business school in Rochester.

We thank those who have responded to our former invitation and assure them that they will have no cause to regret their preference. Everyone knows where Powers Block is and when you hear the hum of study and the click of the typewriter at No. 340 step in, we will be glad to have you inspect our school and speak a good word for it whether you register or not.

We keep a supply of A. O. H. and A. G. H. Auxiliary blanks. Call and get our prices. They are as low as any. All kinds of printing done at reasonable rates. THE CATHOLIC JOURNAL office is at 324 1/2 Main street East. Telephone 2353.

THE PROFESSOR'S MISTAKE.

out if anyone for Professor Carlyon's house had arrived by that particular train.

The groom touched his hat to a tall, well-set-up young fellow who was one of the few passengers by the 3.30.
"Friend of Professor Carlyon's?" he inquired; and Charles Digby started.

"Yes."
"My master is outside with the trap," James explained. "Where's your luggage, sir?"

Young Mr. Digby started again. He had certainly not expected that he should be met in such a manner when he wrote to the Professor that he hoped for a personal interview on that day. Had the old gentleman repented!

"I haven't any luggage," he said in answer to the servant's inquiry, and hastened to the spot where the Professor was in waiting.

"Glad to see you, Charles, my dear boy!" that gentleman exclaimed, quite affectionately—"very glad!" And the young fellow took the outstretched hand and muttered something in reply. "No luggage?" the Professor went on. "That won't do. We expected a long visit before this. However, that was my fault, and your father's. Well, well! You're here now, at all events."

Young Digby said he was, and could think of nothing else to speak of. He clambered into the old-fashioned trap, and was further astounded when his companion remarked:
"Agnes and her aunt are at Mrs. Master's garden party. If you don't mind we'll drop in upon them there. Later we can take a short cut across the meadows home."

Of course the young man was pleased. Perhaps Agnes would be able to explain the change in her father's attitude; so he contented himself with making the usual remarks on the weather and the country. By the time Mrs. Master's gates were reached the latter topic was exhausted.

The groom was dismissed, and the two men made their way through the grounds. The younger man was both gratified and disconcerted when his companion loudly whispered to a friend that the young man by his side was, he hoped, his future son-in-law. As such he was introduced to Mrs. Masters.

"And now, Mrs. Masters, we'll try to find the young lady," the Professor said jocosely when Charles had answered her civil speeches.

"Yes, do. Oh, I see Agnes and Mrs. Lascelles. They are speaking to Lady Veillers yonder."

The Professor made for the group indicated at unusual speed, and three very astonished ladies turned to greet him and the young man by his side.

"How do you do, Lady Veillers! Lovely day, isn't it?" said the Professor, hastily. "Let me introduce Mr. Charles, my future son-in-law, to you."

"Charlie, my dear boy, I'm awfully pleased to congratulate you!" Lady Veillers cried. "But—" the lady spoke to the Professor, for the young man had hastened to Agnes—"isn't this a sudden arrangement?"

"Sudden? Not at all!" the Professor replied. "His father and I arranged the matter long ago."

Lady Veillers looked surprised, and then laughed.
"Oh—well, my cousin Sydney is not very communicative about personal affairs," she said, and moved away.

The Professor stood gazing after her for a moment.
"I am so pleased, Anthony!" Mrs. Lascelles touched his arm. "You have acted as I hoped you would, but it is not less a surprise to see Charles Digby with you."

"Charles Digby?" her brother-in-law ejaculated. "It is not—" He paused abruptly. "What had he done? What could he do?"

"I—I—" he stammered—"I have important business to attend to. The young man can come with you and Agnes. I must get away."

In his study he quietly unearthed the morning mail. Among the letters was one from his old friend, informing him that his son could not pay his visit until a week later; and one from Charles Digby, telling the Professor that he hoped to have a personal interview with him that same day. The Professor, in his bewilderment, sat long looking over the two epistles.

If there was one thing he had a fear of it was ridicule, and he knew well how the story of his mistake would be laughed at should it once get abroad; and Lady Veillers would see to that, he had no doubt, if she got the chance. Agnes, too, had looked absurdly happy; and Charles Digby was to give him his due, a modest, well-looking young fellow. The Professor thought and thought till the sound of wheels on the ground beneath his window roused him. There was nothing for it but the sacrifice of his own and his friend's plan; so he hastened as fast as his rheumatic limb would allow to greet Mr. Digby on his own threshold.

"Did I give you a surprise ladies?"

be asked with a laugh that sounded a bit queer. "I like to surprise people, Charles, you see? You'll remain for a day or two?"

When Charles Digby returned to London the wedding day of the young people was fixed; and no one has yet hinted, though three people suspect, that the Professor made a mistake.—
From the Ave Maria

FIVE MINUTE SERMON.

SHORT INSTRUCTIONS ON THE GOSPEL BY A REVEREND FATHER.

Gospel St. Matthew, xix, 1, 8.—
Jesus cures the sick man of the palsy. It was the city of Capernaum, on the west bank of the river Jordan, a little before it flows into the Sea of Tiberias, also called the Lake of Genesareth and the Sea of Galilee. This was a rich commercial city, and the emporium of all Judea on account of its great population, its extensive trade, and the concourse of strangers.

The home of Jesus was Nazareth, but St. John Chrysostom and many others are of the opinion that He cherished a special affection for Capernaum, so that St. Matthew called it His city. In Capernaum there was a house where Christ was accustomed to meet with His apostles, and in this city He began to preach the kingdom of God, to correct the prevailing vices, to teach virtue, and worked many astounding miracles.

He healed the paralytic mentioned in the Gospel. He restored to sight two blind persons, and healed the deaf and dumb man who was possessed by the devil, of which mention is made in the Gospel for the third Sunday in Lent. He also cured the servant of the centurion, the woman who was suffering from a loss of blood, and the son of Regulus, who was dying of fever. Besides these, he recalled to life the daughter of Jairus.

We are to learn from this that when we are sick our first thought should be to place ourselves in the grace of God, thus healing our soul first, because diseases are very often a punishment for sins committed; hence a cure can scarcely be hoped for if the cause has not first been removed by repentance.

It is a law of science that sound cannot travel through a vacuum. The sound waves require the atmospheric conditions for their vibration. And this may serve as an analogy that through the spiritual vacuum made by unfaith no divine aid can pass.
