This road "It was our dog that broke up the ran along the northern side of the cir-show." cus of Caligula and Nero, in which St. Peter was martyred in 67 A. D. The obelisk now in front of the church stood originally on the barrier which ran down the center of this circus and was not far removed from the spot of martyrdom. We know that the pagan Roman laws protected the sanctity of the tomb both in the case of criminal and of Christian. Persecution in pagan Rome drew the line at the grave and stopped there, consequently the records and Christian traditions relating to the site of the tomb have everything in their favor. "It is probable, however, that during the reign of Elagabalus, third century, the remains were moved to the catacombs of St Sebastian on the Appian way for a short time. This emperor wished to exhibit a race of chariots, four abreast, drawn by elephants. The width of the circus did not suffice, and the tombs along the road were in some cases destroyed by him. This is supposed to have been the occasion which led the ('hristians to remove the body of St. Peter to another spot for a certain time. "When all the facts are considered, there is absolutely no doubt that the tomb of St. Peter is today as it was in the early fourth century, and there is every probability that the remains of the apostle are in that tomb. Of course the great point is that the importance and magnificence of the renaissance church are due to such a belief. We are sometimes disposed in architectural studies and art criticism to overlook the most vital facts. In this case the vital fact is the belief that the tomb of St. Peter is where it is said to be, and this belief has everything in its favor when it is submitted to the light of modern criticism. The great authority on this subject is Rodolfo Lanciana, a man who has never been accused of the slightest prejudice in favor of any sect or of any religion, and what his own personal beliefs are as regards

Easter Sunday in 1902 is coming unusually early-March 30. As the date of Easter regulates that of all the movable feasts of the year, they, too, will fall early. Thus in 1902 Ash Wednesday will occur Feb. 12; Ascension day, May S; Penticost, ten days later, and Corpus Christi, May 29. It will thus be seen that some three weeks before midsummer a greater part of the ecclesiastical year in respect at least of the important feasts will have passed. It will be difficult to have flowers for holy week and Easter in 1902, but a little forethought will solve the problem .--West Virginia Church Calendar.

Your Sorrows.

When sorrow, humiliation and sadness weigh upon you, do not ask God to deliver you from them. It is a serv ice that he cannot always render you despite the pleading of his heart. Lovingly ask him to come and share your suffering. That is the service of a friend which he will never refuse you, and your suffering, shared with Jesus, will indeed be light.

4 Curious Name Combination. "What is in a mame?" has been a question sufficiently unanswered to still remain a subject for discussion, but what is in two names should have a double interest. Of course there is nothing peculiar about them as they stand, but set them differently and observe the result. For an instance, place them
