OUR AGENT,
Mr. A. Herman will visit subscribers in Auburn, N. Y., next week.

GENESEO.
There will be two masses at St. Mary's church to-morrow (Sunday) at 9 and 11 A. M.

Miss Mary E. Hickey, of Rochester, who has been visiting relatives and friends in Retsof and here for the past two days, returned to her home on Wednesday morning.

Rev. A. A. Hughes was unable to celebrate mass at Piffard on Sunday last, on account of the high water.

The Rochester University basket ball team played the Geneseo Normals here on the 27th ult. and resulted in favor of the university team by a score 8 to 10.
It was exciting from beginning to end.

James B. Costello has traded his house and lot on Bank street in this village for the Brown place in the town of Avon, containing forty-two acres of land belonging to Fred Heath. Possession will be taken April 1st.

William Crystal, who has been working in LeRoy for some time past, has been engaged to work in Dr. Hedler's blacksmith shop in this village.

John O'Leary, of Buffalo, was called here last week on account of the serious illness of his father, Cornelius O'Leary.

Jeremiah Cahill, who sold his farm in Moscow, is to occupy the Sweet Briar farm in this town this year.

Miss Agnes Curran, of Avon, had charge of Miss Biggin's millinery store here the first of the week while the latter was visiting her sister in Avon.

Timothy C. Reagan visited in Rochester the first of the week.

Miss Roseanna Detman, of Buffalo, has been the guest of her uncle, Jeremiah Challinan, for the past two weeks.

Died, at Buffalo, Feb. 24th, Julia, widow of the late Thomas Maloney.
The funeral was held the following Thursday. Timothy Delehanty and Michael Costello from this village attended. Mrs. Maloney was a sister of Mrs. John Costello of this town.

James Brogan, who has lived here for the past five years is to move back to his farm in Portage, April 1st.

We wish to warn our Catholic friends to look out for a slick swindler gang around getting advertisements for a Catholic directory. He has worked several towns in this county. He collects the pay for the advertisements and then slips out leaving the copy for the directory with the printer, but no money, and consequently there is no directory printed.

The river at this place was higher than any time since 1865. 1,127 people by actual count went down to see the high water at the river bridge on Sunday last. A good deal of damage has been done to crops on the flats and Major W. A. Wadsworth had thirty eight head of cattle drown.

AUBURN.
Rev. Father Hendrick, of Rochester, preached the Lenten sermon last week Wednesday evening at the Holy Family church.

Rev. George S. Bryant, of Casper, Wyo., has returned home after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bryant, in State street.

Circulars were read in all the Catholic churches of the city last Sunday relative to Pope Leo's Jubilee and a Mass was celebrated on Monday morning at 8 o'clock at the Holy Family Church in honor of the occasion.

Edward Renner, a trainman, on the passenger train which was wrecked in a collision near Aurelius recently, died at the city Hospital of the shock and exposure. Rev. Father Kelly, assistant pastor at the Holy Family church, of Auburn, who went to the scene on the rebuff train, displayed a true hero's courage when in doing all he could to administer the last rites of the Church he crawled under the wreck to hear the confession of one of the men pinned beneath. Fortunately for him as well as the man to whom he was administering the spiritual solace that the wreck did not settle and fall and crush them both.

St. Rev. Bishop Ludden, of Syracuse, and several other Syracuse priests were in the Park Avenue Hotel here in New York city in which twenty lives were lost and fifty persons sustained injuries.
Bishop Ludden worked heroically blowing the injured as they were being taken in the ambulances to the hospital and saving others. One young man died in his arms while he was trying to save him.

LIMA.
Edward Cummings died last Sunday morning at the home of his brother, Hugh, in Livonia. This is the second death that has occurred in the family within ten days. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from St. Rose's church and the interment was in St. Rose's cemetery.

At the Lenten services Tuesday evening Father Garvey, of Livonia, gave a very instructive talk on "The First Article of the Creed." James Tubbs, who was operated on for peritonitis at the Rochester City Hospital last week and is still confined there was at the last report not quite so well.

SEORTSVILLE.
Mr. and Mrs. M. Crendon, of Manchester, are the happy parents of baby boy, who came to their home last week.

The Altar and Rosary society will hold a meeting to-morrow (Sunday) after Mass.
Stations of the Cross will be held this evening (Saturday) at 7:30. Confessions will be heard after.

BAKERS THEATRE.
Commencing with next Monday the patrons of the Baker Theatre will for three days including the usual matinee on Tuesday and Wednesday have the first opportunity of judging the merits of the latest dramatic success "On the Stroke of Twelve." The management has given the piece a complete scenic equipment, a strong cast and with the great merit of the play it should prove to be one of the strongest popular price plays seen here "Put me off at Buffalo" a pretentious musical comedy which has made one of the pronounced hits of the season comes to the Baker Theatre for an engagement of three days duration, commencing with next Thursday's matinee and the usual matinee again on Saturday. The caricature comedians Fisher and Carroll are the stars of this farce which was written by Frank Kennedy, a well known New York writer.

"On the Stroke of Twelve" at the Baker Manager Moore has provided another record-breaking list of vaudeville turns for next week at the Cook Opera House. An important attraction will be Kara, a European juggler who has never appeared in this city.

A well-known actress named Patrice will present a sketch called "New Year's Eve." May Edouin and Fred Edwards will give a new playlet called "All in the Family." Edward impersonates a traveler newly returned from a trip abroad.

Ryan and Ritchfield will offer their new act, "Mag Haggerty's Father," a semi pathetic sketch. The Kie's brothers will have their elaborate musical turn. In this they use a "black art" setting.

Musical Dale is an expert performer on the bells and other instruments.
Lozelle is a noted gymnast. The Billon brothers offer an attractive singing act, and Coakley and Husted are expert dancers.

This attractive bill will be given at the Cook every afternoon and evening next week. The management wishes to call the attention to the fact that the patrons of this theatre are practically exempt from danger of either fire or panic. The auditorium has eleven exits, so, in whatever quarter danger might lie, the audience could leave the theatre leisurely and safely.

THE POPE'S JUBILEE

MERCHANT PRINCE WAN-MAKER WRITES FROM ROME.

He Describes the Celebration at St.
Peter's—"Long Live the Pope and King! Hail, Papa Beloved!" Softly Murmured the Multitude.

John Wanamaker, merchant prince of New York and Philadelphia, and former Postmaster General of the United States, cables from Rome to the New York Evening Journal the following story of the Pope's jubilee celebration as he saw it:

Nowhere but in this city, the ancient "Capital of Christendom" could there be such a gorgeous setting for the august ceremonies of this day, when the unnumbered world of Catholicism laid reverent homage at the feet of Pope Leo XIII.

Overhead was the brilliant hue of the Italian sky, under foot the hisoric pavements of the once mistress of the world, on every side the towering monuments of sacred and profane history, the pomp and glitter of stately processions and countless moving throngs of worshippers.

In the centre of the great scene dominating it all, rose the majestic pile of St. Peter's. The wide plaza before it and adjoining thoroughfares were packed with eager crowds, who waited from before the dawn that their eyes might light once more, perhaps for the last time, upon the venerable man who to them is the vice-regent of God.

Within the structure were gathered thousands of the princes and nobles of the Church in their gorgeous or somber robes of office the full College of Cardinals, prelates, priests and digni-taries from all the capitals of the world.

And massed in the open spaces, filling the nave and transepts and galleries, overflowing on to the broad porticos, covering the wide steps and the whole sweep of the outer square, stood 100,000 lay people—over them all the solemn hush of religious veneration.

The significance of to-day's celebration was that it marked the beginning of the jubilee year, the twenty-fifth since His Holiness assumed the triple crown. But underlying this was the feeling that this might be the last occasion on which the people might behold their worshipped head. Ninety-two years have passed over him, and though still the fire burns, the day approaches when it must flicker and go out.

Stirred by these emotions the multitude was moved by an affectionate adoration that was overpowering in its manifestation and pathetic in its throbbing fervor. As the white-haired, frail-looking Pontiff was borne to his place there rose from the great crowds a soft murmur, pitiful, appealing, adoring:

"Long live the Pope and King! Hail, Papa, beloved!"

The cries swelled upward and rolled through the lofty arches and echoing dome until the whole vast edifice was filled with a sound like the sound of many waters.

On every side the senses were smitten with the gorgeous pageantry of the ceremony. Here shone the military of the Pope's household, the brilliant uniforms of the Papal Guard; there were the Cardinals in their stately robes; yonder the clustered dignitaries from a score of empires and kingdoms. Silver trumpets sent forth their solemn pealing music and from hundreds of strong voices rose the great throbbing harmonies of the coronation service.

Yet these things counted not. It seemed in the face of one tremendous fact; that the feeble frame and great soul of the aged man who was the centre of all adoration exercised a moral power transcending all the other forces of earth; that within the frail grasp of his white, transparent fingers was gathered the leadership of the greatest army the world has ever seen, honoring, loving, following him.

All of those who stood to-day in the shadow of St. Peter's might not feel the mental and spiritual exaltation which thrilled the great multitude.
Yet no matter what creed any spectator held, it was impossible for him to resist the common impulse to reverence the lofty character and noble life of the man whose hands were outstretched in blessing.

For two hours and four minutes his venerable figure remained the centre of a mighty host, while solemn chants and stately harmonies filled the air.
Then he spoke to his people. In the hush that fell, while ears were strained to catch the words, the voice of Pope Leo rose clearly and distinctly.
It was his word of parting, a tender farewell, that might be but for a time and might be for all time. In a great silence he was heard, and then as the last words fell from his lips a thrill ran through the throng, and the low sobbing of many voices filled the space.

Out through the kneeling crowd into the sunshine he was borne twelve stalwart guards carrying his chair. In the great plaza the waiting throng fell to their knees. Once more the venerable man looked upon his people, and his heart was touched.

He stood up and turned slowly to one side with his white hands outstretched in benediction, his face alight with the glow that might be on the face of an angel. Then he was borne on again, and the people bowed their heads and wept.

Bishop Farley, who leaves here tomorrow for Jerusalem and expects to be back in New York in May, says he is quite outside the question of a coadjutor to Archbishop Corrigan.

SCOTCH HISTORY

CHE MACDONALDS—PRESERVED
THE ANCIENT FAITH.

Captain John, Laird of Glengarry and Leader of the Clan Was a Valiant Catholic—His Education Received at the Jesuit University.

Though Scotland, on the whole, was presently an easy victim to the Protestant Reformation, yet there were Highland clans, powerful ones, too, who resisted it, and preserved the ancient faith in its purity. Prominent among these is the clan of the MacDonalds, to which, in later years, the new world became indebted.

A modern hero of this clan, Captain John MacDonald, laird of Glenaladale and Gleninnis, and leader of the Scottish Catholic exodus to America is the subject of a biography sketch by Miss Anna MacDonald of Boston, in the Messenger of the Sacred Heart for January, entitled "A Knight Errant of the Eighteenth Century."

The MacDonalds were, as we have noted, loyal Catholics. They were also devoted adherents of the house of Stuart.

Young John MacDonald in death of his father's school at home was sent to the Jesuit university at Halliburton in 1754, being then 12 years of age. He took his degree at Ratis-bon, having made an especial success in linguist. He married in due time the daughter of the famous Gordon family, was made "Cashier" or guardian of his clan and settled down to a useful and beneficent life on his estate.

But the misdeeds of a degenerate kinsman provided a greater career for him. This man, Alexander MacDonald of Boisdale, married a Protestant and forsook the faith. He went further and tried to coerce his tenants into apostasy. As Miss MacDonald puts it:
"By his fatherly acts was to drive his people by a vigorous plying of his stout yellow cudgel to the Protestant church."

Being with the adults, he was devoted in his attempt on the children's faith. He offered for them the best of instruction from the tutor of his own sons, and the education loving Scottish people eagerly availed themselves of the opportunity. But they soon saw what this affected bounty meant, and withdrew their children.
The apostate landlord, in revenge, sent home their eldest, Father Wynne, to his native Ireland. Then, as the interesting chronicler before us relates:
"He had a paper written in their own Gaelic tongue read in his assenbled tenants. To sign this document meant an absolute retraction of their religion and a promise under oath never again to have any dealings whatever with a Catholic priest; to refuse was to lose everything, homes and land, and to bring direct ruin upon themselves.

There are countless homes and mar-tired little known, and surely these poor people deserve to be numbered among the glorious army who have suffered for their faith. Not one faltered, all declaring they would endure any hardship rather than accept such infamous conditions. Dispersing they returned home to prepare for the journey into the unknown world, whither they were forced to go to seek "freedom to worship God." Baffled at this, Boisdale agreed to leave his tenants in peace if they would consent to have their children brought up Protestants.
This proposition received the indignant reply from the islanders that "their children's souls were as dear to them as their own."

The example of the Lord of Boisdale stirred up other landlords against the Catholic tenants, and so bitter was the persecution that Bishop Grant of the vicar apostolic of the Highlands, and other eminent churchmen, urged on by the faithful John MacDonald, locally "Glenaladale," decided that to save these poor Catholics, immigration was the only resource. They proceeded to raise money, Captain MacDonald also raising money on his own estates and taking charge of the exodus. He bought a large estate on what is now Prince Edward Island, and in 1772 the persecuted Catholic tenants sailed for their new home.

The next year Captain MacDonald joined them and cast his lot with them for good. He was never able to redeem his Scotch estates—they fell into the hands of the kinsman who had advanced the money—nor even to develop his Prince Edward Island property; he died comparatively poor.
He lived till 1811, long enough to set his colony on a firm footing and to be the example of an ideal landlord. He gave all those who settled on his estate all the advantages of a lease of 99 years. Devotion to religion and disinterested generosity to his fellow men were the shining traits in the character of this noble Highlander.

The colony which he brought to the New World multiplied, prospered and kept the faith. The name of MacDonald is in veneration among the people, not only for their brave leader's sake,

Right Rev. Nicholas C. Matz, bishop of Denver, who arrived in New York last Sunday from Havre by the French liner L'Aquitaine, said that the report that he had been summoned to Rome because of the opposition of the Irish priests of his diocese to him was not true. He had made his usual pilgrimage, and when he was about to return he had trouble with a former priest of Denver, Rev. John Cushing.

Mr. Conaty.
The advancement of Rector County of the Catholic university to the title of bishop of Samos is said to be due more than to any other cause to his remarkable success in uniting intermediate scholastic interests in America. This he did, bringing all into line and incidentally making all friendly to the Catholic university.
Intermediate or secondary educational affairs are now in far better shape than ever before and better in America than in any other country in the world.
This service it is that the holy father wishes especially to honor. The see of Samos is a Russian one. There is in Russia one metropolitan, the archbishop-of Monilov, the occupant of which lately died. There are three suffragans, of which Samos is one, and the bishop of Samos was lately advanced to the archbishopate, leaving the see vacant.
