The branches of the United Irish League and of the Geant League throughout the county are in a flourishing condition. In the struggle to tear up the Upas tree of landlordism from the Irish soil, the people of Maguires' county are taking an active and practical part. They are also reviving the language of their ancestors.

The death at Comber on Feb 13 of Mrs. John Andrews caused much regret. She had reached the great old age of 95 and was a daughter of the famous Dr. Wm. Drennan, one of the founders of the United Irishmen, of Cabin Hill, Belfast, who, as physician, author and politician, played a conspicuous and honorable part in the public life of Ulster in the latter part of the eighteenth century and the beginning of the nineteenth. On her marriage to Mr. John Andrews she removed to Comber, where she resided for seventy-five years in the same house, and where she died, having survived her husband 38 years. She leaves three sons, of whom the eldest is Rt. Hon. William Drennan Andrews 1.1. D., one of the judges of His May 8 tiich Court of Justice in Ireland, Dr. Dreinan composed the well known lyrics, "When Erin First Rose," "Wake of William Orr," and "Wail of the Women After the Baitle."
