Well boys and girls you have done a little better with the hidden pictures than you did a week ago and it is our pleasure to report this week that we have some answers which are successful. The first six received are as follows:

Eliz. S. Kelly, 91 Echance St.; Arthur Weigand, 215 Jay St.; Cath. Scheid, 10 Buchan Pk.; Rhea Giunty, 352 Genesee St.; Geo. J. Frey, 199 Flint St.; Anna Donahue, Geneva, N. Y.

As only one answer from out of town was correct we take pleasure in allowing those from the city to fill up the number so that the six prizes will be given out. City contestants will call at the office for their prize.

A much larger number of children would have been in the successful list if they had studied carefully picture number two. While they found all the rest of the pictures the wife was hidden under the little girl's arm. The key to the puzzles are as follows:

No. 1—Invert picture. First bandit's face turned by boy's leg, his mouth at boy's knee. Second is at right of picture when held inverted, his face outlined by rocks.

No. 2—Turn right side of picture down. Head of man is in front of the children, his features outlined by girl's dress. Turn left side of picture down to see woman. Her profile is outlined by girl's extended arm.

No. 3—Invert picture. Head of watchman is directly in front of girl's face, his nose outlined by her chin.

No. 4—Turn left side of picture down to find Hindoo. He is in the heap of stones, face looking toward top of picture. Turn right side down to find Italian. His face is also in the rocks and is gazing at base of tower.

The Hendrick Commercial Training School 340 Powers Block, has opened with a large attendance, too numerous to mention in this issue. A number of pupils have been placed in good positions since we published our proud first year list last April. We still teach the peerless Pernin system of shorthand and still advertise it as the only shorthand taught in Rochester having highest gold medal Columbian Exposition and it cannot be denied.

This school has the best teachers with the lowest terms in the city. Our school is not large, we do not want any more than we can do full justice to, but we will try to make "room for one more."
