COOK OPERA HOUSE.

A vaudeville bill of unusual excellence is promised for next week at the Cook Opera House. Amelia Somerville, the famous comedienne will top the bill. She is said to be one of the few women monologists able to give a breezy line of talk and at the same time keep away from the "Lyceum entertainer" type and still be refined and wholesome. Her name first became known as "the merry little mountain maid" in "Adonis".

Hill and Silviyani are expert cyclists. The English pony ballet was seen here last year. Imro Fox is a newcomer in the field of magic. Raymond and Caverly are about the best known German comedians in the country, next to the Fyger brothers. The three Adamis are French musicians who give a novel at meritorious performance. Cole and Johnson are colored comedians of the first water. Charles A. Loder is a German comedian who has visited here with several well known musical comedians. Lore and Lore are comedy tumblers.

This bill will be presented at the Cook twice every day next week.

BAKER THEATRE.

At the Baker Theatre beginning Monday next the Owen Davis Stock Company will make a production of Walter Fessler's famous melodrama "The City of New York". This play won a great reputation on account of its unusual sensational effects and its unique comedy characters. It is a play which should appeal strongly to patrons of the Baker Theatre, and it is counted on to be the record breaker of the year.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have such faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

How Glass Beads Are Made. Glass beads are made in the following manner: Two workmen take the melted glass, colored or uncolored, from the pot by dipping their blowing tubes into it. Each man then expands the "gathering" on the end of his tube, opens the hollow bulb at the end of his tubes, and the two bulbs while still very hot are joined together. This done, the men walk rapidly in opposite directions, thus drawing out the hollow glass until it is a long rod of small dimensions. All this is done in a shed somewhat like a rope walk.

The rod cools very quickly and is broken into pieces about a foot long. These shorter lengths are annealed and cut again into mere fragments.

The next stage in the process is placing these fragments into a drum with a mixture of charcoal and plaster and causing the drum to revolve over a fire. The effect is to soften the perforated cans, as they may be called, and give them a rounded form, the charcoal and plaster dust preventing the beads from sticking together while soft.

CLOTHES OF MEN AND WOMEN

Sterner Sex the Best Judge of Feminine Attire.

It is often said that women dress to please each other, but men dress to please themselves. On this point a writer in the Lady's Pictorial says:

"Now and then one sees a woman whose clothes are absolutely characteristic of her and bear the impress of having been carefully thought out by their wearer. These are those who never wear garments fashioned like others, but the majority of women do not desire nor, indeed, would it become them to be individualistic in their attire. They like to be 'in the fashion.' And the question is, Are they or are men best suited to making what is understood by la mode?"

"On the whole, one inclines to the opinion that men are really the best judges of what best suits the female form divine, and, on the other hand, it would seem as if woman's taste in men's clothing is far more reliable than man's. She is quick to detect a mistake in the choice of a tie, to note the angle of a hat, the set of a coat, the pattern of a tweed, the shape of a collar, and she never falls into the error of urging her men folk to adopt any atrocious things merely because they are described as 'very fashionable.'"

"The man whom a woman considers well dressed is well fitted, absolutely well groomed and quite unobtrusive alike in the matter of hats, waistcoats, ties or patterns, and this looks as if each sex were meant to select the other's clothes. Women are ready enough to admit men's good taste and cleverness in this direction, but the other sex disclaims with horror the ability of their woman-kind to exercise any judgment with regard to their wardrobes, despite the fact that an unfavorable feminine opinion of anything they are wearing means its instant disuse. Perhaps if men and women alike more freely expressed themselves in fashion journals from time to time about each other's clothes it would be better for both."

A Venomous Bird.

But one species of venomous bird is known to the student of ornithological oddities, the rpir n'ooob, or "bird of death," a feathered paradox of New Guinea. It is not a large or formidable looking
