Each of these officials testify that Mr. Bailey's shrewdness, fidelity and knowledge of shrievalty law has been of invaluable service to them in > the conduct of their office. When the legislature passed the law making the shrievalty a salaried position, the republican leaders looked about for a "safe man" as the first incumbent of the office under the changed conditions. When it was learned that Mr. Bailey would accept the place, sentiment in his favor crystalized so fast that his unanimous nomination in convention followed as a matter of course

Frank F Jones.

Frank F. Jones, the Democratic nominee for assembly in the first district, is a man of excellent reputation and a lifelong Democrat. He was born in the town of Ontario, Wayne County, N. Y., Sept 19, 1866, where he lived until 1881, father, Elwin Jones, in the manufacture which office he held for six years, and he also was assessor of the town of Webster nine years. Mr Jones is a nephew of Hon. F M Jones. He was educated in the Webster union school. Three years ago Mr. Jones surprised the political prophets by defeating "Anse Wright for supervisor. The wisdom of his electton has been made very apparent During his term of office he has shown to be a very capable official, over alert to the interests of his constituents. He always shown a remarkable grasp of affairs in the board and has been one of its leading members. His nomination for the higher office of assemblyman now comes as a reward for his faithful service. Signs are not wanting that Mr. Jones will make an excellent run. There are only three wards in this assembly district and their is little doubt but that Mr. Jones will carry each one by a large majority. In the towns Mr. Jones is naturalry stronger than his oppenent and the rospects of his election are bright in A better or stronger nomination deed. it would have been hard to make.

CONDENSED STORIES

That Was Presented to Mrs. Gibbon. Major General John Gibbon thus describes his meeting with General Fitz-Hugh Lee at the McLean house, Appomattox county, Va., in April, 1865, at the time of the Confederate surrender: "Going to the door, I found General Fitz Lee seated on his horse and looking, as I thought, somewhat uneasy. He had been a cadet under me at West Point, and I had not seen him for years. As I looked at him a vision of the past came up before me, and I could think only of a little rollicking fellow dressed in cadet gray, whose jolly songs and gay spirits were the life of his class. My salutation of 'Hello, Fitz! Get off and come in,' seemed to put him at his ease at once and brought him to his feet. He came into the house and told me his story. Before leaving, with a grim humor, he took from his pocket a five dollar Confederate note, and, writing across its face, 'For Mrs. Gibbon, with the compliments of Fitz Lee,' he said, 'Send that to your wife and tell her it's the last cent I have in the world."

was being hotly pursued by Kritzinger himself. So well did he tell his story that the blockhouses actually held up the advance of the pursuing column of English with a heavy fire. Riding up one evening to a blockhouse, dressed in an English captain's costume and attended by two orderlies, he announced that the column to which he was attached would pass through at midnight on a night march and they were on no account to fire on it. He selected the spot at which he would cross and insisted on absolute silence being observed. "I think we have Kritzinger cornered now," he remarked cheerily, "and so 'elp me," said the crestfallen noncommissioned officer next morning when he found out his mistake, "if I didn't salute 'im and the men give 'im a cheer as 'e rode off."

A Famous Huckster.

At the opening performance of "Beaucaire" its author, Booth Tarkington, was pointed out to a certain lady of Malaprop tendencies as the "famous Hoosier rovelist."

"Why Hoosier?" she asked. "That's what they call a gentleman from Indiana," was the reply. A few evenings later on being introduced to Mr. Tarkington at a reception this Mrs. Malaprop enthusiastically exclaimed in an effort to be genial, "So you are the famous huckster!"-New York Times.
