CONNAGHT

GALWAY.—The Finnegan Fund has been inaugurated in County Galway. The land league was Patrick Finnegan, Croughwell, was accused of murder and found guilty on false testimony. In fact, he was an innocent man, and that is now admitted. The sentence of death was commuted to imprisonment for life. A few months ago he was liberated after he had served twenty years in a British prison. Of course he is broken down in health and unable to work; therefore the people are making provision for him; they consider him a victim of British vengeance.

The funeral of the late Mr. Fallon, Athlone, took place on Dec. 22 at St. Mary's cemetery. A large number from Athlone and Loughrea attended. At the meeting of the Ballinasloe Guardians lately a letter was read from Mr. William Duffy, M. P., acknowledging the receipt of the Board's resolution about the reinstatement of the evicted tenants. He was glad that the Ballinasloe Guardians had the foresight to put this question before the Land Conference. They should not neglect their representatives on the Land Conference, but the Ballinasloe Guardians may be satisfied that the Irish Party would not accept a land bill that would not contain provision for the restoration of the wounded soldiers of the land war.

Two meetings announced to be held in the parish of Monivea on New Year's Day and proclaimed by the government, were held, one at midnight on Wednesday night, in the village of Curreferri, and several meetings on Thursday in different parts of the parish, notwithstanding the army of police drafted into Monivea to suppress them. As soon as the proclamations were issued a copy was served on Mr. Thomas Higgins, chairman of the North Galway Executive United Irish League, and on Mr. McEgan, secretary of the local branch. Arrangements were immediately made to hold a midnight meeting at Curreferri. Word was sent around and the hour appointed Curreferri was in a blaze. People came from all directions carrying torch lights, and a big fire was lighted on the top of the Knockrook, which was seen for miles around. About 11 o'clock p. m. Mr. Thomas Higgins, Mr. McEgan, Mr. Lally, Mr. Tannane and a large number from Ryehill and Monivea, accompanied by the Abbey and Monivea Fife and Drum Band, arrived and the meeting commenced.

MAYO.—A new Town Hall in Westport was officially opened on Jan. 6, with music, song and dramatic entertainment. At the recent meeting of the Westport Board of Guardians, Jan. 9, Mr. P. J. Kelly presiding, the following resolution was adopted, on the motion of Mr. John McHale, president of the West Mayo Executive, U. I. L.: "That we approve of the report of the Irish Land Conference, in which the representatives of the landlords and tenants agreed that the system of dual ownership of Irish land should be abolished. We trust this principle will be adhered to, in any land bill the government may introduce into the Parliament. Nothing less will settle the land question."

A vast demonstration of United Irish Leaguers was held in Claremorris on Jan. 6. It was the largest held during the past twenty years. The people came on foot from districts many miles apart and the attendance was supplemented by parties from Castlebar, Westport and Ballina. Some of the districts had their bands and banners, and at the commencement of the meeting the whole space in the centre of the town at the point where the chief thoroughfare intersects, was densely packed. Very Rev. Archdeacon Kilkenney presided. He and William O'Brien, Conor O'Kelly and Father McGilvray delivered orations.

A fine meeting of Nationalists was held lately in Irishtown for the purpose of organizing a branch of the United Irish League. Mr. J. O'Donnell, M. P., drove out from Claremorris, and entering the historic little town met with a very hearty reception. Large numbers were present from Ballinacorney and Milltown. Irishtown and surrounding districts turned out to a mass, showing that the old spirit of patriotism was brilliant. The proceedings ended in a thorough organization of the "cradle of the Land League." On the proposition of Mr. P. Nolan, seconded by Mr. M. Garry, Rev. P. McGilvray took the chair amid loud cheering. The Rev. Chairman said that he was to thank them for having asked him to preside over such a large meeting. They were there for the old, old cause—'Ireland for the Irish and the Irish for the People.'

The funeral of the late Mr. Edward McGilvray, Westport, took place Jan. 1 at St. Mary's, Westport, and was attended by a large number from the district.

Brother James John Redmond, of the Christian Brothers' Schools, Ennistymon, died December 29. He was born in the city of Dublin, May, 1828. He was a pupil of the author of "The Collegians." He was superior of the Christian Brothers in Nenagh, Enniscaorthy, Kingstown, the Cabra Institution, Derry, and for the last ten years, Ennistymon. The inhabitants turned out "en masse" to pay the last tribute of regard to the departed. The remains were borne by the members of the sodality from the monastery through the principal streets, and back to the Brothers' little cemetery, where the interment took place. During the procession the sodality choir sang hymns, the bells of the parish church, the convent and the monastery were tolled.

The entertainment was held in the butter market. The performers acquitted themselves in the style and gave satisfaction in the rendering of their parts. Mr. O'Donnell, M. P., delivered a practical speech in Irish and English.

In connection with the epidemic of typhus fever at Cahirciveen, which has now subsided, a death of a very sad nature has to be recorded, and one which has evoked deepest sorrow among the members of the House Committee of the South Infirmary, Cork City, and the medicine and nursing staff of that institution. November last the epidemic made its appearance in Cahirciveen. Among the nursing Sisters selected to attend the fever-stricken patients was Miss Anna Fitzgerald, of Listowel, and one of the most prominent ladies of the highly trained and efficient nursing staff attached to the South Infirmary. Nurse Fitzgerald devoted herself with zeal to ministering to the needs of those committed to her charge, and so faithfully had she discharged her duties that great praise was bestowed upon her. The deceased had charge of the Fever Hospital, Cahirciveen, the permanent nurse, Miss Corcoran, with one of the Sisters of Mercy, both of whom have now recovered, having been prostrated with fever. When, however, the disease had almost been eradicated, the self-sacrificing Sister fell a victim to the malady. As a mark of respect to Miss Fitzgerald's memory, and in recognition of her services the Very Rev. Canon O'Riordan directed that high mass be celebrated Jan. 3 at the New Church, Very Rev. Canon celebrant.

LIMERICK.—Mr. John Hickey, of Croom, a sterling Nationalist, died Jan. 1, deeply and widely mourned. On Jan. 2 took place the coercion prosecution of Mr. Jeremiah Buckley, B. L., of the Limerick Leader, Limerick City, for an article in his paper denouncing the coercive conduct of the government toward the Irish people, for exercising the privileges of free men. He was sentenced to one month imprisonment.

TIPPERARY.—Mr. John McKeogh, Boher, died Dec. 20. The interment was in Ballina cemetery and the funeral was numerously attended.

On the Feast of the Epiphany in the church in Emly, Most Rev. Dr. Fennelly, Archbishop of Cashel, blessed a beautiful pulpit made of marble. The ceremonies commenced with mass at 12 o'clock, celebrated by the Rev. M. Devane, Emly, after which His Grace formally unveiled and dedicated the pulpit. The base and column are of green serpentine, and the plinth, balustrade and steps are red marble. The upper part of the pulpit is of white marble, relieved with columns of onyx and other marbles. The plan of the pulpit is an irregular octagon; on the center panel is a group in relief representing the preaching of St. Albin. The other panels are filled with foliage and tracing, and the shields contain emblems of the Passion and of the Evangelists.

The Very Rev. Canon Cahill, of Tipperary, died Jan. 3. During the past fifty years he was a prominent figure in the ranks of the Irish Nationalist movement. Canon Cahill was born in 1819, in the then portion of Mullinahone parish, subsequently transferred to Drangan. His ordination as priest took place in Maynooth in 1849, and since that time zealously worked out his sacred mission in Thurles, Tipperary, Knockavilla, Murroe, Lattin, and finally Tipperary as pastor. Office, followed by Requiem High Mass, was solemnized in St. Michael's Church for the deceased. Most Rev. Dr. Fennelly Archbishop of Cashel, celebrant.

WATERFORD.—The Executive of the West Waterford branches of the United Irish League held a meeting in the town hall, Dungarvan, lately. Mr. P. F. Walsh, Tallon, presided and delivered a most patriotic address. The Government is persecuting Mr. Walsh for his support of the United Irish League.

The following is an extract from the annual report of Father Power, Diocesan Inspector of Waterford and Lisimore: "The Irish prayers programme has been fairly taught in schools for which it is prescribed. In many cases the whole programme has not been gotten through and in a few cases, where teachers were only learners, the pronunciation was bad. There were four schools met with in which no effort had been made to teach Irish prayers, and to make matters worse two of the schools are in Irish speaking districts. In a surprisingly large number of schools Irish prayers have been taught where the Irish programme is not binding. The total number of children examined in Irish is 10,000, of whom 9,000 reside in County Waterford. As Mount Malley's Male (primary) School still retains its lead in this subject, it is awarded the gold medal offered for competition two years ago. The award is made with satisfaction, inasmuch as the winning school has gone far beyond the specifications, teaching not only the prayers, but the whole catechism in Irish."

Mr. Henry P. Lyman, editor of the Waterford Star, was liberated from Waterford prison on the morning of Jan. 6, where he had undergone a term of two months imprisonment under the Coercion Act. A large crowd had assembled outside the prison gate to welcome him. On his liberation, Mr. Lyman was warmly shaken hands with by those who were afforded the opportunity of greeting him.

On Jan. 7 Mr. Joseph F. Keogh, held an auction of the effects of the late Mr. Patrick Boylan at Avoca Villa, Meath, Road, Bray. The auction was attended by four hundred persons. The demesne is a very fine one, beautifully wooded, and the mansion handsomely and elegantly appointed. For the last few years the house has been occupied by Mr. G. A. The design is Celtic, and the interlacing and ornamental lettering are neatly executed after the designs from the Book of Kells. The first page contains hand painted views of the Town Hall, the parish church and the Rock of Dunamase.
