Nil Desperandum.
Never be discouraged; never say, "It is too late." Never lose heart under opposition. The fitting course for a man is to do what is good for the moment without vainly forecasting the future—to do the present duty and leave the results to God.

God's Presence.
There is always peace in the heart that is conscious of God's presence. "It is because we do not know that he is with us," some one has said, "and more than half doubt that he is anywhere that we become nervous, irritable, uneasy and unhappy." It is possible to reach such a height of faith as to find perfect freedom from the petty perplexities and daily cares and small worries which produce mental restlessness and physical disease. From these rare attitudes a man looks down on the troubles of life with calm indifference and looks up to God with serene trust. The experiences of life cannot seriously disturb a soul to whom the Infinite seems close by. Heaven has already begun in such a heart. Our divine Lord's "Peace, be still," has been uttered over all the billows that threaten to toss the bark. It has inward rest whatever be the outward commotion. Environment is a small matter to him who contemplates the Almighty. Not easy of attainment this point of vantage from which to survey the world, the perfect peace of complete faith, but it is well worth what it costs.

THE COLOGNE MEETING.

To Celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the German Catholic Congresses.

The golden jubilee of the German Catholic congresses will be celebrated during the meeting at Cologne next the 23rd to the 27th of August next. The history of the congresses is practically the story of Catholic organization throughout Germany since the days of the Kulturkampf, and the reviews of the past which will be presented on that occasion by speakers and writers will be deeply interesting.

No doubt visitors from many lands will be present in the ancient city on the banks of the Rhine, and they will, it is to be hoped, include a fair representation from the British Islands, for there is much to be learned from the German Catholics. They have disciplined their political forces so successfully as to be able to exercise a predominant power in the Reichstag, have established Catholic workingmen's societies and other associations for the benefit of the people on a sound basis and are supporting a well equipped and vigorous press. Hints at least will be given at the jubilee as to how progress has been achieved. It is hoped that the whole German episcopate will attend.

A difficulty has arisen with regard to affording accommodation for the public meetings. Cologne has some large halls, but none big enough for the meetings that will take place during the congress. It is proposed, therefore, that a suitable tent capable of holding from 7,000 to 10,000 people should be prepared and that it should be of the character of a transportable "wander hall," so that it may be used for succeeding Catholic congresses.—London Catholic Opinion.

SHORT SERMONS.

Yes, let us watch over all. A thought, a look, a smile, a pulsation of the heart, a mere nothing, can defile or purify us.

Lord Jesus, give us fidelity, which alone can unite us most intimately with thee, and make us holy even as thou art holy.

Kind looks, kind words, kind acts and warm handshakes—these are secondary means of grace when men are in trouble and are lightening their unseen troubles.

Family ties are not severed in heaven, and Jesus, in raising his blessed mother above the saints and angels, teaches us that filial piety is a virtue of eternity.

It is for active service that soldiers are drilled and trained and fed and armed. That is why you and I are in the world at all—not to prepare to go out of it some day, but to serve God actively in it now.

FRENCH WRESTLING.

An Amusing Match at Hyeres, Where Men Crawled Around.

Hyeres, writes a correspondent, is one of those places which provide amusement for all classes. Royalty has appreciated to the full its delightful climate and scenery. Still, it may be questioned whether there are any who visit Hyeres solely for the wrestling. French wrestling is a thing all to itself, wonderful and worthy of an artistic nation. It has no affinity with the art as practiced either by "girt Jan Ridd," our Devonshire or Cornish man, or that doughty Cumberland champion who was ready to fling everybody and "foight" them afterward.

Every country—almost every country—has its different style of wrestling, but the French system, it has been well said, "for downright absurdity bears off the palm." One of the special points about it is that to be conquered it is necessary that both shoulders of the fallen man shall touch the ground at the same time. To any one imbued with English ideas of wrestling the effect of two men rolling on the ground seems rather brutal, but the real struggle, when it comes to a struggle, is, after all, child's play compared with, for example, a Lancashire match. In this instance nothing very exciting occurred. Neither champion attempted a "Cornish heave," a "double Nelson" or any intricate "locks," for the French rules are directly antagonistic to the very elements of a struggle as we understand it. In fact, as some one aptly said, the match seemed to consist mostly of crawling about the floor. Possibly the company was more interesting than the entertainment, for at a wrestling match, be it French or English, even as at a boxing match, party spirit runs very high, and, though the room was by no means crowded, the gentle restraint of the police was required to keep enthusiasm within proper channels.—Golden Penny.

The buttons on coats, etc., are placed on the right side and the shed of the hair in boys to the left, evidently to suit manipulation by the right hand. The great philosopher Newton records that at first he confined his astronomical observations to his right eye, but afterward he managed to train his left. But there are persons who could not do this owing to the unequal strength of their eyes. Strange to say, the Chinese assign the place of honor to the left.

At Kunyeny, in Africa, Cameron relates being introduced to the heir presumptive to the throne, the nails of whose left hand had been allowed to grow to an enormous length as a sign of high rank, proving that he was never required to perform manual labor and also providing him with the means of tearing the meat which formed his usual diet.—Chambers' Journal.
