GALWAY-Mr. James . O'Halloran, Dublin Road, Tuam, died June 12. rather suddenly. For many years he had been caretaker of the club. He was in the Corpus Christi procession that went round the Cathedral on that festival. Father John McDermott officiated at the funeral.

A decree arrived from Rome on June 12 announcing that the Pope had appointed the Very Rev. Thomas O'Dea. D. D., vice president Maynooth College, Bishop of Clonfert, in succession to the Most Rev. Dr. Healy, trans--lated to the Archdiocese of Tuam.

While workmen were pulling down portion of an old building on the property of Mr. Martin J. Hynes, at St. Augustine street, Galway, lately, they found built over an oaken crossbeam an unusual structure, and a carpenter named Clarke ripped up this structure, and to his great surprise found within a splendid sword of foreign manufacture and of very antiquated design. Mr. Hynes had the blade and hilt burnished, when it was found that the latter was of metal resembling gold. The blade is either Toledo or Damascus steel, and is as pliable as an ash plant. Mr Hynes would not part with it for any consideration. Several persons have celled to see the sword, and all are of opinion that it must have been the property of some of the nobles of spain, who made Galway a center for their commercial enterprise and the old building in which it was found dates back many centuries, and was one of these old mansions occupied in those days by the merchants of

A discovery has just been made in a hog in the Claudy district. Men were digging in the bog in Lettermuch when they came upon the body of a man dressed in the clothing of sev enty years ago-tall hat, yellow breeches, low shoes, and wearing one of the old-fashioned verge" watches Even the gloves upon the hands were intact. The body has been identified as that of an excise officer who disappeared in the district seventy years ago. At that time paner manufacture was carried on at the mills on the banks of the River Faughan, now oc cupied by Messrs. Irwin & Son. The duty on paper was very high and the temptation of the manufacturers to smuggle paper out of the mill correspondingly great Two brothers named Matthewson, who carried on the paper mills, were considered by the British excise authorities to be ex perts in this work, and it was arranged that a double staff of two gaugers should be placed on duty at the Faughan Mills, one of whom was to be constantly on the premises. One afternoon the gauver off duty went for a walk, and from that date nothing was heard of him. The brothers Matstood their trials for murder, but there was no conviction. The body now found was discovered six inches under the turf It has not yet been ascertained whether an expert examination of the remains can possibly show the cause of death.
