CLARE. - The Weekly Freeman of Aug. 22 contained the following: "A Lahinch report to hand tells of a tragic incident at that popular seaside resort. Mr. McCormack. a local school teacher, had been eccentric in his manner for some time, and had been under detention. He recently returned home, and was yesterday visited by some relatives. He left his house, followed by some of his friends, and, making for the sea coast, jumped from the top of the cliff at Moy, about a mile from the village. When picked up he was unconscious, and was bleeding from a terrible wound across the front of the head, the face being also badly battered, but, strange to say, no bones were broken, though the clift was a hundred feet in height. The unfortunate man was at once attended by Dr. O'Dwyer, and at the latest accounts he was expected to survive. Much sympathy is felt with the family of the poor man, who was widely respected in the district."
