POPULAR PAGES

"I bet the aeronaut $50 that his balloon wouldn't float me." "What did he do?" "Took me up."—Washington Times.

"Ferguson has a good deal of influence over in your ward. I understand." "Influence! Well, I should say so. What we're looking for now is somebody who has influence with Ferguson."—Detroit News.

"After a man has reached the age of forty," said Mrs. Disbrow, "he thinks every good-looking woman he sees is in love with him." "I am sure, my dear," retorted Mr. D., "I have never accused you."—Detroit Free Press.

"And was he really good?" "For a man of his pretensions, no." It was not infrequently that the savages spoke thus to one another concerning their last missionary, and wondering how long his place would remain vacant.—Detroit Tribune.

"Shall we go to the seashore or the mountains this year, Henry?" "Which ever you please, dear." "How good you are, Henry! Doesn't it make any difference to you?" "Not the least. As I am dead broke you can have your choice."—Detroit Free Press.

Tagliegh—There is a spot of grease on my coat, and I think I'll use some benzine when I get home. Wagliegh—Why don't you use it on the spot?—New York World.

Little Moneybags—It's rather hard to be poor, isn't it? Needyman (grimly)—Um! I've always found it easy enough.—Comic Cuts.

Dixby—What's in that bottle—poison? Dooby—I guess there must be; there isn't any label on it.—Roxbury Gazette.

Miriam—That Mr. Higgins, they say, is a failure as a kisser. Marie—I suppose you wouldn't object to being the receiver when he fails?—Yonkers Statesman.

Mother—Naughty, naughty girl, to strike your little brother. Those little hands were never made to tear each other's eyes. Edith—What were they made for, mamma, to 'pauk with?'—Boston Transcript.

Foreman (through the speaking tube)—Where do you want that stuff about Turkey put? Night Editor (yelling back)—On the inside, of course.—Chicago Tribune.

Student (hurriedly accosting a mate of his)—Sapperlot, there are a couple of creditors close on my heels. Fellow Student—Quick, run into the savings bank over the way, nobody will look for you there.—Bantex Allerley.

He—And did you see Monte Carlo while you were at Nice? She—No; papa called on him, I believe, but from his disappointed appearance when he returned to the hotel, I think Mr. Carlo must have been out.—Tit-Bits.

"What, Styner in trouble with his wife! I'm surprised at that. Always heard they got on famously; that there never was a better husband; that he anticipated her every wish."
"That's what he did on this occasion. He found that she wished to get a divorce from him, and so he anticipated that wish and got one from her."—Boston Transcript.

"Person and Place Inaccessible."
On occasion of the late open air concert of the "Gesangverein Liederkreis," says the Breslauer Zeitung, the committee naturally wished for fine weather. So the secretary addressed a postcard to "Jupiter Pluvius, Heaven," with a short petition to keep the night clear from rain. The postcard was duly posted, but a few days later it was returned to the secretary, with the following notice written across it: "Person and place inaccessible; none of the postmen who have gone to the address mentioned have ever returned to the post-office. Siten, Postmaster."

An Unexpected Boon.
"Bromley, my serial story came back yesterday."
"What! After being kept three years?"
"Yes, and it wasn't read, for I had purposely pasted some of the pages together. The editor kept my stamps, and sent the MS. by express at my expense."
"And you're hopping mad?"
"No, I'm thankful he didn't charge me storage."—The Epoch.

Educational Progress.
African Explorer—Really, a strange thing happened once in an oasis. I was sitting one pleasant Sunday afternoon in the shadow of a palm tree, reading the paper. I took my eyes off the page to turn over, and there was an old lion that had crept up and was reading the "want" ads.—Filegends Blaetter.

No Draw.
Bacon—I was up to Artist Penn's house last night.
Yeast—Did he draw any for you?
"Yes, indeed, he did."
"What was the best thing he drew during the evening?"
"A cork."—Yonkers Statesman.

Her heart is broken—yet, 'tis queer, Though deeply merged 'neath sorrow's pall,
The gowns she used to wear last year This summer will not hook at all.—Chicago Record.

"Who are they?"
"Keepers of boarding houses."—Washington Times.
