CARNIVAL AT GLEN HAVEN

The people's fair and carnival at Glen Haven has been drawing large crowds every afternoon and evening. High praise has been accorded to the free attractions provided by the management. The performing horse and the educated bull under the direction of Professor Sunlin, are well worth the price of admission to the grounds. But in addition to this there is a balloon ascension daily that excels anything of the kind ever given in this vicinity. Frank P. Robinson is the aeronaut and a cooler, more daring performer has never been seen.

The dainty shows in front of the Glen Haven hotel, "Karma, the Egyptian Wonder," and "The Mermaid" at the Palace of Illusions are all good. These will be especially appreciated by women and children. Another of similar kind, "The Swinging Lady," is mystifying in the extreme.

The "Cyclone House" afforded endless amusement. It is thrilling yet harmless. The Stadium affords entertainment of an athletic kind. It is one of the strongest shows on the grounds.

At a meeting of the directors of the carnival it was decided to re-fight the battle of San Juan early next week. All who witnessed the mock battle on Monday night were enthusiastic regarding the exhibition, and the fight will be repeated in response to the many requests that have been made to the managers. On Monday evening next an illuminated parade of the various crafts on the bay will be held.

NATIONAL THEATRE.

Miss Jessie Bonstelle, the popular leading woman of the National Theatre Stock Company, will be seen next week in the comedy, "Miss Hobbs." suggestion to Hunters.

There is probably no subject on which the general public is more ignorant than the marvelous developments made in sporting arms within the past few years. In fact, a good percentage of hunters, so called, themselves, have really no exact appreciation and understanding of the extreme range, flat trajectory and astounding penetration of the small bore cartridge, loaded with dense nitro powder, which when discharged develops a pressure and velocity tremendously greater than that produced by black powder and what is known as low-pressure smokeless powder. A rifle of this character, with a killing range of two miles, is truly a dangerous affair in the hands of an inexperienced man who goes prowling through the woods ready to fire at anything that moves before he distinguishes whether it bears any resemblance to a human being or a deer.—Buffalo Courier.

Nature Study for Negroes.

In connection with Hampton and Tuskegee institutes, two years ago, extension bureaus of nature study and agriculture were established on a $5,000 endowment, printed lessons and illustrated leaflets being sent out broadcast on the Cornell plan. In addition to this fifty travelling libraries were sent out from Hampton to circulate among rural schools. This work has given a strong impulse to more practical training in southern schools. In some cases the school gardens worked by the children have resulted in sufficient revenue to increase the length of the school term.
