ABOUT RUGS

A topic of as much interest, we imagine, to hundreds of housekeepers who open their paper this morning, as anything in the news columns. Homes are to be fitly furnished for fall and winter, and this means that the Rug question is one of those to be disposed of.

As Rugs in the larger sizes have become more and more a factor of modern methods of furnishing, we have given them correspondingly greater attention in making up our stocks. It is with especial satisfaction that we invite you to see our new selections, for we have never before had so many rugs to show, nor so great a variety of patterns and colorings. It is not only the largest stock of rugs in Rochester, but there is no other in which the price advantages are so conspicuous.

It was never truer than now, that the Howe & Rogers store is an ideal place for the purchase of rugs.

DOMESTIC RUGS

The truth of the old saying, "Where there's a will, there's a way," was never better exemplified than by recent achievements in American rug manufacture. Spurred by a fast-increasing demand for large rugs of moderate cost, the makers are now producing designs and colorings that not long ago were seen only in the creations of the cunning artisans of the Orient.

Our new assortments of Domestic Rugs are representative in both weave and pattern. The stock comprises several hundred pieces in all sizes up to eleven feet three inches by fourteen feet. Our choice has been carefully made—they are Wiltons, Axminsters, Velvets, Body Brussels, Smyrna, and Kashmirs, in many of which you will recognize the peculiar beauties of design and color that characterize the Oriental rug. The beautiful floral effects which are often so desirable, are also shown in the different weaves.

In the normal sizes, our patterns are numbered by the thousand, with prices beginning at $1.00. What will impress you most in connection with this exhibit, is the enormous variety of choice styles which is presented for selection at prices as low as, or lower than, are asked where opportunities are not nearly as good.

HOWE & ROGERS CO.

THE TRAVELER AND THE NATIVE.

Latter Was Smart But the Other Had His Too. The traveler stepped out of the car to stretch his legs a bit while the trainmen were darning a hot box.

"What town is this?" he said to the solitary native on the station platform. "Name's on the sign up there," replied the native.

"Oh, yes—Drearyhurst. How far is it to Chicago?" "You'll find that on the sign, too." "So it is—fourteen miles. Much business done here?" "Not much. Keeps us pretty busy, though, mindin' it."

"Had a great deal of rain in this section?" "Well, we hadn't growed weeds on our feet yet." "Any newspaper published in the town?" "No, sir; nothin' but the Drearyhurst Democrat."

"Much building going on here?" "Some. Abe Syfert put up a chicken house last fall." "You don't have much business to do yourself, do you?" "Yes, sir, they keep me down here at the deepo to answer fool questions."

"So I perceive. Well, my friend, you're rather too many for me. Do you ever take a drink?" "Sometimes." "Then suppose you go to the pump there and help yourself. I see the train is moving off. Good by."—Chicago Tribune.

Two Scotch Stories. In one of Glasgow's finely laid out cemeteries, a rich citizen, who was notorious as a skeptic, had erected a massive mausoleum on what he termed "his ancestral plot." One day he met a worthy elder of the kirk coming away from the vicinity of the imposing mass of masonry, so he said to him:

"Weel, Davvit, ye've been up seein' that gran' erection o' mine?" "Deed, hiv' I, sir." "Gee strong place that, isn't it? It'll tak' a man a' his time ta raise out o' von at the day o' judgment." "Hoot, ma mon," said David, "ye can gie yerself little fash aboot risin' gin that day comes. They'll tak' the bottom oot o' ta let ye fa' doon."

"Th. no." said Donald, quietly. "This is just an acquaintance—like yersel."

Cooks are often accused of want of method, but the Aunt Dinah in Howard Paul's new egg story is not open to any such reproach. Invariably when she put the eggs in the saucepan she began singing "Rock of Ages," and sang through two verses.

"Aunt Dinah," asked Mr. Paul, "are there not three verses in that hymn?" "Dar is, massa, but I sings only two when I wants 'em soft and three when I wants 'em hard."

His other egg story is good, too. He was traveling on a Pennsylvania railway and when his breakfast was brought the eggs were underdone.

"What time are we making on this train?" he asked the waiter. "A mile a minute, sir." "Then boll the eggs another mile and they'll be quite right."—London Truth.

Poor Bachelor.

Dubby—Queer, I've balled it just as the cookbook says, but how am I to tell whether or not it's done?"

Leaves His Breath. Col. Bartlett of Georgia tells of a colored Baptist preacher who hates tobacco. On one occasion, meeting an aged brother with a very strong old pipe in his mouth, he said:

"Bruddah Thomas, nothin' unclean kin entah de kingdom." "I knows dat well 'nuff." "Well, you caln't entah, 'casse you brel smells worse nor a slaughter-house." "Mebbe so, pahson, mebbe so. But, w'en I goes to hebbin' I'se gwintear leab my brel behind. See?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Like Belles of Long Ago. Many of the old chains which are more threads of gold or silver are used to hang mantures or lookies on. Belles, too, such as were worn by the belles of long ago, are wrapped around the throat and fastened in the back with a cameo or other cheap.

Kitchen Herbs.

An authority says regarding the sweet and savory herbs so easily grown in kitchen gardens and which are indispensable to good cooking: Parsley, tarragon, and fennel, should be dried in May, June, and July, just before flowering, in June and July; thyme, marjoram, and savory in July and August, basil and sage in August and September, all herbs should be gathered in the sunshine, and dried by artificial heat; their flavor is best preserved by keeping them in straight tin cans.

Whole-Wheat Bread.

Stir together a cup, each, of boiling water and hot milk, and add a tablespoonful of melted butter and one of granulated sugar. When the mixture is blood warm stir in a yeast cake that has been dissolved in a gill of warm water. Mix three cups of whole-wheat flour with a cup of white flour and work this into the liquid mixture until you have a soft dough that can be kneaded. Knead for ten or fifteen minutes, cover and set to rise until it is twice its original size. Make into small loaves, let it rise for an hour or until very light, and bake in a steady oven.

Canned Strawberries.

Cap the berries and weigh them. To every pound of berries allow a quarter-pound of granulated sugar. Put the berries and sugar in alternate layers in a porcelain-lined preserving kettle and stand for an hour. Add a pinch of alum and set at the side of the stove to simmer gently for five or six minutes after the bubbling actually begins. Dip out the superfluous juice which may be used for strawberry jelly. Fill heated jars to overflowing with the boiling fruit and seal.

Dandelion Wine.

Cover the dandelion blossoms with boiling water, stand on the side of the range for five minutes then strain out the flowers, pressing them hard to extract all juice. Measure this, sweeten to taste, and add brandy in the proportion of a pint of the liquor to four gallons of liquid. Put in un-corked bottles and set in a cool dark place until fermentation ceases, then rebottle and seal.

Gooseberry Jam.

Top and tail the gooseberries and weigh them, allowing four pounds of granulated sugar to six pounds of the fruit. Wash the berries, put them, still wet, in the kettle with the sugar and set at the side of the range, watching carefully that they do not scorch. Stir often. Cook steadily for an hour. If there is too much juice dip it out and keep for jelly. Put the jam, boiling hot, into jelly glasses and seal.
