To Induce Other Unfortunates 5

Geneseo, Ill., Jan., 1903.

The Rev. Krueger pastor of St. Paul's Church in above named town, vouches for the following: A Mrs. K. was afflicted with falling sickness since twenty-five years; physician could give her no relief and thought the desease would abate in the more mature years, but the attacks increased in time. Last summer came every day, even during the night. Last October I suggested to her to try Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, but having tried so many remedies before without even relief, she thought it would be useless to try anything else. Still I persuaded her to try it. So far she took four bottles of it and is able to attend to her household again. If other unfortunate can be induced by above to try the Tonic to get relief from this awful disease I am willing answer all letters of inquiry.

AUBURN.

By reason of holy week the musicale under the direction of choirmaster Jas. A. Hennessey of the Holy Family church for the benefit of the monument fund has been postponed until May 17 at which time it is expected that the entertainment will be the best given for that good object.

The mission which has been in progress at St. Mary's church for three weeks will be close to-morrow. The first week for the women was a great success, but the second for the men eclipsed the first, and the past week for non-Catholics was the most successful of the three. The mission which was one of the best ever given in the city, was under the direction of the Paulists of New York, and will ever be remembered by the parishioners of St. Mary's church.

On May 8 an entertainment will be given in Music Hall for the benefit of St. Aloysius church under the direction of the young people of that parish. The entertainment will consist of a four act drama and the talent is among the best in the city. A large crowd should greet the young people in their efforts.

Mrs. Norah Guinan of No. 47 Holley street, died last Saturday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Sherlock. She had not been feeling well for some time but had been about the house, when she stooped to pick up something from the floor she fell over dead. The doctor was called and also Father Silke, but the unfortunate woman was beyond human aid when they arrived.

Father Jones, assistant at Holy Apostles church Rochester, officiating. Deceased is survived by his widow, five daughters, Mrs. D. C. Piper of Geneseo, Mrs. D. McLean, Mrs. C. Kelly, Misses Ella and Katherine Fitzgerald of Rochester, and three sons, John of Buffalo, Michael and Thomas of Rochester.

EXTREME UNCTION.

Conditions Under Which It May Be Administered—Its Benefits.

Sickness and the likelihood of death resulting therefrom are the two conditions which must exist to entitle one to the Sacrament of Extreme Unction.

Some, however, not sufficiently informed may imagine the above definition at variance with the practice prevailing in the Church. They observe the sacrament being administered to those who have met with an accident which is pronounced fatal. There has been no previous sickness; hence the absence of any of the necessary conditions. But they should remember that the accident itself, not producing instant death, results in a sickness which may terminate in death. Both conditions are, therefore, present, and the injured person is consequently entitled to the sacrament.

While we believe that almost all Catholics have a proper knowledge of the occasions on which the sacrament may be administered, yet there can be no mistake that some are seriously at fault touching its benefits. Their conduct would indicate that they believe the administering of the sacrament means certain death; hence they defer sending for the priest until the very last moment, risking the death of the sick person before the priest's arrival.

There are no grounds for such conclusions; neither is there justification for such action. On the contrary, there should be great anxiety to have the sacrament administered as early as possible. We have it on the authority of St. James that "the prayer of faith shall save the sick man." We have it on the authority of the council of Trent that health is also restored to the body when it is expedient for the salvation of the soul. We have it also on the authority of the priest, confirmed by the observation of even non-Catholic physicians, that immediate change for the better in the condition of the sick frequently follows the reception of the sacrament. Many of us also have been convinced of the same fact from personal knowledge.—Church Progress.

The Sacred College.

According to Catholic statistics compiled up to Jan. 1, 1905, the Sacred College numbers sixty-one members. Of these thirty seven are Italians. Nine belong to religious orders. Eight are priests, but have not received episcopal consecration. One was created by Pius IX., fifty eight by Leo XIII and two by Pius X. The countries represented are America, Austria, Australia, Belgium, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Portugal and Spain. Thirty reside in curia i. e. in Rome of whom four are foreigners. The dean of the Sacred College is Oreglia di Santo Stefano, who was created in 1873 by Pius IX. He belongs to an old baronial family of Piedmont and is bishop of Ostia and Velletri. Yet while senior cardinal he is not the oldest in age. There are nine older than he, the veteran being Richard archbishop of Paris, who is eighty six. The dean is ten years younger. Cardinal Merry del Val is the youngest [illegible] thirty nine. [illegible] elected of the cardinals and the [illegible] teenth author [illegible] telephone [illegible] librarian of the Holy Roman Church. He is [illegible] to the oratory (founded by St. Philip Neri) and is an admirer of [illegible] whom Newman was of English.

WATCHES AND SOULS.

A Similarity From Which We May Draw a Moral.

The watch has long furnished the essayist with a variety of apt illustrations. The intricacy of its mechanism, irresistibly suggesting a designer, has often been cited as a buttress to the argument for the existence of an intelligent Creator of the universe. Pope uses it to emphasize our predilection for our own opinions, "'Tis with our judgments as our watches—none go just alike, yet each believes his own," and scores of other applications will be recalled by the general reader. A similarity less commonly noted exists between the watch and the soul.

"Few people," said a jeweler the other day, "realize the penetrating influence of dust and dirt. Modern ingenuity has enabled watch case makers to produce almost perfect models of tight fitting, dust proof cases. Not withstanding the fact that the works are protected by an inner case, an outer case and likewise by the pocket, a surprisingly large amount of dirt finds its way into the delicate mechanism of a watch. To prove this, open both of the cases of your watch, hold it a few inches above a sheet of white paper and tap gently on the rim. The result of this experiment will leave you amazed that your watch has been able to run so long and so accurately."

Thus it is also with the most exemplary Christians. Though the purity of the soul be protected by daily prayer and meditation, by attendance at Holy Mass and frequent reception of the Blessed Sacrament, still, when the test of a rigorous examination of conscience is applied, it will be found that the dust and dirt of innumerable imperfections, backslidings and venial sins have found their way through the senses and retarded the movement of our inmost heart and will toward God, our Father and our end.—Catholic Home Companion.
