MANY USES FOR SALT

WHITENS TEETH AND CURES SORE THROAT.

Also Aids to Regulate Oven Heat, Preventing Burning Bread or Cake—Cleans China and Glass—Eases Pain of Sting.

A housekeeper whose knowledge of salt is limited to the fact that it is a seasoning has much yet to learn of it.

Those stains made by tea in delicate cups, or any other that may come in china will disappear if rubbed with damp salt, and silver discolored with egg will brighten under similar treatment.

Put into rinsing water it gives china and glass a higher polish, and decanters and water bottles discolored from sediment may be made quite bright by dropping in a tablespoonful of salt and adding a teaspoonful of ammonia and a cupful of water. The bottle should then be shaken vigorously, and if the stain is not entirely removed let the preparation stay in over night.

Stained doorsteps may be restored by rubbing them with wet salt, and carpets dulled with time will be freshened by wiping over with a cloth wet with warm water in which a little ammonia has been dissolved, and then wiping again with salt water. Dry salt sprinkled over a carpet when sweeping will keep down the dust and freshen the colors.

For cleansing purposes in connection with the toilet it is equally valuable. Fruit stains on the teeth, however deep, will be completely vanquished if salt is rubbed over, and when on the hands, especially when preserving, an application of lemon juice, followed by dry salt, will make them quite white again.

An oven that is too hot on the bottom for baking purposes becomes perfect if a layer of salt is sprinkled over and the pans rest on that a layer put in the pans themselves will prevent the bottom from scorching, and the cover of a sauce pan, similarly sprinkled will prevent the contents from being smoked with the most obnoxious fire.

No laundry is complete without salt, for a pinch in starch will prevent it from sticking, and a fairly strong solution will keep in the colors in cottons if they are soaked in it before washing. Rubbing an iron over dry salt will smooth it.

A couple of grains of salt in a bottle of ink will prevent it from molding. Salt thrown thickly over brick walks will prevent weeds from growing in between. A little put into the water in which are cut flowers will make them keep fresh longer.

For stings of wasps or bees apply a plaster of wet salt, and for tooth or earache, fill a bag with hot salt and apply it locally. If chilblains have not broken, salt will ease the pain, and a gargle of salt water is good for sore throat, as a weak solution is to allay inflammation in the eyes. Chicago News
