Cook Opera House.

McMahon's Minstrel Maids and Watermelon Girls will head the bill of vaudeville to be presented at the Cook Opera House this week. This act consists of nine young women who appear in burnt cork and give an old-fashioned minstrel first part. Sherman and DeForest will present a bit of grotesquerie that is said to possess the element of originality. The Five Piroscoffis, are French jugglers. R. J. Jose is a favorite minstrel tenor. Comedy gymnastics by Rosaire and Doretto; Adolph Zink, a lilliputian comedian; Murphy and Francis show "real cork habits" and the kinetograph fill the bill, which will be presented twice daily all next week.

BAKER THEATRE

Next week the Moore Stock Company will present Bartley Campbell's masterpiece "My Partner", a Western drama in four acts. This play is one that has enjoyed wonderful prosperity for many years and is as popular now with stock companies as when first produced. There have been many demands for it, both during the summer season at Cook Opera House and the winter season at the Baker, and it contains enough dramatic action and lively comedy to make it one of the most popular offerings of the season. Each person in the play secures a distinct character role that provides opportunities for clever work. At the head of the fun-makers is Tommy Shearer as a Chinaman, always in trouble. Matinees will be given on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. For the following week Shakespeare's comedy "The Merchant of Venice" is announced.

NATIONAL THEATRE

The famous happy tramp and ever enjoyable singing comedian, Mr. Nat Willis, will be the attraction at the National Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with matinees Tuesday and Wednesday. There are twenty-seven musical numbers introduced, including gems of grand and comic opera, recent ballad hits, and local parodies.

Of the several especially noteworthy scenes pictured in Sherlock Holmes, which will again be seen in this city at the National Theatre next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with Friday and Saturday matinees, are some startling electric effects.

THE CAUCASUS REVOLT

"Land of the Golden Fleece"

Rent Apart by Misrule

PEOPLE ARE WARFARING

Virtually No Native Born Russians in the Country—Opposed to Russia's Method of Government—Russians Claim Armenia Had a Part in Destruction of Oil Wells.

Perhaps the strangest feature of the Caucasus is the fact that, with the exception of the two army corps by means of which alone the Czar is able to maintain a semblance of sovereignty and the civil government officials, there are virtually no native born Russians in the country. The population of some five millions is the most polyglot and polydox to be found anywhere in the world, since there are scores and scores of nationalities, many hundreds of tribes and a considerable number of creeds. Add to this the fact that the Caucasians as a whole are prone to bloodshed, opposed to the methods of government which Russia has for nearly a hundred years been endeavoring to force upon them and imbued with the strongest kind of racial prejudice and fanaticism, and it becomes possible to form some kind of a notion of the elements of disorder in that particular part of the Czar's empire, says New York Tribune.

It was Catherine the Great who first initiated the acquisition of the Caucasus, partly by means of invasion and partly, too, through persuading chiefs and princes to accept Muscovite suzerainty under the promise, never kept, of being permitted to retain their sovereignty and autonomy. Then, too, a considerable portion of the Caucasus was obtained by conquest from Persia, while another big slice of territory was acquired by similar means from Turkey. Speaking broadly, the population of the Caucasus was and remains divided into Moslems, who are, for the most part, the dwellers of the mountain regions, and the Christians, who were and are almost exclusively Armenians. And in the olden days the hardy Mahometan mountaineers would prey upon the Christian lowlanders. And Russia, finding it difficult—nay, almost impossible—to subdue the highlanders, induced by various pledges of favor and protection the Armenians of the plains to assist her in her task. She appealed to the analogy of the Orthodox and Armenian churches, and, by keeping before the Armenians the antagonism which must necessarily exist between the Crescent and the Cross, and by holding out hopes to them of the restoration of the ancient kingdom of Armenia under the suzerainty of the Czar, secured such valuable co-operation that the mountain tribes were at length reduced to a more or less nominal subjection.

Subsequently the championship by Russia of the cause of the Armenians in Turkey, for the purpose of promoting her designs upon Constantinople, led to an extensive emigration of Armenians from the Ottoman Empire, and the war between Russia and Turkey of 1877 had the effect of still further adding a portion of the Caucasus, populated almost exclusively by Armenians, to the dominions of the Czar. It was not long, however, before the Muscovite authorities discovered that the Armenians declined to become assimilated. They not only insisted on remaining Armenians and loyal to their Church, but they likewise began to agitate with a view of securing from Russia the fulfillment of her promise to restore the ancient kingdom of Armenia with an autonomous government under the suzerainty of the Czar. Then, too, the Armenians have the commercial spirit as strongly developed as the Jews, and the Russian government began to find in the Armenians the same objections of an economic character which they are forever invoking as a pretext for their oppression of the Hebrew race. That is to say, they insist that the Armenians, like the Jews, have a tendency to monopolize all the wealth and prosperity, and beggar their fellow citizens of different race and creed, wherever they may happen to settle. The Moslems of the Caucasus did not need much encouragement to assist their Armenian fellow citizens. They have neither forgotten nor forgiven the fact that it was through the assistance given by the Armenians to the Russians that they had lost their independence; that their national hero, Sohamyl, had been taken prisoner, and their mountain fastnesses overrun and captured by the Muscovite invader. They were only too glad of the opportunity of wreaking their vengeance on those whom they regarded as their betrayers, and the result is that neither life nor property is safe. When the destruction of property became so extensive that the entire oil industry has been put out of business for more than a year to come, 3,000 out of a total of 3,600 wells being ruined, the government became alarmed and poured troops once more into the Caucasus for the purpose of restoring order. It may be said in conclusion that according to experts the value of the property destroyed and the losses sustained in connection therewith exceed the expenses of Russia entailed by her recent war with Japan.

The Argentine Republic's foreign commerce for 1904 reached the enormous figure of $451,463,000 in gold, or nearly $90 per head. No other country in the world has so large a per capita foreign trade.

A lady from Rochester, whose little girl was cured by the Tonic from the next visitation, told me about it and almost begged me to try the wonderful Tonic. Mrs. Julia F. Sauer.
