Baking Powder

The United States Agricultural Department has issued (and circulates free) a valuable report giving the results of elaborate experiments made by and under the direction of the Department, which show the great saving from baking at home, as compared with cost of buying at the bakers. All bread, cake, biscuit, crullers, etc., are very much fresher, cleaner, cheaper and more wholesome when made at home with Royal Baking Powder.

Habits of Domesticated Animals.

The dog is the most widely distributed of the domestic animals. He lives in the lowly hut of the African savage and is the companion of the Greenland Esquimaux, the most northern inhabitants of the world. He is, in fact, the inseparable companion of man and is found wherever the human race exists. His habit is thus extended further north and further south than that of any other domestic animal.

Uses of Coconut.

Oriental coconuts being well suited for the production of large quantities of illuminating gas, and gasoline not being readily obtainable, the government laboratories in the Philippines have adopted a method of preparing gas from coconut oil. The oil is slowly poured into red-hot cast-iron retorts, and a gas of high quality is given off, with the production of very little tar.

Medical Value of Flowers.

It is now established that flowers and the perfumes, distilled from them have a salutary influence and constitute a therapeutic agency of high value, and that residence in a perfumed atmosphere forms a protection from pulmonary affections and arrests phthisis. In the town of La Grasse, France, where the making of perfumes is largely carried on, phthisis is unknown.

Fasting of the Glaciers.

According to experts who have been studying the question, the death and total extinction of the prehistoric glaciers is only a matter of time. In the Dauphine Alps seventeen main glaciers have been under close observation since 1890, and all have shrunk steadily during the period, some of them as much as fifty feet a day.

Zone of the Silkworm.

The silkworm gardens the earth between the fifth parallel of north latitude and the Tropic of Cancer, being found further south only in Siam and Cochinchina. In other words, it lives wherever the mulberry and other trees on which it feeds are found in perfection.

Selling Snow in Italy.

Snow is sold in the north of Sicily, and it fetches about a cent a pound. It is a government monopoly, and the Prince of Palermo derives the greater part of his income from it. The snow is gathered on the mountains in felt-covered baskets, and is sold in the cities for refrigerating purposes.

Why not renew your youth by going to school again? What for? To learn the art of cake making? Well, I like that," you may reply. "Learn the art of cake making? I can teach it to others." Perhaps so, but honor bright, what success have you had with such delicious as "Angel" or "Succotash" cake? Aye, there's the rub!

As our cake expert tells his pupils, one of the causes of poor cake making is that the ordinary recipes don't specify which kind of batter should be stirred, which beaten and which whipped. Learning such information, most cake makers follow a general rule with indifferent results. Then again light cake, being too delicate to bear its own weight, settles and becomes "soggy." Yet the heavier kind may come out all right. On this account, amateurs attribute their success or failure to good or bad luck, not knowing the why or wherefore. Why not come and get a few pointers from "one who knows," and be willing to divulge the secret of his skill to any one who would like to learn.

Outfittings for Porch Parlors

If here in summer, "strangers within our gates" are impressed by the tasteful furnishings of our piazzas. Neighbors seem to vie with each other in the production of artistic effects. Little wonder, therefore, that we make a specialty of the supply of such requisites.

First and foremost there's the hammock, without which a porch is short on comfort. Then there are bamboo shades—grateful shields against the oppressive rays of the noonday sun. And for floor coverings, rugs of grass fiber or matting. Nor should porch pillows covered with washable materials be overlooked in the outfitting. For any and all of these requisites, look to us and you will surely be satisfied. A few specials:

CURIOUS AIDS TO SPEECH.

Methods Adopted by Well Known Speakers and Writers.

Readers may have noticed that many persons while speaking—public orators included—have a knack of doing something which appears in an unaccountable way to assist the flow of words.

Sir Walter Scott has supplied an illustration of this. When at school he could never succeed in getting above a certain boy in the class until he discovered that this boy, while repeating his lessons, continually dogged with a button on his waistcoat. At the first opportunity that offered, Scott cut the button away, and his object was gained. When the boy was called upon to construe, his hand instinctively sought the button, and, being unable to find it, his memory completely failed him and he went in disgrace to the bottom.

Mrs. Cowden Clarke, the compiler of the well known Shakespeare in Shakespeare, has told of a similar peculiarity on the part of Madame de Staël, who had a habit when talking of taking a scrap of paper and snipping it into bits with a pair of scissors. The idiosyncrasy of Gibbon, the historian, was to take a pinch of snuff between his fingers when he recounted an anecdote, and invariably drop it at the point of the story.

How Shark Are Killed.

The engineers in the British Navy have a very effective way of killing sharks. They seal up a dynamite cartridge in an empty can, and put the can inside a large piece of pork. The pork is thrown overboard on a wire which has been connected with an electric battery. When the shark takes the bait, the engineer presses a button, which explodes the cartridge and kills the fish.

Old Age Annuity.

Anyone in Denmark who pays the state six pounds and ten shillings when he is twenty-one is entitled to an annuity of thirteen pounds when he becomes sixty-five. But if he dies before that time the state gets all the money.
