WASHINGTON LETTER
(Special to The Journal)

An Old Policy in a New Garb.

Last winter the Indian Rights Association, the Protestant Indian missionaries, and "other well-known men," through their factotum in Congress, Mr. Stephens of Texas, presented to the House of Representatives a number of characteristic petitions. These petitions charged that the Catholic missionaries had obtained signatures from the Indians by misrepresentation and fraud, when it is well known that all the fraud has been practised by them. They furthermore stated that the granting of the tribal funds would engender strife and strife in the Indian country but failed to state that all the strife and struggle among the Indians for the last three hundred years has been engendered by them. One of their editors, when shown that his statements against our mission schools were false, left the corrected copy that was sent to him unchanged, and published all the falsehoods in full, with the full knowledge before him that they were falsehoods. In the third paragraph of their petition to Congress they proclaim themselves the representatives of the spirit of our institutions, and of "the mind of the American people." Just think of it! The monumental enormity of this statement is only equalled by its utter falsehood. The idea that this handful of fanatics represent the mind of the American people must appear absurd to anyone short of an idiot.

And now they are bringing a suit against the Government to prevent the payment of certain tribal funds to the Catholic Indian mission schools. A few Sioux, who have not the slightest idea what it is all about have been induced to bring this suit, and Mr. Brosius, their solicitor, is getting busy—for a consideration.

But all this agitation is fully in harmony with the history of Protestant colonization of North America. The trouble began soon after the advent of the Puritans, and from then until the present day followed a succession of treaty-makings and treaty-breakings, of peace-makings and peace-breakings. Massacres of whole settlements were followed by smoking the pipe of peace. This carnival of rapacity and blood, lasting for over three centuries, was brought to a climax some years ago by the massacre of Custer's brave band.

What a different picture is presented in the history of the French and Spanish colonization. There were wars of conquest in the beginning, but these over, these people lived in harmony with each other. And to-day there is no distinction made in the population of the French and Spanish settlements.

But all this present trouble is largely due to the unaccountable silence of our Catholic people. Every time they have shown a disposition to take a hand in this fight, the fanatics held up their hands in holy horror and screamed "no religion in politics," and Catholics withdrew in affright from the field. Then the fanatics laughed quietly to themselves, and proceeded with the old political game of bull-dozing Congress into more anti-Catholic legislation. But Congress is "getting on" to these fellows, and with increased enlightenment is showing a disposition to do the right thing, and to this consummation I have labored diligently to contribute my humble share.
