The final for the Kildare championships, lately played at Naas between Clane and Maynooth. was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, which shows that the sport loving people of Kildare are at last er, words and music that will long ring taking an interest in the ancient games of Banba. The arrangements for the county fels which will be held in Kildare on June 29 and July 1 are being pushed forward. The committee decided to ask Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic league, to open the feis. The industrial section, which will be much larger and more representative than on former occasions, will be one of the most interesting features of the feis. The syllabus containing eighteen competitions in sewing, knitting, darning, patchwork, Mountmellick work crochet baking, etc. has been issued. On learning that Father Staples had been again appointed prior of the Car melite community at Kildare, his friends in Kildare proceeded to the White Abbey monastery to greet him on his arrival from Dublin. John T. Heffernam, secretary county council, and the Rev. Father Campion, expressed satisfaction at the reappointment of Father Staples. Father Staples said that the visit of so many friends came to him as a pleasant surprise. He hoped, with God's help, to do as much as he could to complete anything wanting in connection with the church. He was gratified to see his old friend Father Campion present to welcome him back. We consider it the duty of district councils to work the present laborers' act for all it is worth by passing representations and expediting the building of cottages."

Craobh Rory O'More, Portarlington had its first "American wake," writes a member of the branch, on May 15, when it kept vigil with its esteemed bonorable secretary, J. McManus, who left for New York. After the language lessons at the league hall the floor was cleared for the popular reel, "The Waves of Tory," and two lines of dancers faced the music. Among them were friends O'Brennan, McGinley, McManus, Roche, Byrne, Malone, Wright, Kelly and others. Our excellent honorable treasurer, Mr. Wynne, supplied the ceoil. Then the vice president, J. Dunne, Mountmellick, gave song after song, words and music as Irish as the honest brogue of the singin our "emigrant's" ears. Then came Miss Cummins and Miss O'Comor. Mesars, Roche, Wright, Wynne, Maione, McGinley and others. Then the president, yielding his customary post of honor, the departing secretary led off the national anthem, "A Nation Once Again." This finish was a mighty one with the Craobh, but on this occasion hands grasped tighter, heads were thrown back, and Davis' grand ode rang out as it might from a meeting of the men of '48. The branch was losing its "best man." but was facing its loss with a brave heart and an Irish defiance. Bravest of all seemed the pleasant young secretary, yet midst the joyous bustle of the dance he found ; time to whisper to his nearest neighbor how hard the poor old couple of Tullamore felt the parting the previous night "Erin, the smile and the tear in thine

The golden jubiles of the Very Rev. Canon Flatley, Aughagower, was celebrated in that historic village on May 16 with manifestations of rejoicing not only by the people from the reverend pastor's own parish, but by many from the surrounding districts, who availed themselves of the occasion to show their esteem for a saintly priest. From early morning the people focked into the village, and all were warm in their congratulations to the worthy canon on the event. High mass was announced to commence at 11, but long before that hour the church was ed. The altar and its surroundings were tastefully decorated. The parish choir, under the direction of Miss Grealby, N. T., was supplemented by a number of young ladies from Westport convent. High mass of thanksgiving commenced at 11 o'clock, the very reverend canon whose golden jubilee was being celebrated officiating as high priest. The Rev. James Burke officiated as deacon, Rev. W. Heaney as subdeacon and Rev. M. McDonald, administrator, as master of ceremonies. The priests of the deanery of Westport presented to Rev. Canon Flatley a chalice made of gold and an address. The inscription on the sacred vessel is in the Irish language and Irish characters. ROSCOMMON. - Thomas Hannelly, Clooncunry, Castlerea, died on May 10. aged sixty seven years. On May 10 the young men of the Kilmore Temperance society had a very enjoyable trip to Longford. The club, consisting of over 200 members, assembled at the Catholic institute, Kilmore, at 10:30 a. m., where tickets were distributed and badges given out. The procession was formed, headed by the band, and a march to Drumsna station was started. The day was splendid. At Drumsna the club boarded the special train and were off for Longford. Every one enjoyed the fine ride and were equally satisfied with the benutiful aspect which was presented to view. On arrival at Ecogford the members marched through Main street. The horse races were being held that day, so all proceeded to the scene of the contest and enjoyed the races. When the sport was over all returned Higgins; Corinagh, M. Hurson; Clon- J. The Rev. Father Hackett, C. 88. R. appointed spiritual director of the Arch-Confraternity of the Holy Family, Limerick city, in succession to Rev. Father Creagh, addressed the members of the St. John's and St. Michael's divisions on the evenings of May 14 and 15. The new director received the salute. His first sermon was followed with close attention. He paid a high tribute to the ability and devotion of his predecessor, Father ('reagh, and referred to the many good things he had done while in Limerick. He appealed to the men for assistance in helping the progress of the boys' confraternity, as the latter had before them an unknown future, and the present was the time in which their minds and hearts should be directed to the service of God.
