AT THE CLUBHOUSE IN CEYLON.

The little clubhouse of the Lantana district of Ceylon presented an and all the Tamil coolies on the surrounding tea estates were busily engaged in celebrating their great festival, as was evidenced by the inces- a little shyly. sant tom-toming which arose from their lines of huts, and the thriving trade which the keeper of the arrack tavern was doing.

Their English masters, with their wives and sisters and cousins, were gathered at the district clubhouse for the little gymkhana meet which is inevitable on such occasions.

Lantana is one of the scattered districts of Ceylon, and the residents, who only see each other at rare intervals, welcome such opportunities with unfeigned delight. Some of them lived twenty miles from the club, but distance did not deter them, and all the morning they had been pouring in, some on horseback, some in little trotting bullocks hackeries and others in 'rickshaws drawn by coolies who looked forward to a "santosum" for working on their holiday.

The club secretary was a harassed man that morning, for there were a thousand and one little details to be arranged.

As he hurried past the tennis court he caught sight of a girl who had just ridden up, and was standing by her horse's head waiting for her horsekeeper. "Good morning, Miss Moore," he said, as he approached. "Come and let me introduce you to your partner in the ten-"Miss Moore---nis tournament. Major Bradshaw.'

The girl stared aghast for a moment, but quickly recovered herself, though the warm flush which rose to her cheek betrayed her attitude of sangfroid. "Oh, you have met before," said the secretary, catching "So much the better, I her look. must be off. Hope the weather will keep up."

He hurried off and left the two together. When two young people have been engaged and have decided to break it off, subsequent meetings are apt to prove a little awkward. even after the lapse of such a long period of time as five years.

A faint reddening under the deep tan of his skin showed that Bradshaw also found the situation a little trying, but he smiled frankly as vancement in his profession, a brevet majority and the D. S. O., had evidently taught him that the world could not be molded to his wish. It was with a feeling or regretful surprise that she realized the happy day was over, and it was time to go home again. As she emerged from the clubhouse in boots and habit once more she found him waiting, and advanced to bid him good-by.

"I am coming with you," he said animated scene. It was "Teevali," smiling. "Mrs. Deare has had to go on, and she asked me to see you safely home, as it is on my way." "It is very kind of you," she said

> 'No, not that," he said, as he lif ed her to the saddle.

Slowly they mounted higher and higher by the narrow zigzag path leading to the gap whence they would descend to the bungalow on the other side of the hills. The sun had dipped out of sight over the misty hills across the valley, and the way. great clouds came scurrying out of the wind. The darkness came swiftly over them as they climbed the hillside, and the valley, far below, courts, was swept out of sight by the driving mist.

"I am afraid we are going to have storm," said Bradshaw at last. 'Jones promised to have a coolie with a lantern at the gap to light us down the other side. It's ticklish cysters to suit, his individual palate. work oriding down the side of a mountain in the dark by these estate tracks | hope you are not nersweet cider, doughnuts and apples. vous. Miss Moore?"

"Not in the least," she said. have done this lots of times before. and I shan't mind getting wet. Here it comes," she continued, as the first heavy drops of the storm splashed down on them.

was hidden by the darkness.

the distance showed that the prom- pour over buttered toast. ised coolie was at his post with the lantern, and in obedience to a shouted command from Bradshaw the girl gave her horse his head, and let him pick his own way after the other. Gradually the noise increased, and the pelting sheets of rain became proved unable to withstand their onslaught, and went out suddenly. the coolie, but the man, with the under the broiler to catch the drip. stupidity of his race, jumped to the Serve on buttered toast with slices of and and if they prosper they soon. conclusion that punishment for the lemon.

mishap was about to be visited on him, and bolted. Bradshaw's shouts produced no answer, and they were

HOW TO PREPARE OVSTERS.

Tempting Ways of Cooking the Inscious Bivalye, -----

Panned Oysters,

Into a covered saucepan put a tablespoonful of butter with a teaspoonful sait and paprika dr white pepper to taste. When hot add one pint oysters, cover and shake the pan for three or four minutes until the cysters are plump. Serve ca toasted crackers or bread.

Oysters Roasted in the Shell,

Wash the shells clean and wipe dry. Lay in a baking pan and set in a hot oven for about twenty minutes or until the shells open. Take out and serve in the shells on hot dishes with lemons or pepper sauce and thin slices of brown bread. Though this is not an elegant dish. it conserves the flavor and juices of the oyster more than almost any other

A Ritchen Oyster Roast.

On a wet fall evening let the young people try an oyster roast in with the little clubhouse and tennis the kitchen. Wash the oyster shells and throw them by the dozen into the fire. As they open remove with the tongs to a large pan. Have ready on the kitchen table plenty of butter, catsup, horseradish or pepper sauce and let each one season his Don't stint the oysters nor yet the bread and butter. Finish this homely but most delectable feast with

Celeried Oysters on Toast,

Cook one cupful fine cut celery in boiling salted water until tender, then drain. Place a half pint of oysters in their own liquor in a sauce-The rain came down in sheets and pan over the fire and cook until drove against them as the horses plumped, season with a salt spoonscrambled slowly up the slope. As ful salt and a little less pepper. Mix they neared the top they plunged a teaspoonful flour with a tableinto the forest of trees, and the path spoonful butter, stir into the oysters and add a quarter cup rich milk. At last a faint glimmer of light in Add the celery to the oysters, then Broiled Oysters.

For this use the largest oysters. Scald in their own liquor until plumped, drain, then dip in melted butter or clive oil until well coated, then in sensoned flour or fine crackheavier till the flickering light er crumbs. Lay on a buttered broller and broil two minutes on each side either over a clear coal fire or under Bradshaw shouted something to a gas flame. If the latter lay toast

Boy's Blouse Suit.

A MODERN DOUGH CUTTER. Cuts Out Numbers of Figures of Various Shapes Without Waste.

To design a cake cutter which will cut out cakes without wasting considerable dough would seem almost impossible. A New Jersey man seems to have accomplished this successfully in a very simple manner. The illustration shows this cake cutter, which will simultaneously cut out numerous figures of various shapes from a sheet of dough in such manner as to leave no intervening or waste portions, thus reducing wast age to a minimum. On a large roller he secures a series of blades, which are shaped to form the figures desired. The designs are arranged on the roller so that after running the of wall paper. The adjacent edges of the figures meet, leaving no waste dough between them. The necessity of removing intervening portions is avoided, the amount of dough not cut into cakes being reduced to a minimum.

Novel Cake Cutter,

Women as Builders, The number of women who practice the profession of architecture is very much greater than the number of women architects, anomalous as 19 West Main Street. this may seem, says the New York

Most of the women who make a business of building houses have men in their, offices to do the architural part of the work for them. Usually they begin as decorators, find that orders to build houses also come to them.

Sun.

Usually they have previously The blouse suit is so essentially staff, for simple afforts at decoration added an architect to their office lett on the side of the hill in the mid-dle of the first burst of the north- tirely satisfactory that every fresh he raised his hat. "How do you do?" he said. "I didn't know you were in Ceylon." The girl laughed.

"And I was equally ignorant with regard to you," she said. "I am staying with my cousin, Mrs. Deare."

"I am staying with Jones on Parmetia," said Bradshaw, "only a couple of miles from Gangoya. Funny I hadn't heard you were here. Every one knows all about every one else here, but I only arrived two days ago, so perhaps that explains it "

The girl felt that the situation was decidedly awkward Five years ago, in Southsea, she had met young Bradshaw, then a subaltern, and after a short acquaintance they had become engaged. She was in her first season, and at eighteen life is not a serious problem. He was arbitrary and self-confident, and resented what he was pleased to call her flirtations with other men, so the guarrel came and the engagement was broken off. It was a little embarrassing to meet again suddenly like this, but she must make the best of it.

"I hope the rain will keep off." she said, taking refuge in that excellent subject, the weather.

"Yes," he replied, "we shan't get much tennis if it rains. I am afraid you have been unlucky in the draw, for my tennis has not improved."

She stole a glance at him, and found his gaze fixed steadily on her. 'Your regiment is stationed in India, isn't it?" The asked. "Yes," he said. "I am here on three months' sick leave. Had a slight go of enteric, and the doctors thought it wasn't bad enough to send me home, so I came here to pick up after it."

"I see they are starting play," she said, "I must get ready, else we shall get into trouble."

She tripped to the clubhouse, and soon reappeared in a short white skirt and tennis shoes.

Major Bradshaw had evidently not overstated the case when he helittled his powers as a tennis player, for he and his partner succumbed ignominiously to couple after couple in the tournament.

Miss Moore did not seem to take her want of success or the shortcomings of her partner very much to heart. On the contrary, after the first feeling of awkwardness had worn off, she appeared to be enjoying herself immensely, while Bradshaw, on his part, threw off the slightly nonchalant manner which he had at first assumed and became guite vivacious.

Perhaps it was not quite by coincidence that they sat next each other at the substantial midday breakfast.

He had improved, she thought. Hard lines had taken away the full freshness of boyhood from his face, and his hair was a little scanty over the temples, but the expression had changed for the better. The old firmness of will was still strongly marked, but he was quieter and less was not a little surprised at the caim only used in cases of illness, as ita insistent.

The years which brought him ad-front of them. 'We must go on as best we can.'

shouted Bradshaw. Leave everything to the horses. We are safer on than off them."

The horses seemed to understand. and picked their way slowly down the precipitous slope. All went well for a time, and Bradshaw was beginning to congratulate himself that the worst was over, when they came to a drain crossing the path. It had been a trickle of water in the morning, but the roar of the torrent rushing over it warned him that it was probably impassable. After a moment's hesitation he resolved to leave it to his horse and trust to its instinct if it refused.

"I'll go through first," he shouted. 'I'll call to you if it's all right." The horse faced it without balking, and with a splash and a clatter of hoofs on stones he was through, greatly relieved to find that it was much less formidable than had appeared from the noise. The girl's horse, resenting the feel on its mouth which prevented its following, grew restive, fidgeted and slipped a foot over the side of the narrow path. Bradshaw pulled up on the other side and heard the clatter. There was a scream, followed by the noise of a heavy body falling down treatment, yet includes all the essenthe slope, and the squeal of a frightened horse. He sprang from his tial characteristics, and is suited to horse, left it to its own devices and a variety of materials.

waded into the water, shouting as he went. made with fronts and back and is "Miss Moore, where are you?" he cailed, his voice trembling with emotion. A cry came from below him, "Grace, are you hurt?" he said. "Call to me again and j will find my full, tucked at their lower edges to way to you."

"I'm all right, I think," said a voice intremulous accents. "I am trying to climb up, but I don't know where my poor horse is."

Bradshaw, his feelings suddenly leased from the strain, was guilty of a remark in reference to the unfortunate horse which scarcely conveyed sympathy. Following the sound of his voice, the girl climbed slowly to the path and waded into the stream. Midway across her outstretched hands touched him, and ammonia or other stimulants to a the next moment she was held close fainting person, use precautions in a strong embrace. quids to drop in the eyes or to be

"I love you," he said simply. "I have always loved you."

They stood knoe deep in the water, and the darkness hid their faces from each other. She did not speak, but gently pressed his arm and and sighed softly. She was his once more, and all else was as nothing to hold it while counting thirty-fiveher. "I shall never let you go again," and repeat until the paroxysms are he said. relieved. "I do not want to go again-ever," she said. A few minutes later a very wet from 85 to 90 degrees; a warm bath, but ridiculously happy couple from 92 to 98 degrees, and a hot reached Gangoya bungalow. Harry bath from 98 to 110 degees. The lat-Dears met them in the veranda, and ter, for young children especially, is indifference with which they treated effect is enervating if of frequent cothe probable fate of their horses.

east monsoon, unable to see a foot in variation is hailed with a hearty welcome. This one is quite novel in beneath which it is buttoned to the shield. The sleeves are comfortably give a box plaited effect. There is a belt that confines the blouse at the waist line, and the knickerbockers are of the regulation sort drawn up at the knees by means of elastic in-

GUIDES TO HEAL/TH.

A little turpentine added to the bath water is said to be good for

In administering smelling saits,

Hiccoughs may sometimes be cured by compressing the ribs firmly with both hands. It is also efficaclous to draw a deep breath and fifty, if possible. Then exhale slowly

A cold bath registers from 40 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. A tepid bath

serted in the hems.

rheumatism.

mouth.

currence.

architect builds the houses when the orders begin to come in.

There are many women decorators now prosperous enough to have architects in their employ. One of these now occupies a four story building in a side street off Fifth Avenue merely for her own business. She began in one room downtown only a few years ago.

Elsie de Wolfe has met with great success since she went in for house decoration and she has found many clients among her wealthy friends. She will probably be the next person in her line of business to undertake the building of houses.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Milk used instead of water makes puddings and pastry light.

Salt sprinkled on any substance that is burning on a stove will stop the smoke and smell.

Woolen clothes should be washed in very hot suds and not rinsed. Lukewarm water shrinks them.

When machining hard materials uch as serge or holland, oll the thread. This will prevent it constantly enapping.

Old incandescent gas mantels make a splendid polish for silver-ware. Crush a little on a soft duster and rub on the sliver. When baking cakes place a layer of salt under the mold. This pre-The suit consists of the blouse and the knickerbockers. The blouse is vents burning.

Always heat new iron, such as finished with the big sailor collar, ranges, very gradually at first, as this will prevent cracking. If potatoes are soaked in cold water two or three hours after peeling they will be whiter when cooked. Lomon coffee is delicious. Rub each side of a lump of sugar on the rind of a lemon and pour the coffee in the ordinary way.

Stains in table linen are easily removed by plunging the articles in pure boiling water. The addition of soap or soda would have the effect of fixing the stain.

Idle American Women.

Idleness of the rich American women, so the late Mrs. Craigle deagainst allowing any of the strong li- clared just before her death, is the chief cause of the trouble with serheld too close to the nostrils' or vants in America. They would have far more respect for their mistreases, she thought, if the latter were really interested in work of some kind, even though it be charity,- In England, Mrs. Craigle said, every woman, titled or not, works. It may be slum work, it may be politics, or it may be institutional interests of some sort, but work she does, In this country many women give themselves up to a life of luxury and idleness and instead of making something, of their lives set up a. standard of false and shallow living. the folly of which is soon detected by the employees of the household. The result is an undercurrent of opposition to catering to the demanda of those in commend.

Men's, Women's and Children's Summer West . Cheapest Cash prions Boys and Girls Capac Bell Phone 1748-L Main

MARKEN MER TELLER WILL

Triple silver plated sharp. Always ready simply in ther sand Each set contains 12 Mont adges. Each blade is tempered so hard by our secret process is will An average of 20 to 40 velvet shaves, Auk your dealer to show it to you and explain the one

GILLETTE SALES COMPANY.

TIMES BUILDING, TIMES BOUANE. B. CORSER

> hat tortuine presumer OR INCICACI CARA Labenciron W-E-St Form and W. B

They all without Call and the ane prices to it-all particular well as all parties. W. B. N form Corsets answer Lashies command that spures be morel -burty higher and we rounded linto measured

Chule a all dealers Pres Part / D C Erect Form 952 g v m r hi Nerone 407 ETERATION PART

