Honor for Miss Conway.
Katherine Eleanor Conway, who was born in this city, has been given the Laetare medal by Notre Dame University, which is annually awarded to some eminent member of the Catholic laity, and which has been conferred upon Secretary Bonaparte and W. Bourke Cockran. Miss Conway is a well known writer and authority on questions of pedagogy. She has been connected with the Boston Pilot for 23 years, and editor in chief since James J. Roche was appointed United States Consul to Genoa in 1906. She has published twelve books including two novels and two volumes of poems.

COOK OPERA HOUSE.
Something entirely new in the way of a vaudeville offering, is to be the main attraction at the Cook Opera House next week. This will be a concentrated racing drama, entitled "The Futurity Winner". It is the work of Edmund Day, and is promoted by Ned Wayburn. It is said to be a fast-moving little melodrama with every superfluous action and line cut out. The first tragedy ever presented on the vaudeville stage will be given by Mr. Edward Davis and Co. Avery and Hart, the original "fashion-plate colored entertainers," will have their attractive offering. Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson will appear in a character comedy sketch entitled, "Ella's All Right." The Onlaw Trio are on the books to present an acrobatic turn. Al. Carleton will have his odd monologue. Dorsch and Russell "musical railroaders" will present a musical turn in which instruments are concealed in semaphores, lanterns and other railroad trappings. The kine-tograph will show new pictures.

Baker Theatre.
Beginning Monday afternoon, another Owen Davis melodrama, "The Gambler's Daughter" will run a week at Baker Theatre. This drama is considered Mr. Davis' best play. The new bill will serve to introduce three new members to the Baker clientele—Donald Meek, Alexander Carney and Joseph Gillow. Between acts DeVeaux and DeVeaux, vaudevillers, specialties, moving pictures and illustrated songs will be introduced. The continuous performance plan of the management has met with enthusiastic approval.

(THE EXILES' SONG)
A St. Patrick's Day Poem in St. Patrick's Own Language.

A' reir nuair a chuaidh me dhom' ucaipa.
Last night when I sought for repose.
Cha raibh go fois no go suain.
It was not to rest or to sleep.
Oir bhí mo chroidh Fa bhuaireas.
For my heart was troubled and sore.
Oir, fa Eire a bhfad thar a chuain.
Far from Eris over the deep.

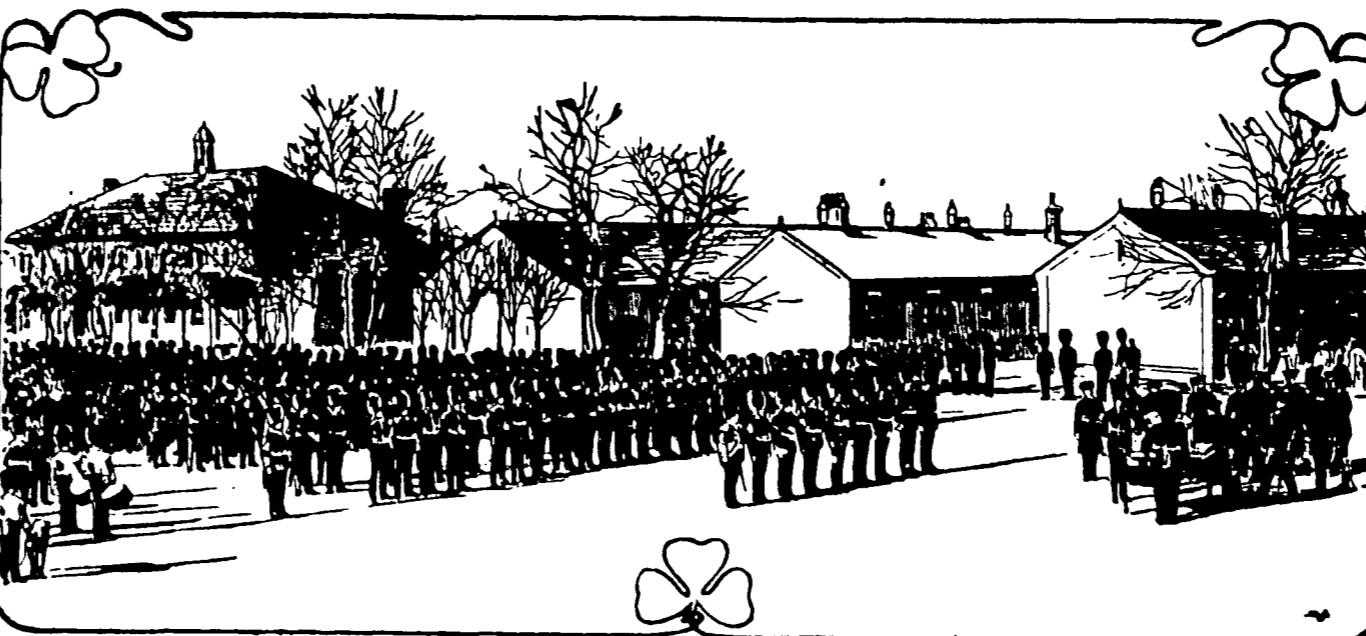

Acht sgith le m' onaidh 's d'ian duarach
But weary with fighting and longing
A bheith mar a bhfuair me mo breidh.
To be at my home once again.
Thuit sgaile na h'ocht' ar mo shuilibh.
The shadow of night 's o'er me
Agus bhruadar me bheith aig an tigh.
And I dream I was over the main.

'S ebonaic me m'athair 's mo mathair.
I saw my father and mother.
Dhearbhrathracha 's companaidhe moige.
My brothers and friends of my youth.
'S cailin bhoidheach na n-dorcha.
And an exile maid so fair.
Da dtug me mar b'abhaist mo phog.
Who gave me fresh pledge of her truth.

Chonnaic me a' ceo ar bharr amonaidh.
I saw the mist on the mountain.
A' traoch faoi mo chosadh 's bhliath.
The heath in full bloom 's of yore.
'S smeoradh 's a' phreas b'inn a' f'airgeart.
Heard the thrush reply in the woodland.
An guineach tursach 'a' n' traigh.
To the curlew's notes from the shore.

Acht dhuig me le lanacht mo chroidh.
But joy awoke me from slumber
Bhris doibhneas do labhairt mo shuain.
Bliss chased my bright visions from me
Agus ta me lathast ar lonndragh.
And an exile alas! I am still.
O'm dhuthaigh fa a bhfad thar a chuain.
For my home is far over the sea.

FRENCH SAVINGS BANK.
How the Poorer Classes Are Able to Lend Money.

France in her system of finance and in her whole scheme of economy aids and encourages saving among the people.
The Government conducts a vast banking institution whereby every post office has its saving bank department—its caisse d'epargne. Here, says Harper's Bazar, any one may make a deposit as low as one franc (20 cents), which deposit is recorded in one's livret de la caisse d'epargne (savings bank book). A convenient feature of this system tending to make saving easy is that one make his deposits in any post office anywhere in France, and may withdraw any part or all his savings at any post office, without regard to where the deposits have been made.

I have never had a servant in France who had not her livret de la caisse d'epargne, and yet, the girl or woman, if she had no family of her own to support, almost invariably contributed to the support of her father's family. I have had one middle-aged femme de chambre on whose face each day I could read pretty well how the Bourse was going.

Pays to the Head of State.
In the Figaro a statistician undertakes to answer the question as to how much a citizen has to pay for the head of his State. The Frenchman pays for his President annually the low sum of 9 centimes (not quite 2 cents). Considerably higher the amount which every German has to pay for his Emperor, namely, 34 centimes annually. In Russia each subject's annual contribution is 35, in Italy 44 and in Austria-Hungary 45 centimes. The dearest rulers are, however, those of Greece and Belgium, for every Belgian or Greek contributes 50 centimes annually to the maintenance of the royal house in his country.

Deadly Salt.
Winter snowstorms are likely to at least settle one vexed question, says The London Globe. So far as Paris, is concerned, it will probably be decided once for all whether sowing the streets with salt is a permissible method of getting rid of snow. The authorities of the hospital are unanimous that it is instrumental in causing hundreds of deaths from pneumonia and other causes, and in planting the seeds of disease in hundreds of other people, while the veterinarian surgeons say that thousands of horses have been ruined by being kept for days in slush 18 centigrade below zero.

An Explosive Bean.
A peculiar vegetable product of Java is a bean-like pod containing the seeds of the plant on which it grows. The seeds are disturbed by the violent explosion of the pod when ripe. Dried pods, brought to the United States recently, exploded with a loud noise when thrown upon water. The cause of the explosion appears to be that as the pod ripens a strong internal pressure is brought to bear on the shell, though if plucked before they are quite mature the pods withstand the pressure until a sudden wetting weakens the tissues along the groove, joining the two halves of the shell.

Exporting Canaries.
Germany carries on a large trade in the export of canaries. Every year she sends no fewer than 130,000 of these birds to America, 3,000 to England and about 2,000 to Russia. The great nursery for the breeding of canaries is the Hartz mountains. Many of the peasants are engaged in the work of rearing the birds and receive wages of from $50 to $125 a year for their trouble—an important addition to their earnings. Many canaries come also from the Black Forest, but they do not fetch such high prices as the Hartz birds, not being considered such good songsters.

PEACOCKS AS FOOD.
A Choice Rarity and Honored Before Turkeys Came Out of the West.

The peacock cannot well be recommended as a market bird—it is too tender in early youth, too slow in reaching maturity. But as a choice rarity, the crown and cap sheaf of a country gentleman's feast, it is unapproached and unapproachable. This was well understood throughout the age of chivalry—hence the knightly oath: "By the peacock, the heronshaw, and the ladies!" Whoever swore thus was trebly bound to keep his vow.

Turkeys had not yet come out of the Western world to conquer a place among the noble birds which alone were held worthy of being served to royalty. The swan and the peacock were the chiefest of them, and bore rule even beyond the days of Queen Elizabeth. At the Christmashing the peacock came in its state, the same as the bear's head and the brawn.

Trees Submerged a Century.
Workmen who were deepening the River Main, near Karlsruhe, recently discovered the trunks of six great oak trees buried in the bed of the stream. The wood is very hard and has turned the color of ebony. It proved to be a valuable discovery, as the wood can be employed for inlaying purposes. German authorities say that the trees have probably lain submerged between 1,000 and 1,500 years.

Recover Buried Relics.
Jerusalem papers report that on the opening of the graves at Pergamos a number of rare relics were brought to light. In one grave lay a golden rosary. In two other tombs two wreaths were found, representing artistically made gold imitations of oak leaves. A wolf's head of gold was discovered, as well as variousarming utensils, swords and other weapons. The antiquities were sent to the Museum of Constantinople.

The Chapel in the Glen Copyrighted by William Powers.
'Tis often in the evenings,
When a hard day's work is done,
I love to sit and ponder,
And my thoughts do eastward run;
Across the sea, to Erin's Isle,
Loved scenes to view again,
But first of all and dearest,
To the Chapel in the Glen.

No lofty spire or chime of bells,
High towering o'er its walls,
No organ grand or costly art;
To duty sweetly calls;
When gathered there on Sunday morn,
Plain pious dames and men,
To pray before God's altar,
In the Chapel in the Glen.

Twas there my boyhood days were spent
Dull care were then unknown,
Before I crossed Atlantic's wave,
To find Columbia's home;
There still, my kinfolk are at rest,
As peacefully as when
I said goodbye at mother's grave,
To the Chapel in the Glen.

AUBURN, N. Y.

The funeral of Mrs. Augustus Vatter Keeling, wife of Frank Keeling, who died in Cleveland, Ohio, was held in the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Vatter, on Monday morning at 8:45 o'clock with services at St. Alphonsus church, at 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. Keeling was a popular young woman and will be greatly missed by her friends and associates both in this city and Cleveland. The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the deceased. The services at the church were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Herbert Regenbogen. The burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The funeral of James Hart was held from the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Nilan, on Monday morning with services at the Holy Family church. The funeral was attended by many friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful.

A retreat for the congregation of St. Mary's church will open on March 24 and end Easter Sunday. This retreat is given annually at this church and in past years has been attended by large congregations. This year the same success is looked for.

Great interest is being manifested in the coming lecture by Rev. Thomas F. Burke, C. S. P. The Catholic clubs and societies of the city have taken the matter up with great energy and are working in connection with the committee having the lecture in charge. A concert program has been arranged which will consist of vocal selections by prominent Catholics of the city. It is requested that all persons having tickets to sell will push the sale of them. It is hoped that every Catholic family in the city will be represented in the large audience that is sure to greet the popular lecturer on Sunday night April 7 at the Burris Opera House.

Auburn Council, Knights of Columbus are planning for a second degree for next Thursday night, which will be given by the officers of Auburn council.

Display of Cunning.
A well known city officer in Auld Reekie was celebrated for his cunning and wit. His mother having died in Edinburgh, he hired a hearse and carried her to the family burying place in the Highlands. He returned with the hearse full of smuggled whisky, and being teased about it by a friend, he said: "Oh, man, there is no harm done! I only took away the body and brought back the spirit!"

Green Gutta-Percha.
Green gutta-percha is now obtained from the leaves of the cecropia tree, and is said to be more durable than that procured by cutting into the stem of the tree. Unlike the ordinary product, it does not require an expensive process of purification, so that its cost is cheapened. In France green gutta-percha is now being employed in the construction of submarine cables.

Longevity of the Horse.
The statement has been made that horses average from twenty to thirty years of life and dogs from twelve to fourteen years. A French encyclopedist credits the horse with thirty to forty years, the dog with twenty to twenty-four. There is a sufficient range of uncertainty in these figures to cause doubt whether detailed study has been made of the subject.

Due to Automobiles.
Diseases among children—notably sore throat and bad eyes—caused through dust raised by motor cars, are most rife where the schools are situated on roads frequented by motor cars, or where the children traverse these roads. In one school the teacher points out that they have ten cases of sore throat where five years ago they had one.

Travelling in Morocco.
In proof of the assertion made by the German authorities that all its well in Morocco an officer of the recent German expedition to Fez tells how in the heart of Morocco he had met an English woman touring alone. She is reported to have travelled all the way across Morocco on horseback with no other escort than a few servants.
