

IMPROVE THE EYES

WHEN SETTING THE THING THAT IMPARTS BEAUTY.

A Matter of the Proper Arrangement of the Hair and the Selection of Just the Right Colors in One's Dress and Hat.

It is said that the eyes of the Empress Josephine were really violet, though in certain lights they could look much darker in tone. They were particularly well suited with jewels of turquoise and sapphire and were remarkably fetching when she wore purple near them. She matched the spots in her eyes.

It isn't so much the color of your eyes that counts as the way you use them; it isn't so much their brilliancy as the way you dress the eyes. If you know what to wear and how to wear it your eyes will be pretty.

The woman whose eyes are jet black and whose hair matches them should dress her hair rather round so as to put her face in a frame. This will bring out her eyes and make them shine brighter.

She should polish her hair and let it stand out well at each side of her head, making a full pompadour or setting for the eyes. This always has a good effect upon them.

The woman whose eyes are brown should treat them in a different way. Brown eyes must be made beautiful or they will have a feline look.

The brown eyed woman should wear tan color or some shade of brown, and she should wear it around her neck and under her chin.

The brown eyed woman should dress her hair rather fluffy. She cannot wear it plain. She should bring it down well upon her forehead.

It is the truly blond woman, with deep brown eyes, who has things all her way. Her eyes look nice, no matter how she combs her hair, and if she will go to a little trouble she can be a professional beauty. The blond woman should set her hair high above her forehead, so as to make an aureole for her face. Her eyes will show up exquisitely in this framework of blond complexion and blond hair.

It is the woman with dull or fishy eyes who is at a loss how to proceed, because her eyes lack color. She knows that it is the thing to wear a dress that matches her eyes. Yet how is she going to do it when her eyes and lashes lack color?

Here are some rules for her to follow. They are in the nature of don'ts.

The first one is: Don't make gestures with your eyes. It is the pale eyed girl who loves to cast her eyes upward, looking at nothing at all. It is the girl with the pale blue eyes who rolls her eyes, strikes attitudes and does stunts with the eyes that were never meant for her to do at all. The black eyed beauty may attempt them, but never the pale eyed girl.

The pale eyed girl should paint her eyebrows every night with a good eyebrow grower. Maybe she will take a little almond oil and some vaseline and mix them half and half. This makes a good grower.

Don't if your eyes are not beyond criticism, venture to wear diamonds next to the face. Pearls are softer and vastly more becoming. Bernhardt, with all her jewels, never wears diamonds or any other sparkling jewel next to her face.

"What, dim the lustre of my eyes," she says, "and make them look dull by comparison with the diamonds?"

Bernhardt, whose eyes shade from blue to green and back to gray—she herself says they are hazel—is careful to wear blue next to her face. Her turquoise necklace is the wonder of the stage. Sometimes she wears a dull green necklace of olivines and emeralds, but never the sparkling stones. Purple amethysts suit her.

Women who are blond and long to be darker can really grow deeper in hue by the wearing of a well selected color combination. Many English women who formerly gloried in their blondness are now putting on the deep tones of blue and green and brown in order to make themselves look like brunettes in the shadows.

The pale eyed girl and the deep eyed one, too, must be careful of her eyes. The eyes have a tendency to come closer together, and this makes a double wrinkle in the forehead.

The woman who looks intently at things will soon develop a wrinkle between her eyes. It is easily done but very hard to drive away. Don't look intently if you don't want to have this wrinkle.

The girl who wants to keep her eyes nice will massage around them now and then with the finger tips. It keeps away the wrinkles, and wrinkles should not be allowed to come around the eyes, no matter whether they be naturally pretty eyes or not.

Woman's Creed.

It is the creed of the up-to-date woman never to give herself away. A cup of coffee may be spilled over her delicate silk gown—she simply folds the breadths together and goes on with her flow of feminine talk. "What a terrible mistake," she says, "to give away some of my wardrobe." All is not with the same absence of sensibility of sensibility.

LATEST AID TO COMFORT.

By Means of Pushbutton Chair is Changed into Various Positions.

The newest ease-producer is a chair which tilts backward or forward as much or little as desired.

NO EXERTION TO OPERATE, without getting up to adjust the parts. There is no rod, but instead a series of stops controlled by a pushbutton. You simply touch the button and the weight of the body carries the back to any angle wanted; sit up straight and touch the button again, and the chair straightens up at the same instant.

HOME COOKING.

Mock Oysters.

One-half cup corn, one-half cup milk. Salt and pepper to suit taste. One cupful flour, one teaspoonful baking powder. Drop with a teaspoon in small dabs in hot grease and fry brown.

Cheese Straws

Mix together 1 cup of flour, 1 cup cheese (grated), 1 level teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon baking powder and a dash of cayenne. Add slowly enough cold water to make a stiff dough, roll very thin, cut into strips and bake in a moderate oven.

Mock Sausage.

Two cups of finely chopped ham or cooked meat of any kind. If all lean add some fried bacon, ¼ cup mashed potato, 1 egg, pepper and sage to taste. Make into balls with the hands and fry a dark brown.

The Welcome Guest.

Taxes neither the nerves, pocket book nor resources of her hostess. She is punctual—to the very minute.

She puts herself thoroughly in touch with the habits of the household.

She isn't too informal. She doesn't keep herself in evidence all of the time, but remembers to give her hostess an opportunity to attend to her household duties.

She has some consideration for the servants.

She doesn't announce on her arrival that she isn't going to be "one bit of trouble" and then proceeds to upset the household machinery through stupidity or thoughtlessness.

She makes so little trouble and adds so much to the comfort and pleasure of every one that her departure is sincerely regretted.

Buying Remnants.

Do not be persuaded into buying a remnant that is too short in length for the contemplated gown, unless you are certain you can combine with it something you have or can buy at a price that will permit the gown to remain a bargain.

It is in the way of lengths and remnants that may be utilized for children's dresses that the greatest opportunities offer, and here even half-yard lengths of plaids and bright colors may be utilized for pippings and bands to brighten a dress of plain color.

Short lengths of lace and embroidery are valuable for yokes and inserts, the fashion of combining two or more kinds of lace in one gown making it possible to employ odd bits.

Economical Dinners.

Sunday—Roast beef, potatoes and greens; dessert, pudding or pie and cheese.

Monday—Hashed beef, potatoes and bread pudding.

Tuesday—Broiled beef, vegetables, apple pudding.

Wednesday—Boiled pork, beans, potatoes, and pie or rice pudding.

Thursday—Roast or broiled fowl, cabbage, potatoes; lemon pie, cheese.

Friday—Fish, potato croquettes, scalloped tomatoes; pudding.

Saturday—A la mode beef, potatoes, vegetables; sweet pudding or mince pie and cheese.

How About Your Skin?

Massage is the best thing for skin that is becoming flabby from loss of flesh. Make a cream of four ounces of mutton tallow, one and one-quarter ounces of glycerine, one-half dram of tincture of benzoin, one-quarter dram of spirits of camphor, one-sixteenth dram of powdered alum, one-half ounce of rose water. Melt the tallow in a basin set into a pan of boiling water. Add glycerine and alum. The isinglass is dissolved in the rose water, warmed, and the other ingredients are added. Remove the basin from water and beat the two mixtures together. Use on the face as a massage cream. It is decidedly astringent.

PRACTICAL WARDROBE HANGER

Practical Wardrobe Hanger Collapses When Not in Use.

Garment holders and similar wardrobe accessories are so numerous that a novelty in this line immediately attracts attention. In the illustration is shown one which, though exceedingly simple, is nevertheless, as near the ideal in wardrobe hangers as seems possible to make one. The hanger is in the form of a lazy tong, on the extreme end of which is an extension carrying a half-dozen hooks. An additional hook is also attached to the bottom of each point of the lazy tong. The hanger is supported by means of a bracket, which can be attached to the inside of a closet or wardrobe, or to a corner of the wall if desired. Being collapsible, the hanger can be shoved within the closet after garments have been hung on the hooks, where it occupies but a small space.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Tomatoes are most hygienic when not cooked.

Too rapid boiling makes most vegetables tough.

All vegetables should be put into boiling water.

Fruit stains upon the hands may be removed by rubbing with the juice of ripe tomatoes.

Bananas should not be put into a refrigerator—in fact, they should never be allowed to get colder than 60 degrees. A chill turns bananas black, prevents them ever ripening properly and renders them unfit for use.

To keep an ice chest in good condition, wash thoroughly once a week with cold or lukewarm water in which washing soda has been dissolved. If by chance anything is spilled in the ice chest it should be wiped off at once. Milk and butter very quickly absorb odor, and if in ice chest with other foods should be kept closely covered.

A Spinster's Consolation.

One spinster has set forth with her pen the following reasons why she rather enjoys spinsterhood. She does not have one man to love and cherish her; but she may have the friendship, the cordial esteem and interest of half a dozen. She does not have one to pay her dressmaker, her hatter, her shoemaker, and the rest; but she may have half a score, for less serviceable uses—half a score who send her books, flowers, tickets, who walk, play golf, drive, skate, talk with her. One man does not come to her for deep understanding of his needs; many may come with their quite serious interests. Her sincere, enjoyable, stimulating, friendly relations with men, as with women, are limited only by her own power of intellectual sympathy—at any rate, in those circles which admit any basis of companionship between men and women beyond the emotional.

Care of Umbrellas.

It is at the joints that umbrellas break first, and it is scarcely surprising, for they are never oiled, and yet are expected to work smoothly and respond to the most sudden act of opening.

Most people after using an umbrella on a wet day, even if they do carefully dry it, regard any further process as needless; but there are other means of lengthening their term of usefulness.

To preserve an umbrella and obtain the best possible use out of it, the joints should be carefully oiled with paraffine or kerosene oil, to clean off any possible rust, just as in the case of a bicycle, and then be touched with lubricating oil to make them work easily. Thus cared for the framework will last in excellent order with ordinary use almost indefinitely.

The Selfish Spotted Woman.

The "spotted woman is never youthful. She is invariably selfish, and selfishness is ever aging. Sometimes it is wondered why so many old persons become disagreeable. Folks forget that it is ill nature that has made them old, writes a beauty expert. They have allowed certain things to dominate them. If you would keep young at heart, and that means young outside in spite of the years, banish petulant moods, combat irritability. Cultivate kindness and the habit of courtesy and thoughtfulness until it becomes a part of your character, for this part will tend to the eternal youthful spirit if the cares and the troubles of life are met in the right way.

PARIS FASHION SCHOOLS.

Three Years Course to Prepare Girls For Work in Great Houses.

With an eye to preserving the supremacy of the city as the fashion center of the world the municipality of Paris has opened in six schools training departments for girls in the manufacture of women's wearing apparel. The courses embrace plain sewing, embroidery, corset making and dressmaking; the teachers are all retired forewomen from the leading establishments of the city, and each branch is under the direction of a commission made up of representatives of the famous houses of the city in its line.

In a seventh school a course has been opened in the preparation of ostrich feathers. The courses are arranged to cover three years.

In the first and second the pupils give only three hours a day to their professional studies, but in the third year they devote seven hours a day to them. Thirteen years is the youngest age at which a girl is allowed to take up the professional course.

The average age of graduates, it is intended will range from 16 to 17 years, so that in spite of their training they will begin their actual employment as apprentices. Diplomas will be given to all who complete the course satisfactorily, and the great houses which assume to dictate the fashions of the world promise preference to graduates in taking on new hands.

Soap on a Hook.

No matter how carefully the soap tray is drained a certain amount of water manages to adhere to the top, which tends to soften the soap and cause wastefulness. This wastefulness is impossible with the device shown in the accompanying illustration—a holder for the cake of soap.

SOAP HANGS ON NAIL.

It is the purpose of the inventor to have each cake of soap contain one of these hangers, the latter being imbedded during the process of manufacture. The hanger is of wire, bent in the form of three loops and a hook, the outer loop entering outside the cake of soap. Obviously, the loop is employed to attach the cake of soap when not in use to a nail or loop.

HOME COOKING.

Moulded Ham and Eggs.

One cup boiled ham chopped fine, mix with ½ cup cream sauce and white of 1 egg beaten frothy; line buttered individual timbale moulds with the mixture, break a raw egg in center of each one and bake 10 minutes in moderate oven.

Nut Sandwiches.

Mix equal parts of grated Swiss cheese and chopped English walnut meat. Season with salt and cayenne. Spread between thin slices of bread, slightly buttered, and cut in fancy shapes.

Meat Balls.

Allow to each pound of finely-ground beef three-fourths of a cupful (coffee) of grated bread crumbs, one egg, saltspoonful of salt, table-spoonful of minced parsley, half a saltspoonful of white pepper; beat in a bowl and drop from spoon into the boiling fat.

Mushrooms With White Sauce.

Take five fresh haddock crackers, butter and arrange in baking dish; on each cracker lay a large peeled mushroom, cover with white sauce, put lid on dish and cook half an hour.

Where Women Wear Trousers.

There is a point on the coast of France where not only the men but the women and donkeys, too wear trousers. At Ile de Re the peasant women work in the salt and the oyster beds, catch shrimps and take their turns in the fields. They don't draggle around in petticoats, however, but wear baggy knee breeches, loose waists and light-colored sunbonnets. The sabots of the winter have been put aside and the feet are left bare, although the legs of old stockings are often drawn up as far as the knee as a protection from the heat and insects. It is, indeed, a country of trousers. Nor does it stop with humanity for many of the donkeys, as well, wear long striped red and white or blue and white coverings on their legs, which look very much like the remnants of Uncle Sam's wardrobe. These are put on the stubborn little animals to keep off the flies and mosquitoes, so they will be less liable to kick.

Clean, Cool & Easy Cooking

The hot summer days are coming when you should consider seriously the problem of cooking. You should figure out what it means to you in health and money—$14.00 will buy one of the best Gas Ranges, ($2.00 down and $2.00 a month if desired), five burner tops and good size broiling and baking ovens.

On the Gas Range you can regulate the heat—this means comfort and money—for you.

Nothing to get out of order or to be replaced. This alone, in the long run, means money saved—for you.

Consider that there are no ashes and coal to carry, no wood to split, fire to build, or unnecessary heat to endure, which means time and health—for you.
