Archbishop Williams Dead

Archbishop John J. Williams of Boston, who died last week Friday, was an intimate friend of Bishop McQuaid, and having made a practice of spending his summers for many years past with the bishop of the Rochester diocese at his summer home at Hemlock Lake.

Archbishop John J. Williams, visited Bishop McQuaid this summer, and while here he felt the first attack of the illness that culminated in his death. On August 20th, Bishop McQuaid's feast day, Archbishop Williams spent the day with Bishop McQuaid at St. Bernard's Seminary, and not feeling well, he started for his home in Boston.

Archbishop Williams was born in Boston April 27th, 1822, and made his elementary studies at the parochial school. He attended the College of Montreal and made his theological studies at the seminary of St. Sulpice in Paris. He was ordained a priest in 1844 and was consecrated bishop of Boston in 1866. He was raised to the dignity of the archbishopric in 1875, when the see became metropolitan.

The funeral was attended by high dignitaries of the Church from all parts of the country and more than 500 clergymen.

The services, which have been in progress since Monday, culminated Wednesday when the remains were laid to rest in the crypt at Holy Cross Cathedral.

Solemn high requiem mass was celebrated by Cardinal Gibbons. Archbishop O'Connell, the dead prelate's coadjutor and successor, presided at the vigil.

Cook Opera House

The celebrated actress, Virginia Earl, is to be the headliner in next week's vaudeville show at the Cook Opera House. She will play in a one-act, complete musical comedy entitled "A Midnight Mistake." Another important attraction will be Callahan and St. George, who will give "In the Old Neighborhood." Edward's Six Blonde Typewriters will give what is said to be one of the cleverest of all the musical girly acts. Catchy music, and picturesque dances are said to combine to make Edward's original turn one of the brightest. There are no funnier German comedians than Raymond and Caverly, and this season they will bring new material. The Wotpert trio, Germans of high standing in Europe, will have a sensational acrobatic offering. Le Caire and Bowen promise to travesty professional strong men in a most amusing fashion. The Three Leightons will entertain with various vaudeville specialties. The Three Chevalliers, imported by J. H. Moore, will have a European eccentricity, and the Kinetograph will show new moving pictures. This show will be given all the week with matinees every day.

Baker Theater

Everything is bustle and activity at the Baker Theater where preparations are being made for the opening of Klaw & Erlanger's Advanced Vaudeville on Monday, September 18. The Advanced Vaudeville standard is high and many changes and improvements are necessary to make the Baker meet the requirements. Klaw & Erlanger's ideas are pretty well understood in this city through their long occupation of the Lyceum Theater, but the standard they have set for vaudeville is even higher if possible. When the handsome new Baker Theater throws its doors open to the public on Monday afternoon, September 16, it will be like the opening of a new theater, so complete are the changes and improvements now being made.

Everything that can be done to further the interests of the patrons of the house will be incorporated in the changes. A new staff of attendants has already been engaged and are being thoroughly instructed in the methods of the Klaw & Erlanger system.

Beginning next Monday morning the box office at the Baker Theater will be open daily for the sale of seats for the opening week.

Five Minute Sermon

Christ Heals the Dropsical Man.

The Gospel relates that on this occasion Christ healed a man who had the dropsy, and He taught those present as well as us also that it is not forbidden to heal the sick on the Sabbath-day. Besides, he showed that we must be proud and cultivate humility. St. Augustine says that the man that had the dropsy was a figure of the rich miser, who the more he has the more he wants, after the manner of dropsical patients, who the fuller they are of water the more they want to drink. The dropsical man is also a figure of any other predominant passion of a sinner. Any passion when it takes possession of the heart, becomes insatiable, and the more it is gratified the worse it becomes, like the thirst of one afflicted with dropsy.

True humility consists in considering ourselves as nothing before God and men; for indeed we are nothing, and all we have, in the order of nature or in the order of grace, comes from God, as the mourners and friends of the also all we do, great or small, depends on His help and goodness.

The degrees of Christian humility are as follows: To know ourselves, our insufficiency, our natural misery, and hence to have a low opinion of ourselves. Secondly, to bear patiently and with fortitude humiliations, wherever they may come from. Finally, to rejoice in these humiliations, and to say with David: It is good, O Lord, that Thou hast humbled me.
