CATHOLIC PROMEST OF AVAIL

Moving Picture Men Convinced That We are a Power in Rochester.

That Catholic protest against shows which effect upon our Church and faith as well as indecent and immoral performances-in the usually accepted sense of the term-was demonstrated in practical and striking manner this week.

One of the "moving picture houses" announced a reproduction of "the tortures of the Spanish Inquisition." and, in advance, warned persons of weak nerves that they might be affected by the pictures, as women had been known to faint, so harrowing were the scenes depicted.

One would have thought that the city authorities and the ministers, who objected so strongly to a repetition of the Thaw episode in melodrama and to the reproduction of a! prize fight in the five-cent theaters, would have found the inquisition pictures so objectionable as to forbid their reproduction.

The management informing the public that the same official censor, who found the Thaw melodrama so offensive, had passed the inquisition pictures, which of themselves, are so harrowing that they set weaknerved persons into hysterics and are not fit for children of tender years and impressionable minds to look upon

A prominent Catholic gentleman saw the inquisition pictures. He protested to the management. The pictures went on. A Catholic clergyman saw them as a representative of the Catholic authorities of the diocese of Rochester. He, too, protested, but the pictures went on until word was sent, couched in language which admitted of no half-way measures, that unless the pictures were withdrawn, a mass meeting of Catholic citizens ould be held at which action would be taken that would materially diminish the revenues of the play house.

This had its effect and the pictures were withdrawn, reluctantly possibly, but still they were taken off.

This shows that a united and vigorous Catholic protest is effective and it is the way in which insidious attacks against the Church should be met.

If we stand up manfully for our rights the whole community will the more respect us.
