East.

Once more the year has rolled round and the ecclesiastical calendar is about to register the great feasts of Easter.

With the Saviour, the Church has journeyed since the angel announced to the Blessed Virgin that she was to be the mother of the Messiah.

The Church has celebrated the great feasts of Christmas when the Saviour was born in Bethlehem. We joined the Wise Men in laying our tributes of admiration at the feet of the Infant Jesus. We traveled with the Holy Family into Egypt and back to the Holy Land. We were in the Temple in spirit when Christ confounded the doctors by His wisdom.

We have followed the Saviour to manhood. We have wondered at His miracles. We have wept with Him in the agony of Gethsemane. In spirit we have shared Peter's shame when the cock crew and he realized he had denied his Master.

Contentment has filled our hearts at Judas' treachery and the thought has come to us that we have been guilty of like treachery to our Blessed Lord.

From the high priests palace to the judgment hall of Pilate, where the rabble shouted for Barabbas and consigned Jesus to the ignoble death of the cross, along the weary march to Calvary we have journeyed with Jesus. With agony in our hearts we have knelt at the foot of the cross and implored the dying Saviour that we might share the victory of the thief on the cross.

And now we come to that great victory over death and the grave when the Son of God vanquished all earthly power, bade defiance to princes and their soldiers and that the prophecies might be fulfilled, rose from the dead glorious and triumphant. Once more the Gloria will be sung in the Mass. Once more the organ's joyous strains will be heard, the ministers of the church will put aside their mourning garments and don robes of white.

Everything will combine to emphasize the fact that "He is Risen!"

The Catholic Journal hopes that the Easter spirit will bring gladness to the hearts of all its readers.

Wrong Spirit.

No doubt many persons applaud the sentiment contained in the following verses by Ernest H. Crosby, which are going the rounds of the Socialist press:

"Captain, what do you think," I asked,
"Of the part your soldiers play?"
The captain answered, "I do not think—
I do not think—I obey."

"Do you think you should shoot a patriot down
And help a tyrant slay?"
The captain answered, "I do not think—
I do not think—I obey."

"Do you think that your conscience was meant to die
And your brains to rot away?"
The captain answered, "I do not think—
I do not think—I obey."

"Then, if this is your soldier's code," I cried,
"You're a mean, unmanly crew,
And with all your feathers and gilt and braid
I am more of a man than you."

"For whatever my lot on earth may be,
And whether I swim or sink,
I can say with pride, I do not obey—
I do not obey—I think!"

To the unthinking man this would sound fine, undoubtedly. It has the ring of the spirit of '76. It sounds like a plea for liberty. But if it were the universal rule, what would become of the country? Law and order would be at an end.

The licentious man could plead that he was a thinker, that the free exercise of man's passions was the natural result of much thinking upon the question of the right application of natural laws.

The policeman could refuse to obey the orders of his superior officers when told to enforce the law, if his idea of whether law should be obeyed or not conflicted with the ideas of his superior officer.

It is the promulgation of such ideas that are promoting the increase of socialism and anarchy. Contempt for law, scorn for order and derision of authority are on the increase, likewise disbelief in religion and doubt of tradition.

If it were not for the agitation of these "parlor socialists," who are lauding the supremacy of the state and the elimination of the industrial society would be in a more settled state.

Not all the dangerous elements in society are in the ranks of the politicians and the legislators.

Hughes.

Most of the citizens of New York State believe Governor Hughes to be a high-minded man, animated by the highest motive, but there are those who think him to put it mildly and charitably, a trifle impractical.

We do not agree with those who would accuse the Governor of egotism, that is imbued with an idea that he must be right and all others wrong. We incline to the opinion that Governor Hughes is a narrow man, in the sense that he has not had enough public experience to know that public business cannot be run on the same plane as a private enterprise. In the latter, the owner may do as he like with his own money. If he chooses to make foolish, expensive and useless experiments, he foots the bill.

The public officer as a trustee of the public funds. He is not justified in taking up the time the public pays him for with novel experiments in sociology or even political economy, or with quarrels between himself and other branches of the government. He is not elected as a teacher in morals, there are churches, colleges and theological schools for that. He is placed in nomination upon a specified platform of principles. If the people approve of those principles and elect him, then he is supposed to apply himself to the task of carrying into effect these principles.

Mr. Hughes has not applied himself to hurrying up the construction of the barge canal for which the people voted in 1903. Apparently, he has not heard of the thousands of unemployed within the confines of the state. The unfaithfulness of state officials to their trust has passed unnoticed. His public service commission has the hardihood to ask the Legislature to enact a law which would permit them to authorize the New York Central to violate its charter and charge more than two cents per mile without a word of rebuke from the Governor.

All that the Governor is devoting his time to this year is the repeal of a racing law passed in 1895 and which was pronounced constitutional by the Court of Appeals.

The Catholic Journal cannot believe that Governor Hughes is doing all this to foster his presidential boom. We think he honestly believes that the abolition of race track gambling is of more importance than all the other moral or economic questions now before the American people.

Possibly, a majority of the people of New York State agree with him. Possibly, they think there are other questions of more paramount importance.

Time will tell.

Editorial Notes.

Archbishop Bourne of Westminster has published a statistical account of the progress of Catholicity in England up to the end of 1907. According to it, there are now 5,500,000 Catholics in England, and the priests number 4,075, about 50 more than in the preceding year. Archbishop Bourne has been very active in his work, both in the diocese of Southwark, which he governed before, and in the Archdiocese of Westminster, which he rules at present.

No Catholic women in England have yet qualified as physicians, although three who were practicing medicine have become Catholics. They are Dr. Agnes McLaren, Dr. Alice Johnson and Dr. Warner, whose work in Orford is now much before the world. Dr. McLaren, who is connected with the family of John Bright and his wife sister of Sir Charles McLaren, proposes to put aside $250 a year for five years, as a scholarship in favor of any Catholic girl who is willing to devote herself to the work of the Catholic mission to the native women and children of India.

Governor Hughes and the race track men are engaged in a mighty struggle.

Well, there are a few Republicans in New York State, at least, who are not for Hughes for president.
